Captain Displays Revolvers With Threats of Death to Mutineers. Heavy Penalty Possible for Erring Sailors.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4-(Special.)—When the ore steamer Douglas Houghton came into port at Gary, Ind., yesterday, five of the crew were in chains in the hold of the crew were in chains in the hold and the captain was standing off the remainder of the mutinous crew. The five young women guests of the steel company were barricaded in their cabin. One of the crew had been ordered into chains for planning an attack upon the girls and his companions mutinied. Captain Parke stood guard at the gangway, threatening death to any one of the mutineers who came up. The steward helped barricade the terror-stricken girls and the other officers went below and imprisoned the mutineers.

Crime Is Serious.

The mutineers found themselves in a legal tangle more difficult to untile than any sailor's knot' ever heard of. They found that their terime is punishable, among other things by $100 fine and five years' imprisonment, $200 fine and ten years' imprisonment or death.

It's a pull law present in 1790, and years' imprisonment or death.

It's an old law, passed in 1796, and says that any sallor who mutinied and struck his captain with intent to maim or kill (or something like that) should suffer death. At first this was not ap-suffer death. At first this was not applicable to the great lakes, but in 1890, by a special act of Congress, the United States maritime laws were made aplicable to the lakes.

Together with the one about death is a clause that says all attempts to incite mutiny or resistance of the captain should be punishable by $1000 fine, and that actual mutiny should be punished twice as severely, or $2000 fine and ten years' imprisonment.

Girls Happy Over Escape.

A "mutiny thanksgiving" party was held today at the shome of John Kirk, general superintendent of the Eigin. Joliet & Eastern Railway, in Gary, by the five young girls who passed safely through the mutiny.

Each girl highly praised Captain John F. Parke, of the steamer, and declared it was due to his fearlessness and use of his revolvers that the rebellious sallers were subdued and the and use of his revolvers that the re-bellious sallors were subdued and the mutiny ended. The young women be-lieve they would have been roughly handled had the steamer fallen into the hands of the mutineers.

It came out today that Petersen was put in irons for prowling about the girls' cabins and cutting ropes and capvas, preparatory to an attack upon them, the other mutineers being back of the scheme.

CHARGE IS HELD TRIVIAL

Oregon Middy Accused of Referee ing Fight Will Get Diploma.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Wash-OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Aug. 1—Acting Secretary of the Nary Winthrop today decided that the charge of hazing against Midshipman Herbert O. Roesch, of Oregon, for refereeing a prizefighting contest between underclassmen in his charge was "too triling for consideration."
Therefore Roesch, whose diploma has been held up, will be given the sheepskin which entitles him to be an officer.

TREATY RIGHTS ILLUSORY

Senator Root Holds Anti-American Fishery Legislation Is Unjust.

THE HAGUE Aug 4.-United States THE HAGUE, Aug. 4.—United States Senator Root, continuing his summing up in the Newfoundland fisheries case before the Arbitration Tribunal today, dwelt on the inequity of the anti-American legislation on fishing rights adopted by the Newfoundland Legislature. This legislation would, he declared, if upheld, render the American rights under the terror of 1818 output. Hustry.

render the American rights under the treaty of ISIS purely illusory.

He maintained that if the privileges granted under the treaty were subject to British sovereignty, as argued by the British representative. England would prohibit fishing for cod in the waters in question for six or @ years without the United States being able to raise any objection. America, he continued, was now asking the Arbitration Tribunal to recognize her right to veto any such regulations.

The complaint must now gustain her contention that she has come to the state for the purpose of making it her home, and not for the sole purpose of securing a divor.

By the decision rendered it is helieved that if action be taken before the courts to show that one securing a divorce in the State of Nevada upon a residence gained solely for that purpose, and not as a bons fide residence, with the intent of making the state a home, the divorce will be annulled.

The decision will create consternation in the divorce colony at Reno, where scores of men and women reside for the sole purpose of obtaining divorces after six months' residence.
