

LETTERS BLOW TO ASSEMBLY'S FIFES

Chairman Gibson Writes to Republican Voters of Clackamas County.

MEETING IS SCHEDULED

Reasons for Recommending Candidates to People Clearly Shown in Intelligent Analysis of Purpose of Party Organization.

OREGON CITY, Or., July 28.—(Special.)—Into the camp of the anti-assembly forces and all for your disposal the endorsement of candidates for county offices, John H. Gibson, chairman of the Republican County Assembly, has fired a bombshell. Mr. Gibson and many other assembly men, among them O. W. Eastham, ex-county judge and John W. Melchior and George L. Story, are urging the endorsement of candidates for county offices, while others, who favored an assembly to select delegates to the state assembly, do not want a ticket endorsed.

Gibson Writes Letter.

Mr. Gibson's letter has been sent to every one of the 230 delegates to the county assembly, and follows: "I desire to submit for your consideration several reasons (and to my way of thinking very good ones) why the assembly plan of endorsing a county ticket should receive the possible support of the entire Clackamas county delegation; and having unbounded faith in the ability of the American citizen to throw aside all prejudice and calmly figure out the whys and wherefores of the everyday problems of life, I shall, in what I say, try to make you agree with me in that particular. I shall have great hopes of the ultimate success of this letter.

Primary Not Opposed.

"Regarding the direct primary method of nominating candidates, let me say that I shall not oppose it. I believe that law until something better is given us; but my judgment is, that in order to get the best possible support to go before the people for nomination, it is necessary to hold an assembly and, after due deliberation, select the men best fitted to fill the various offices (always taking into consideration the geographical location), and recommend them to the consideration of the voters at the direct primary. I believe that to be nominated or rejected as the said voters may decide.

Democrats Always Meet.

"Now, after reminding you that the Democrats always meet together and agree on their candidates, I want to propound the following questions: Why should we deny ourselves the privilege which we decide to assemble ourselves together for the purpose of discussing the qualifications of candidates and making recommendations to the voters? What justification have you for the belief that in so doing we are drifting back into the old convention system? None whatever.

Voters Urged to Consider.

"I heard a man say a few days ago that he would not vote for an assembly man. Of course, everyone has a right to do as he may think best, but you can exercise your franchise with just as much freedom without having in advance made the statement that you will not support a man who has been endorsed by the assembly. Therefore let me request that you reserve your decision until you get to the voting booth, because the assembly may recommend a man for office who is your personal friend and the man above all others whom you would be inclined to support.

NEAR-BEER TABOO

Wallowa Jury Rules Beverage Is Intoxicant.

EXPERT RULING IS MADE

Decision Rests on an Analysis Showing as Much Alcohol as Is Contained in Beer of Regulation Variety.

ENTERPRISE, Or., July 28.—"Near-beer," so-called, has received its death blow in Wallowa County. The jury in the case of the State vs. John Mitchell and John Pipes, of Wallowa, in returning its verdict of guilty, staggered the whole near-beer proposition. The defendants' counsel made the claim that so-called near-beer was a non-intoxicant. This has been the popular conception of the beverage held by everybody in the county heretofore.

In the trial the state presented a chemical analysis of both near-beer and of several grades of lager beer, the analysis having been made by the state chemist at the State University at Eugene. Near-beer was found to contain 5.33 per cent alcohol, whereas lager beer was found to contain anywhere from 2 to 6 per cent alcohol.
