

GOSPEL OF CHRIST HEALS PHYSICALLY

Denver Pastor Says by Faith
Ailments Can Be Made to Pass Away.

LIMITATIONS FEW, IF ANY

Preacher Gives Praise to Christian
Scientists, but Does Not Condemn
Medicine — Says He Has Cured Many Himself.

"I believe that there are few limitations, if any, to the healing of men through the gospel of Jesus Christ, and making their ailments pass away," was the statement made yesterday morning by Rev. W. W. McArthur, in the course of an address to the Pilgrim congregation, on Shaver street and Missouri avenue. Rev. Mr. McArthur is head of the Bible School, of Denver, Colo., where he is also a member of the First Congregational Church. This school is founded on the idea that the gospel properly understood, is the means by which and through which the ailments and sufferings of the human family may be healed. The only physical limitations, according to Rev. Mr. McArthur in his address yesterday morning, exist where the eye is gone entirely, the ear taken away or a limb cut off. In these cases, said the divine, he found no remedy. He said to indicate that the missing member could be replaced. He also said that other limitations are found in the individuals themselves, and in the influence and hostility of churches and some pastors to the new gospel of healing the Denver Bible School seeks to extend over the country.

Christ's Work Twofold.

Rev. Mr. McArthur held that divine healing was essentially a part of the religion of Jesus Christ, and that the message of scripture in support of this claim. He said in part: "The capacity to receive the life of God determines man's immortality, and that that capacity in the redemption of his body from sin, disease and death. Man's body is that which Jesus Christ has redeemed, and eternal life is the gift of God. Hence is seen the twofold work of Jesus, first as a man, taking upon himself the sins of the world and dying, and then as God, giving life to those bodies of men. Now, when we believe the significance of His death which was the death of sin, that cured man and brought him under the law of grace. His gift of life, which establishes man's relations with God, we enter into the consciousness of eternal life and the restoration of a redeemed body."

Christian Science Praised.

The principles of Rev. Mr. McArthur's teachings border on those of Christian Science and the Emanuel movement. For many years he was a practitioner of Christian Science, and in his address yesterday morning he commended the work of that church. He said he himself, had been benefited by Christian Science. He also commended medical science and other methods of healing, and had nothing to say in his condemnation. The medicine and such methods of healing, however, were useless, he contended, unless there was confidence in them. So in gospel healing there must be confidence and hope. In speaking of the practical use of gospel healing, he said that the individual might use it by becoming a messenger of Jesus Christ to the stricken ones.

Many Cures Are Cited.

Rev. Mr. McArthur closed his address by giving many instances of the complete cure of people through the gospel as practiced by himself. These ailments, he declared, were not imaginary, but real physical ailments and deep-seated, but had yielded to treatment according to the teachings of Jesus Christ. His explanation for leaving the Christian Science Church is that his conscience would not allow him to occupy his position as a practitioner of Christian Science, and he was inconsistent therewith. He was not able to make other Christian Scientists see what he considered his ever-advancing and enlarged conception of Christ. He could see that although practicing Christian Science brought to humanity many things which he felt within himself it was God's will that he should, yet it brought them in a negative way rather than through Christ himself. Rev. Mr. McArthur spoke along the same lines in the afternoon at the Haslam-street Congregational Church, and expects to deliver other lectures while in the city and to organize a branch of the Denver Bible School in Portland.

REV. HENRY MARCOTTE IS BACK

Westminster Church Pastor Returns

From Visit Over Atlantic.

Rev. Henry Marcotte, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, East Tenth and Welder streets, who was one of the representatives of the Presbyterians of Oregon to the general assembly, returned Saturday night and occupied his pulpit yesterday.

With Rev. Mr. Foulkes, of the First Presbyterian Church, Mr. Marcotte came home from Europe. For a portion of the trip they were together and saw England, Scotland, Ireland, Holland, Germany, Austria, Hungary and France and saw the Passions Play.

"I had the time of my life," said Rev. Mr. Marcotte, yesterday, "and saw a considerable portion of the old country. I had a very pleasant visit with Rev. Andrew Montgomery, formerly of the Third Church, but now of Oak Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago. I can say to the friends of Mr. Montgomery in Portland and Oregon that he has been eminently successful and that both he and Mrs. Montgomery had gained a strong place in the hearts of the prominent Presbyterian churches of Chicago. He will take his vacation in Chicago, but next year I think we may expect a visit from him, for the Oregon mountains have not lost their attractions for him."

