DRIVER ATTACKS ORDINANCE.-An attack will be made upon the validity of the traffic ordinance, as to its requirement that vehicles must make a right-angled turn at street crossings, says W. J. Clemens, who was arrested by Patrolman Burke, of the traffic squad, at Second and Washington streets, Saturday. In-stead of proceeding to the farther side of the street before turning, Clemens cut across, and Patrolman Burke says that Clemens ignored his signals to go around. Clemens says that the ordinance did not apply when the act did not interfere with other traffic and said that he would en-gage a lawyer to try out the matter. He was assured that the city would bear up its end of the litigation.

New Church to be Dedicated.—The last services in the old building of the First English Evangelical Church, on East Sixth near East Market street, were held yesterday. The new building will be occupied for the first time next Wednesday night, when dedicatory services will begin, to end next Sunday. The old building was moved to the vacant lot south of the new one to make room for the foundation of the new structure. It was erected about 30 years ago, when Rev. C. C. Polley was paster. Rev. C. C. Poling was pastor. Rev. F. D. Culver, present pastor, has superintended the erection of the new building. YOUTH IS MISSING.-J. I. Miller tele-honed to the city police department from Oak Point yesterday that his son, aged 18, had left on the steamer Hassalo for Portland and asked that he be arrested and held. Patrolman Montgomery met the boat when she docked, but falled to find the boy, and was informed by the purser that no such passenger had been carried. Later an urgent telegram was received from Miller, asking a rush inswer to his message, and he was in-formed that the police here had no report on the boy.

his life with Oregon history. Coming to Portland in 1849, he had been here only a year when he was married and the event was published in the first issue of The Weekly Oregonian, December 4. 1850, Miss Lucinda Coffin, daughter of General Stephen Coffin, one of the most distinguished citizens of the Oregon country, was his bride. She died 22 years ago. During the ex-citing period of the Civil War, Colonel Reed, as he was called during the last third of a century, was Adjutant-Gen-eral of the state. In addition to this public service he was several times ay 75 cents round trip. This is a natural bent to art he took up that work and followed it at intervals dur-ing his life. In connection with Portland history, Colonel Reed's name will be longest remembered as the first president and custodian of the Portland Public Library Association. He retained the position of custodian only a short time. He was replaced by Thomas J. Dryer, who came up from California and founded The Weekly Oregonian. The library was located in the second story of a wooden building at Front and Morrison streets, long since wrecked for a more modern struc-When The Oregonian was estab

"We have a local-option law on ou statute books. It should be our duty to enforce that, or at least to give it a fair When we have given it a fair trial, and not before, we shall be in a position to say whether we want prohibition." These were the sentiments voiced yesterday by Barney O'Neil, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Idaho at the primaries, August 30. of Idaho at the primaries, August 30.

Mr. O'Neil is standing on the local-option ticket, which was the platform on which Governor Brady was elected. Now, according to O'Nell, Brady is trying to get a second term, and hopes to win to the Republican party the Prohibitionists.

"He is playing politics," quoth Mr. O'Neil home at Wallace, Idaho, where he is president of a bank. He is also chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. "I believe in the people having prohibi-tion, if the majority of them want it. If the Legislature passes a prohibition bill and I am elected Governor, I should certainly sign it," said Mr. O'Neil.

"But I am convinced the people do not want prohibition. We have a local-opwant prohibition. We have a local-op-tion law. That law enables the counties as units to go dry if they so desire. "Your assembly plan seems ideal," continued Mr. O'Neil. "Had we the assem-bly I should be sure of election, but in our case the assembly does not meet until after the primaries, when it decides the plank the Republican nominee shall adopt. SUSPECT HELD AS THIEF Man on Linnton Road Aids Sheriff in Making Capture.

William Rarity was arrested yesterday morning by Sheriff Stevens near Linnton and is held on a charge of hore-stealing. He will be turned over to Sheriff White, of Columbia County. A man named Kakritz, living on the Linnton road, telephoned to police head quarters Saturday night that Rarity was at his place, trying to sell him a horse and buggy. He said that he had bought four horses from the man a short time before and that a neighbor had bought one, all of which they afterward found were stolen. The same man appeared Saturday with a good horse and buggy, which he offered for sale. Kakritz held which he offered for saie. Kakritz held him, by pretended interest, while he communicated with the authorities.

J. H. Kitchings reported at police head-quarters Saturday afternoon that he left his horse and buggy standing at Second and Alder streets and went back in an hour to find them gone. The stolen animal was a sorrel mare 6 years old and the buggy a red runabout. It is thought it was Kitchings' mare that was offered at Linnton.

CARS MANGLE GIRL

Marjorie Mohr, of Lyric Chorus, Run Over on Trestle.

WOUNDS PROBABLY FATAL

Stroll in Country Ends Tragically When Girl, Crossing Bridge, Is Struck by Train-One Leg Cut Off, Other Badly Crushed.

Miss Mariorie Mahr, prettlest and most popular of the chorus girls of the Armstrong Musical Comedy Company, playing at the Lyric Theater was overtaken by a train on a trestle near Fulton yesterday, and her left leg cut off above the knee. The right foot was mangled so badly that it will probably be necessary to amputate it if she survives, which is not probable. As she went to the operating table Miss Mahr begged that her right leg be spared by the doctors.

"I can make a living with that," said the suffering girl.

Miss Mahr, Miss Anna Cassell, Miss Dottle Daniels and Henry Byerstedt, the orchestra leader, all members of the company, took a car ride after the matinee yesterday afternoon. At Fulton they started for a walk down the railroad track through the woods. As they went out upon a trestie they did not hear a train coming swiftly from behind until it was almost upon them.

Train Comes Suddenly. Miss Mahr was walking arm-in-arm with Miss Anna Cassell at about center of the trestle, while M Daniels and Beyerstedt were in Daniels and Beyerstedt were in advance of the others near the end of the bridge. When the train was nearly upon them the latter two were able to run to safety. Miss Cassell crawled out upon one of the platforms provided for such emergencies and called to Miss Mahr to follow. Instead, the girl started to run for the end of the bridge, stumbled and fell across the tracks just as the heavy engine bore down upon her. The engine and three cars passed entirely over her.

Just before the train struck Miss Mahr stuck her head down between the ties; that was all that saved her the ties; that was all that saved her from instant death. When the train was brought to a standstill the crew rushed back to pick up the apparently lifeless girl. They put her aboard the train and hurried her to the city, and then to the Good Samaritan Hospital, while a physician in one of the cars attended to her in-juries as best he could.

Girl Pleads With Doctors.

At the hospital Miss Mahr regained onsciousness sufficiently to tell her right name, which is Mrs. Marjorie Hurtig, wife of Lewis Hurtig, who is playing in vaudeville in San Francisco. She is 19 years old. As she was on the way to the operating-room she the way to the operating-room she bravely faced the ordeal and pleaded with the doctors.

"Please don't take my leg off," she said. "I can make a living with it."

At the hospital last night physicians said she will probibly die.

As soon as the accident was reported to Manager Armstrong, of the
