OREGON WOODMEN LOSE HARD FIGHT

Defeat of Snodgrass Proves Costly, Fresno Man Winning With Ease.

Allegiance Proves Costly.

"You shall have representation," was the administration reply, in effect, "but it is for the order to choose your representation, not for you."

Significant, indeed, is the after the result by the Oregonians. They sesert that because of their allegiance with the Southern California insurgent movement they were deliberately penalized when the state was prepared by the administration officials.

This charge to denied in toto by every member of the administration, and particularly by Head Consul Boak.

however, rumored that Boak promised Revelle, of Seattle, the position of head banker. Certainly Revelle was originally a candidate for the office. It also conceded among a section of the delegates that the new holder of the office, A. E. Sunderland, said that if the head consul does not come through with his promise, I'll fight and get him. Thus Head Consul Book was between two fires, it is said, and for concillatory purposes, taking into consideration Sunlerland was a greater power in the order than Revelle, he promised Sunderland

It is definitely known that the secret caucus at midnight Tuesday, Sunderland received the administration assurances of support and that he then pledged his delegates to the administration banner. Revelle was given the honorary sposition of head adviser.

lauded Snodgrass. Efforts were made even to show that his election was simply one of those cases where another candldate had etronger support. Mr. Snod-grass had done much good work for the order, turning into the order $5 in interest for every $1 in salary he has re

The split, even in the Oregon delegation, was caused by Snodgrass. Snodgrass advised support of the administration, unaware that he was to be defeated. He headed a delegation of three against 12 against the adminis-The three favored the slate, the 13 were for the election of Herman even though defeated, Snodgrass still gave the administration support in its election of Hawley. There still remains a problem before the officers. T. Clinton Veale, Pasadena, ex-head adviser, remains to be conciliated. It is thought he will be appointed a head organizer. He was slated to stand down and he obeyed the behest of the board. Head Escort Wilson and Head Sentry Nelson were dropped according to the regular plan of circulating these minor offices.

Defeat Causes Regret.

With the defeat of Mr. Snodgrass there with the defeat of air. Shodgrass there is regret. The Oregonians supported Snodgrass for past performances. They allege the office has been given to an unknown man in the course of politics, and it is that that makes the trouble within the order.

Head Consul Boak is not blamed by the insurant. They assert he acted Head Consul Boak is not blamed by the insurgents. They assert he acted along the line of least resistance and was practically forced to throw over Snodgrass to save his own office from attack. Sunderland, three years ago was defeated at Seattle for the office of head manager and the promise that he should have the bankership at the next convention was then made, so say those apparently informed.

From the delegates the principal criticism made is, they have no opportunity to know the new men presented to to know the new men presented to them. As a general rule, the delegates to one W. O. W. convention are not the same one year as the next. The support given to the administration lies in the fact, say those opposed to the machine, that it has a force of 50 organizers, paid for the work of organizing new lodges and obtaining new members.

How Plan Works Out.

Inasmuch as there are many ledges quite neutral to the election of officers, it is said that organizers approach delegates promising their support to the lodge if the delegate would support the slate. How can the delegate be blamed, it is said, for trying to get the best he can for his lodge? So he supports the slate. As the expenses of all delegates are paid and it is in many respects a hollday to them they will all delegates are paid and it is in many respects a holiday to them, they willingly respond to the suggestion of being nominated as delegate in return for their support. That is the insurgent view. The view of the "regulars" is that, naturally, it is the duty of the administration to make preparations in view of an attack known to be coming. An unique feature of the convention is that Fresno has been successful twofold. The head camp trophy was captured by the Fresno camp and the office of banker was captured by a Fresno man.

With the election of the officers the politics of the convention are at an end for three years, when the next head camp session will be held.

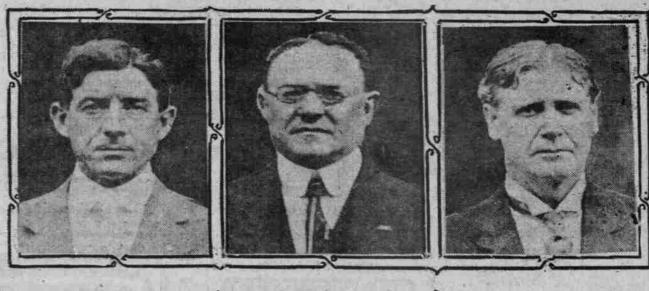

The business to be considered from now on will be largely legislative. As far as can be anticipated at present, no especially noteworthy actions will be taken during head camp. Sessions will end Saturday, unless one day is devoted to the picnic which failed to material-ize yesterday. Should the picnic be held Saturday the sessions will likely run until Tuesday night. Amendments to the constitution will be considered today.

BITTER IS WOODMEN'S CONTEST

Delegate McEachern Stirs Up Trouble Charging "Politics."

The fight at the Woodmen's morning aession yesterday started immediately after Head Consul Boak called the gathering to order. Consul Boak then called Past Head Consul Moses to the chair, resuming his seat among the delegates. Mr. Moses resigned the chair to Judge PART OF OFFICERS ELECTED TO HEAD WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

His speech was most laudatory. He told how Mr. Boak had spent 20 years in the order and how, from the office of organizer, he had risen to head consul. He said Mr. Boak had occupied successively the following offices; organizer, camp cierk, consul-commander, head manager, head cierk and finally head consul. "He has held," said Mr. Moses, "more offices than any other man in the order, living or dead."

Sessions were resumed at 2 o'clock. For the board of head managers, five to be elected, the incumbents were first nominated. The incumbents follow: W. C. Hawley, Salem, chairman; F. P. Hawke, Pueblo; James Stenhouse, Denver; Thomas Robinson, Oakland; John Pattison, Colfax, Wash.