PASTORS TAKING VACATIONS

Dr. John Cudlipp and Dr. Benjamin

Young Leave This Week.

Dr. John H. Cudlipp, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, will leave this week for Vancouver, B. C., where he will attend the sessions of the Canadian Methodist conference. He will take a month's vacation, during which time arrangements have been made for the pulpit to be supplied by other preachers.

Dr. Benjamin Young, of the Taylor-street Methodist Church, had his vacation this week to be gone a month. He will go first with his family to Ocean

Park, where he has a cottage. After a short stay there he will go to California for a trip through the Yosemite Valley. Last year he visited Yellowstone Park.

Bishop C. W. Smith and Rev. Walton

Skipworth, of The Dalles, will occupy his pulpit next Sunday. After his return Dr. Young will deliver an address at the Columbia River conference meeting of the Methodist Church, at Spokane, and another at the Central Puget Sound conference.

Woman Preacheth of "Love."

"Love," spoken of in I Corinthians, 13, as the virtue that "never faileth," was the subject of the sermon at the Unitarian Church yesterday, preached by Miss Marian Mudgett, of Kenosha, Wis. "The time will come," she said, "when this fundamental principle of religion will govern the affairs of nations and of the human world. There will be no more strife or bloodshed, no more strikes or labor wars. Love, the fundamental principle of religion, will be applied to all the affairs of life."

'Stockyards Evangelist' Comes Here.

Rev. James Crooks, an evangelist from Sura, better known as the Chicago Stockyards Evangelist, at one time an expert hamseller, is to speak at the Commons Mission Hall, 22 North Front street, at 8 o'clock tonight. Mr. Crooks was converted in Chicago 20 years ago, and studied for the ministry. He extends an invitation to butchers and stockyard men.

WATER METERS NEEDED

SELLWOOD COMMERCIAL CLUB

MEMBER TALKS.

Terrible Is Waste of Bull Run Product,

as Many Persons Leave Faucets

Open All Night.

Peter Hume, of the Sellwood Bank, and a prominent member of the Sellwood Commercial Club, contends that until every citizen is supplied with a meter, there will be no saving of water. He said that the present supply of water, with ample reinforcing mains and meters, would come very near supplying the citizens of Portland. It would cut out the waste, and the water meter, he said, is the only way to save water. "If there were meters on all houses this terrible waste of water would soon come to a stop," said Mr. Hume. "If there were meters on all houses this terrible waste of water would soon come to a stop. I have no doubt that the present supply of water, with ample reinforcing mains and meters, would come very near supplying the citizens of Portland. It would cut out the waste, and the water meter, he said, is the only way to save water. "If there were meters on all houses this terrible waste of water would soon come to a stop."

FOREST FIRES TOPIC

Hanging Too Good for Those Who Set Them, Says Dyott.

EXERCISE OF CARE URGED

Carelessness of People in Woods Explored by Pastor of First Congregational Church—Other Ministers to Discuss Subject.

"Hanging is too good a punishment for the man who intentionally or carelessly sets fire to our forests, and thereby causes loss of property and perhaps of life," according to Dr. Luther R. Dyott. The pastor of the First Congregational Church spoke a few minutes last night on the conservation of Oregon's resources. There should be more stringent laws, he said, and a more extensive forest patrol. He praised ex-President Roosevelt's action in bringing about the formation of the National Conservation Commission.

Dr. Dyott said, in part: "One of the best things that Colonel Roosevelt did during his administration as President of the United States was that of calling together the Governors of all the states to meet with a number of other prominent men in a conference at the White House in May, 1908, to consider the important matter of the conservation of the natural resources of our country. Some good came of that conference. For one thing, it gave our country the National Conservation Commission. Then, it occasioned a meeting in Washington the following December, and at that time attention was called to the rapidly decreasing timber supply of the United States. The action was then directed to the fact that about four-fifths of the wooded area was in private ownership, and the timber was in danger of being consumed too rapidly."

Supply Is Threatened.

