

OREGON MILITIA TO LIVE ON PILLS

Troops to Be Put Through Hard Maneuvers on Highly Condensed Foods.

USE OF TABLETS TEST

On Result of Trial by Oregon Soldiers Government Will Reject or Adopt New Ration—Hard Day Expected to Close Work.

COSGROVE, Wash., Aug. 15.—(Special.)—With no other nourishment than a new emergency ration, the formula of which was recently secured by the United States Quartermaster Department, the two Oregon regiments will engage in the most arduous maneuver tomorrow of the whole field exercises. Officers of the regular establishment will go along to observe the results obtained by the new rations, which are in tablet form.

The rations are very compact, weigh only a few ounces and while they will hardly satisfy the immediate cravings of a hungry man for food, are represented as containing the maximum of nourishment. Ten minutes after eating one of the rations it is said that a hungry soldier will experience all the sensations of having eaten abundantly. Whether the new rations will be adopted by the United States Army depends in a large measure upon the results noted in the Oregon regiments.

Raw Troops to Be Tried. The maneuvers of tomorrow are to be arduous in the extreme. There will be an aggregate line of march of not less than 20 miles. Then there will be frequent marches, skirmish advances, reinforced marches, skirmish advances, reinforced marches and patrol duty, and every demand on the strength of the soldier that warfare makes. The experience of taking a pill to cure distressing ailments of the stomach will be an entirely new experience for the Oregonians. But it is the effect of the ration on comparatively unseasoned troops that the War Department is especially anxious to have observed.

That there are to be general maneuvers of an exciting and probably spectacular order is generally understood in camp tonight. But the nature of the campaign is known to none. In order that advance information can be obtained by none, General Maus will not formulate the problems until early in the morning. The necessary orders will be sent out immediately after reveille.

Regiments to Be Heavily Armed. The largest issue of paraffine bullets yet made was ordered early tonight. General Maus directed that all reserve ammunition held by the various commands be expended rather than stored in camp as previously arranged. The Oregon regiments will thus have approximately 50 rounds per man. This order is taken as meaning that the camp commander has in mind the most effective measure of the whole summer for tomorrow.

The Oregonians will have breakfast in camp and the menu includes the usual substantial Army foods. But for lunch and supper the men will take one or more of the new tablets and a drink of water. If the tablets prove a failure the troops will be given a heavy meal on returning to camp late in the day.

Mimic Battle Fought.

Today's programme was an interesting one and was attended by several spectacular engagements. There were two separate maneuvers, the Third and Fourth regiments being divided. The Third, under Lieutenant Colonel Poorman, marched seven miles southeast to Hillhurst and advanced through hostile country, being opposed by a hypothetical regiment and an actual regiment of the regular establishment. Colonel Poorman successfully accomplished the objects assigned to his command, taking up a strong defensive position in the enemy's domain.

Major W. W. Wilson's battalion of the Third, in making a reconnaissance of the Fourth Infantry's position, found it necessary to make an attack on the Southern Oregon command in order to develop their position. A lively brush followed, in which honors were evenly divided.

Colonel Toran was in command of the Fourth. The attacking force of the Third was directed by Lieutenant Hotchkiss.

Orders were issued today by Adjutant-General Pinzer for the return to Portland Wednesday morning of all Oregon troops, the prescribed period for field instruction having been served. The troops will depart on a special train of three sections, leaving Cosgrove at 5 o'clock. The trains are due at Portland early in the afternoon.

Lieutenant Stewart Injured.

Fewer cases of sickness have developed than in any previous maneuver. There were no minor accidents last night, when Lieutenant W. E. Stewart, of the ambulance company, rode into a wire fence while galloping through the woods in a race. He was thrown 20 feet, but escaped with a bad shaking up. He is temporarily confined to the field hospital.

Two former commanding officers of the regiment, General C. Summers and Judge C. U. Gantenbein, were up from Portland this afternoon. They were entertained by the officers' mess. After supper all the officers of the Oregon regiments visited brigade headquarters to pay their respects to General Maus. The Third Oregon band was taken along and a fine military programme was played.

ROCK QUARRY IS OPENED

Heavy Work Now Under Way on Building of Nehalem Jetty.

