Beavers Yank Exciting Game From Sacramento, in Eighth Inning.

GREGG OUTSHINES BAUM

Fourteen Senators Fan Breeze at Home Plate, but With Their Six Hits They Make Pastime Most Interesting Exhibition.

By defeating Sacramento for the fourth cutive time at the Vaughn-street ark yesterday afternoon, the Portland vers once more took first place in Pacific Coast League, and performed the trick by timely batting as well as because San Francisco and Oakland both lost their games. The score here was 2 to 1, and it was a pitchers' battle between Yean Gregg and Charlie Baum.

Gregg fanned 14 Sacramento batters and otherwise distinguished himself, though he allowed six hits and the Sen-ators threatened to score much oftener than the ione taily credited to them would indicate. However, the fanning bees con-victed by the lanky southpaw put the quietus on the Senatorial ambitions on several occasions, and the big bunch of fair ones present simply went into parox-isms of enthusiasm whenever the Gregg person performed feats of this kind.

Game Is Exciting.

It really was a most exciting game, and the tense intervals when Senatorial ries threatened occurred so frequently that the bugs who were really anxious for Portland to win had periodical fits of gasping. Gregg proved their salvation and strikeouts served to save the situation on innumerable occasions.

"Spider" Baum pitched a good game himself, but he allowed ten hits and Portland managed to acquire several of these himself, but he allowed ten hits and Port-land managed to acquire several of these at intervals when they counted. The first tally of the matines was rung up by Portland in the seventh inning, and be-cause of that, "Doc" Anderson can have no excuse for refusing to stand up in that session in the future.

George Ort opened the seventh by be-ing robbed of a hit for the third time during the same for Burns nalled his during the game, for Burns nailed his bot grounder with one hand and tossed it to first, heading Ort off by an eyelash. Jimmy Rutherford followed with a hit to center, his second in the game, and took and on Gregg's bunt to Baum. This all the way to the register with the first run. Olson went out trying to steal.

Sacramento Ties Score.

Sacramento tied the game up in the field, and took second on Van Buren's sacrifice. Heister followed with a fly to center which should have been taken by either Ort or Speas, but in some way they both were late in the try and the ball dropped safe, allowing Shim to score. Heister thought he would take third on the hit, but was thrown out on a speedy the hit, but was thrown out on a speedy relay from Speas to Oison to Sheehan. In Portland's half of the eighth, the home team tailied the winning run after two were in pickle. Bapps and Fisher were in cold storage when Casey singled to center, and then stole second. Tommy Sheehan was the pinch-hitting kid, for he clouted one to left which Perry was slow to recover and Casey dashed over the pan with the run which eventually proved a winner. Speas ended the inning with a chance to Boardman.

Boice to Pitch Today. Boice to Pitch Today.

Manager McCredle has decided to pitch George Boke against Sacramento today, while Charlie Graham will depend upon either Jimmy Whalen or Byram, the Princeton pitcher. The score of yesterday's game is as Beacuse she wrote to a neighbor that he was known to have stolen her crabapples and that it would take $2 to square the offense, Mrs. "Jane Doe" Shepperd, of Latourelle Falls, was made the defendant yesterday in a complaint charging extortion, which was secured at the District Attorney's office by John Stricklewitch, of Latourelle Falls.

Stricklewitch declares that Mrs. Shepperd sent him a letter of the above purport without justification. Attorney Joseph Simon, who knows the defendant upon learning that she was accused, proffered his services in her defense, saying that she was a widow and ignorant of the offense contained in her action.

VEAN GREGG will outstrip all of the Pacific Coast League pitchers in the number of men struck out this season if he keeps up his present gait. He fanned 14 Oaklanders last Sunday and a similar number of Senators yesterday.

Yesterday's game was one of the most exciting of the series, for both teams threatened to score frequently, but the pitchers settled nicely and held the platter free from dents. Fine fielding marked nearly every inning.

Tommy Sheehan was the batting demon yesterday, for he rapped out three hits, one of which was a two-bagger. Tommy got as far as third in the second inning on a hit and steal and Spiesman's poor throw, but he could not score.

George Ort was robbed of three hits yesterday. On his first two trips to the plate. Boardman made sensational stops of his hard grounders and got George at first on close decisions, while in the seventh Burns nipped George at first on what looked like a sure hit. In the ninth, Jimmy Rutherford nearly gave the fans heart fallure by misjudging and then catching Briggs' long fly with one hand. It was a nice catch, all right, but if he had muffed it the result might have been disastrous.

Up to the ninth Gregg had fanned 13, and when the first two men were disposed of otherwise than by the whiff route it looked as if he would not equal his last Sunday's record. However, Mickey La Longe was sent into bet for Baum with two men on the paths, and fell the 14th victim to the oxone route.

When Los Angeles downed the Seals for the third consecutive time they sent the furry ones out of first place in favor of Portland. Had Oakland won we would have had the better of the Wolverines by a few decimals.

In the fourth inning, Van Buren opened in the fourth inning, van buren opened with a bunt which Gregg threw sway, and Van took three bases. This looked dubious, but Gregg rallied, and after Heister went out at first the southpaw fanned 'Jeff' Perry and Boardman, leaving Van stranded at third.

Perry, the Senators' hardest hitter, was on Gregg's staff completely, for on four trips to the plate the husky left fielder struck out four times. During that time only one of the 12 strikes called on him was not offered at by the batter.

Briggs and Baum were also goats in Gregg's hands, for the southpaw fanned them both three times. Briggs, like Perry, swung on the ball each time, though Baum was called out once by McGreevy. Gregg has them guessing all