"It was noted that the National forests embraced the remainder, and at the rate of cutting they would supply the lumber requirements of our country for about ten years. The consumption of timber in the United States during one year was three times the annual increment, and it was observed in 1908 that, unless the destructive use of forests soon ceased, a timber famine would surely follow. We are still using our timber too rapidly, and when you thought of the awful destruction through forest fires, we face a fact which should occasion widespread alarm and the utilization of every means to the prevention of such a disaster. At our command as a Nation, as states and as individuals, our National Forest Service is efficient and valuable, but we need and must have even greater progress in state, municipal and corporate forestry and, more than all, perhaps, greater efficiency on the part of all concerned in preventing forest fires. Greater care should be exercised in ascertaining the origin of these fires and in fixing the responsibility for them. In many, if not most instances they mean something more than accidents, and even when they are of accidental origin, such an accident is, as a rule, due to wicked carelessness. Even if we compel all railroad companies to pay for the damage done by the fires started by the sparks from locomotives, we cannot then make matters as nearly right as they should be."

"Again, capital punishment would be too good for the wretch who intentionally or carelessly, when passing through the forest, starts a fire which not only consumes millions of dollars worth of property in the noble trees, but, moreover, is the cause of untold harm in other respects. Everywhere let us have more stringent measures with reference to these matters. Then we need a patrol system of protection which shall be more general and efficient. Forest fires can be prevented, and, assuredly, they should be prevented."

People Must Wake Up.

"All over the country, and especially in this part of our country, out here in the great Northwest, let us wake up to the fact that we are positively wicked. A forest fire is a Hades, which ought never to be, and it will not be when our wide-awake people are alert that they ought to be and when they do all they ought to do."

Dr. William Hiram Foulkes will speak at the First Presbyterian Church next Sunday night on "Conserving Our Resources," and will mention the forest fire question. He will speak August 14 on "Man's Mastery of the Air," August 21 on "The Symbolism of the Sea," and August 28 on "The Desert Blossoming as the Rose."

Dr. Benjamin Young is also to speak upon the forest fire problem, but not until he returns from a month's vacation. These sermons are in response to 2000 letters sent out to as many preachers throughout Oregon and Washington by District Forester Chapman, asking that they take up this question in their pulpits. The forester said about 100 fires were raging in the mountains.

JURY WILL HEAR CASE

DOCTOR MAY BE CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER.

District Attorney Will Present Various Phases of Vera Hall's Death to Inquisitorial Body.

Presentation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Vera Hall, which took place on the operating table in Dr. J. J. Rosenberg's office will be made to the grand jury when it meets, not later than August 23, said District Attorney Cameron last night. The jury will be called together at that time in regular order of business, preparatory to the opening of the Fall term of court, and the District Attorney does not feel that there is any special need of presenting the Rosenberg matter before that time.

Three alternative grounds for action against the physician are presented under the alleged facts in the case. First, he may be proceeded against on the supposition that the death of the girl by the use of chloroform came when the operating physician was in the act of committing a crime, is manslaughter. This alternative has been placed in the background for the present by the District Attorney, because none of the witnesses has so far admitted that any criminal operation was contemplated.

Second, action may be taken against Rosenberg on the contention that, in administering an anesthetic to Vera Hall without the assistance of an expert assistant, when he probably knew that her heart was defective, and without loosening the tight clothing which she wore, he committed an act of criminal carelessness sufficiently grave to constitute manslaughter.

Third, an effort may be made to bring the conduct of the physician to the attention of the medical examiners, as a person whose act convicts him of unfitness to be allowed the privilege of a physician. It is extremely doubtful if, under the existing statute, this action can be successfully taken, as the reason for which a license to practice may be taken away are specifically named, and do not include a case such as this appears to be from the facts in the possession of the authorities.

It is probable that unless new evidence develops, as is expected, the second alternative will be taken and the action of Rosenberg laid before the grand jury as an act of criminal carelessness.

Asylum authorities and officers have been making a search in North Salem

for a man supposed to be either Frank

Wade or Christopher Smith, the con-

criminal ward at the asylum. The man has made himself at home in several

Persons in that neighborhood are badly frightened, as the only report

As far as known no one ever died of sea-