ASTORIA, Or., Aug. 15.—(Special.)—C. I. Houston has returned from Nehalem Bay, where he has a contract with the Government for the construction of the proposed jetty. His reports that a force of men is now at work opening the quarry and the construction of the trestle for the jetty is also in progress. About 1000 feet of this trestle is to be built before the dumping of rock will be commenced. Mr. Houston expects to be able to fire the first blast in the quarry in about five weeks and immediately afterward the hauling of rock will be started. The quarry is adjacent to the track of the Lytle road that is now in course of construction, so that the rock will be shipped by that route through a connection with the narrow-gauge road that leads on to the jetty trestle.

BOWERMAN CROWNS RULER

Attractive Programme Is Arranged for Week at Both Cities—Boat Races Will Be Big Feature Today—Big Attendance Assured.

MARSHFIELD, Or., Aug. 15.—(Special.)

The Coos Bay deep waterway carnival opened this afternoon and will continue for one week. There is promise of a large attendance. The Arnold Carnival Company has its show in Marshfield, and boat races and other events will take place in North Bend. The two cities joined in holding the carnival.

Special electrical illuminations have been arranged in Marshfield and both cities have been elaborately decorated. Miss Genevieve Tellefson was elected queen of the carnival and the maiden of honor was Miss Pearl Riggs and Miss Evelyn Mock.

The queen and her cortege took part in a parade at North Bend this evening and at 7:30 o'clock boarded a decorated float and were brought to Marshfield, while a display of fireworks was made all along the waterfront. The queen landed at Marshfield and on a throne built on the wharf, she was crowned by Acting Governor Jay Bowerman. Later in the evening she opened the carnival ball at the Eagles hall.

Tomorrow the boat races at North Bend will begin. The Pacer, a speedy boat from Portland, is entered in the races. One of the big features will be the slambake at North Bend Thursday.

The programme arranged provides for constant entertainment during the week.

SPITE FENCE FIGHT OFF

YACOLT RESIDENT WINS CONTEST OVER NORSE NEIGHBOR.

Clark County Commissioners Order Road to Be Built After Year's Struggle Between Two Men.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Aug. 15.—(Special.)—After having been coupled up by a high wire fence on three sides of his ten-acre tract near Yacolt for more than a year, being unable to get out except by climbing his neighbor's spite fence, C. H. Seeley is to secure relief from the County Commissioners, who have ordered a road to be built, 20 feet wide and 220 feet long. This will permit Seeley and his family to leave their home without being compelled to tear their clothes by climbing the wire fence put up by Jens Jorgensen, who owns the adjoining land.

A misunderstanding arose last year when Jorgensen tried to buy 2 1/2 acres of Seeley's land. Then Jorgensen warned Seeley he was going to build a fence around him, which would render his land useless and warned him not to trespass. In a letter to Seeley, Jorgensen wrote:

"I forbid you making your road anywhere out by the pond and through my millyard and as I cannot take you my trespass there yet, I will enforce my right with gun or any other remedy I see fit. You must not think you can make a fool of me and neither am I inclined to make a fool of myself. Jens Jorgensen."

The Commissioners directed the County Engineer to make an estimate of the damage that the proposed road will cause, and he reported $54.50. It is expected the action of the Commissioners today will cause a law suit.

Seeley has had a hard time living on his land and his children fear their clothes going to and from school besides being frightened by the threats of Jorgensen.

TRACE IS LOST OF FRECKLED OUTLAW

No One Has Caught Sight of Him for Two Days--Volunteers in Pursuit.

FOREST FIRES ARE MENACE

Settlers Fear Desperate Will Start Them if Hard Pressed--Hope of Reward Spurs Private Citizens On in Great Manhunt.

COLPAX, Wash., Aug. 15.—(Special.)—All traces have been lost of the outlaw who has held up shepherders and settlers in this vicinity while the sheriff's posse has been searching for him during the last two weeks or more. He has not been seen anywhere for the last two days.