Herman Schade was nominated by A. L. Barbur, of Portland, and C. E. Loux by Delegate Drury, of Coburg, Or. Mr. Loux was a new addition to the siate. By splitting the votes that Schade might have received, Loux was a contributing cause in the latter's defeat.

We know and like Hawley as a man. We know and like blank politically for him as Congressman, but I do not believe he is able to devote the time necessary to the order." through all kinds of political conventions to a National convention, but never in my whole life have I seem politics played in as hard or as dirty a manner as they have been on the floor of this convention."

Mr. McEachern then paid his respects to Dr. Stenhouse, who he asserted could play the "game" harder than any man he knew. He went on:

"You people are simply trying to perpetuate the regime of a lot of old fossils in this order, and you may succeed, with such a man as Stenhouse at the helm, but we will fight you to a finish. We feel that in trying to prevent the re-election of Hawley we are working for the best interests of the order, and you will make a mistake by trying to cram him down the throats of the Oregon delegation—mark my words, you are making a very bad mistake, and if he is re-elected you will realize it."

Following this speech and replies by administration officials, the election was held. The results showed Schade well out of the race and that Hawley had received more than the necessary 50 per cent of yotes. An unusual feature was

The next business taken up was what is known as the Jurd case. A. J. Jurd was a member of the order and died while attempting to protect some children from injuries. At the time of his death he was in bad financial standing with the order, having his dues undeath he was in bad financial standing with the order, having his dues unpaid. Jurd lived at Healdsburg, Cal. He had arranged, however, for the camp clerk to carry him on the books. Owing, it is stated, to the negligence of the camp clerk this was not done and Jurd's dues became overdue. All the members of the order are in favor of the sum of $1000 being paid the widow to help her educate two little children and a committee was appointed to consider the question. Jurd had carried $2000 insurance with the order.

Rev. G. W. Brewster, of San Jose, pastor of the First Christian Church, was permitted to address the assembly as a guest. He recounted the pitiful details of the case and general anxiety was shown to help out the widow. The matter will be settled today.

The meeting then adjourned.

CONSUL BOAK DENIES CHARGES

'No Dirty Politics Have Been Played

by Administration," He Says. "No dirty politics have been played "No dirty politics have been played by the administration of this order at any time during my administration." was what I. I. Boak, head consul of the Pacific Coast jurisdiction of the Woodmen of the World, said last night when asked if he had any reply to the charges that had been huried against his administration.

Consul Boak said the trouble originated with the increase he had advocated three years ago at Seattle, which we were behind in the payment of our death claims. Under the new regime within three months we had caught up and now, on July 1, two and a half years since the change went into effect, we have a surplus benefit fund of over $1,000,000 and all approved death claims are paid.

is against the woodmen of the World it certainly will be paid. I have per-sonally always advocated adequacy in matters of mortuary contributions, and have no hesitancy in saying that in my opinion it will never again be neces-sary for the Woodmen of the World to raise its rates, as the income from investments will take care of the death claims for two full months in the year, and it must be admitted our assess-ments will take care of the balance. and it must be admitted our assess-ments will take care of the balance.
"We must now reorganize our field force and start a vigorous campaign for increased membership. Our policy will be the same as in the past, the conserving of the interests of the order in every way possible.

"We must watch our expenditure, but when it is necessary to spend money to promote the interests of the order it will be done."

PATTISON AGAIN CANDIDATE

Shoshone Democrat Would Like to Be Governor.

John Pattison, one of the delegates in attendance upon the tenth session of the head camp of the Woodmen of the World, is taking an active part in the work, is taking an active part in the work before the convention. Mr. Pattison is a resident of Spokane, Wash. His chief hobby is politics, and, when not looking after Woodmen affairs, he devotes considerable of his time to the cause of the Democratic party in Eastern Washington.

Two years ago Mr. Pattison was so besieged with the desire to represent his state in a gubernatorial way that, after counting all the Democrats and taking a poll of all the doubtful voters, taking a poll of all the doubtful voters, he concluded that the Governorship could be cinched and diamond-hitched, hands down. But when the smoke of battle had cleared from the political horizon Mr. Pattison found that he had not reckoned well, and the late Mr. Cosgrove was given the honor.

The fault was not with Mr. Pattison.

He simply happened to be on the wrong side of the fence. Be that as it may, Mr. Pattison has not forsaken his hobby, and rumor hath it that he is to be in the running again for the coveted honor to be Governor of the State of Washington. He is said to have a strong following in Eastern Washing-ton, and is getting to be talked about in a large way in the Puget Sound country.

BIG FAIR IS PLAN

Livestock Association Names Committees.

SHOW TO BE FEATURED

Throughout Pacific Northwest-Outlook Is Bright.

At a general meeting of the stockholders of the Portland Fair and Livestock Association at the rooms of the Commercial Club yesterday afternoon, plans for holding a bigger and better Fall festival were unanimously adopted and the offi-cials of the organization commissioned to arrange all of the necessary details toward making the coming race meet a success.

It is proposed to have the side show and vaudeville attractions introduced on a broader and grander scale than ever before attempted in the Northwest. The side show attractions are to be featured more than ever this year, for the delays between the harness races have proven one of the drawbacks in the past and the directors of the association believe that this can be relieved by the introduction of side attractions of merit.

The return was made via Morrison street, so that a tour was made of the principal West Side streets. During the day the women were en-tertained by a trip to the Oaks, where the wives of the local entertainment committee acted as their hosts.