The desperado is supposed to be in the woods near Emida, Idaho, but it has been his habit to call upon different camps at intervals of a few hours and demand food, while focusing his 30:30 rifle on and hurling boasts of murders and robberies he has committed, at the heads of his hosts. This sociability he has denied himself for 48 hours and the settlers are more alarmed than ever. They fear that he will start forest fires when hard pressed by pursuers. Already the smoke from the Idaho forest fires makes breathing difficult in the woods near Emida.

Citizens Hope for Reward. Although the officers are still resting, several parties of private citizens are in the woods, stalking the freckled-faced game. They are spurred on by the hope of securing the reward of $1000 for the capture of Dell McConnell's murderer, and the speckled outlaw has repeatedly boasted that the crime was one of his.

Deputy Sheriffs Roberts and Cole, who have been resting here since Saturday, have reorganized their energy, exhausted by their two weeks' fruitless chase of the robber, and are ready to resume as soon as they receive encouraging news from the volunteers already in the field.

Receptions Are Planned. At various camps and cabins occupants are keeping close guard, planning to capture the desperado when next he visits them. Other settlers, not caring for the strain of constant alertness and remembering the fugitive's repeated assertions that he will kill anyone who interferes with him, say they will not molest him if he appears.

John Heitman, a pioneer woodsman and one of the sheriff's posse of last week, who was robbed of his revolver, hunting knife, new shoes and groceries by the highwayman, is of the opinion that he has committed suicide in the woods. Few others share this belief, however.

Most people think that the outlaw is trekking through the timber as calmly and as confidently as he has since his spectacular robberies and impudent boasts first aroused terror in the hearts of settlers and started the manhunt. He has bacon and flour, a revolver, a rifle and plenty of ammunition. They are of the opinion that he will make dramatic entrance to some camp or other within the course of a few hours, visits them. The two cities joined in holding the carnival.

Special electrical illuminations have been arranged in Marshfield and both cities have been elaborately decorated. Miss Genevieve Tellefson was elected queen of the carnival and the maiden of honor was Miss Pearl Riggs and Miss Evelyn Mock.

Companion of Thief Killed by Rancher Gives Up.

SHOOTING HELD JUSTIFIED

Death of Demose Strikes Terror to Heart of Kuhl and for Days He Is Afraid to Surrender, Fearing He Would Be Killed.

KLAMATH FALLS, Or., Aug. 15.—Bernard E. Kuhl is being held in the County Jail here awaiting the arrival of officers from Lake County, where he will be taken on a charge of horse-stealing. His companion, Al T. Demose, is lying in a grave in the forest at the foot of the mountains beyond Dairy, having been shot and killed by one of a posse of ranchers. The ranchers in the vicinity of Silver Lake had been suspicious of the two men for several weeks, and the first of last week they announced that a number of horses were missing, and, not finding the two men at their camp, they started after them. Taking two Indians as guides, they trailed the man 125 miles across the country, coming up with them at the foot of the mountains near Dairy. They crossed the mountains shortly after dark and saw the missing horses in a pasture, where the two men had evidently put them. The fugitives, however, had camped some distance away and were not noticed. Elisha Brewer and one other of the posse guarded the horses, and in a short time Demose was seen approaching. Brewer called on him to halt, but instead of doing so, he started to run. Brewer again cried halt, but Demose continued to run and at the same time made a motion as though he was drawing a revolver from a holster. Demose was evidently seeking the shelter of a tree, and Brewer, knowing that he was a desperate man and that, if he succeeded in getting in the forest, he would probably kill one or more of the posse if he did have a weapon with him, again called upon him to halt, and the command not being obeyed, fired, the ball placing Demose's heart.

When the stricken man fell his outstretched hands touched the trunk of the tree behind which he was attempting to seek shelter. Kuhl fled into the hills and remained there until Deputy Sheriff John Shallock and other officers who had been summoned from Klamath Falls arrived. Late in the afternoon he came to where the officers were and surrendered to Deputy Sheriff Shallock, with whom he is personally acquainted, saying that he was afraid to surrender before, fearing that he would be shot by the posse.

An inquest was held over the body of the slain horse thief, and Mr. Brewer was found to be justified in killing Demose. A coffin was made and the body of Demose was buried in the woods at the foot of the mountains over the night before. Demose was about 35 years of age, while Kuhl is 24.
