Desperado Wears Gray Wig and Fierce Black Beard When Demanding Food.

POSSES ARE IN PURSUIT

Indian Is Held Up and Relieved of 25 Cents by Freckle-Faced Outlaw—Manhunters Organized for Determined Chase.

COLFAX, Wash., Aug. 17.—(Special.)—Disguised with wig and beard, the freckle-faced desperado who has kept the Coeur d'Alene posse at bay for three weeks, is being pursued near the Catholic mission of Desmet, 12 miles south of Tekoa, Wash.

Armed with the 38-caliber revolver taken from John Haidman near Emida, Idaho, the self-confessed murderer demanded food from Charles Elliott, a settler near Desmet, Tuesday. The fugitive came from the underbrush and in disguise was discovered at once by Elliott, who was forced to feed him at the point of the gun. While eating, he kept his revolver in hand and had another revolver in his pocket.

Desperado is Fatigued.

Elliott said the desperado showed great fatigue and his clothing was badly worn from climbing through the underbrush and timber. His wig was of gray, resembling the hair from a horse's tail, while his beard was black, looking like bear hide. Both beard and wig were crude ruses.

Elliott is positive the man is the much-wanted desperado who has been sought by the officers from several counties with horses and bloodhounds for more than two weeks.

Officers Are Notified.

On account of his family's fright and the bold appearance of the man he did not attempt arresting him, but notified the officers at once. The fugitive did not speak of the McConnell murder at Colfax or boast of the Oregon girl he murdered, as he had before doing during his visits. On leaving the Elliott home, he held up Indians underbrush and Nechan on the Sanders-Desmet road, relieving the Indian of 25 cents. The Indian rode into Desmet greatly alarmed.

Lewis Bishop and son, with John Davenport, also Indians, met the man, who kept his hand on his revolver but did not attempt to hold them up. The Indians and Elliott's descriptions tally with all former ones. After meeting the Indians, the outlaw disappeared in the underbrush.

Search is Fruitless.

Ex-Sheriff Joe Canutt, with City Marshal George Strange, Dr. Nelson, F. J. Gill and E. Williams, went by automobile to Desmet and traced the fugitive until dark. They returned to Tekoa, where a posse is being organized tonight. Deputy Sheriffs Cole and Roberts will reach Tekoa tonight and 20 men have volunteered to start a man-hunt, endeavoring to end the terror through the Desmet district, if possible.

Ex-Sheriff Canutt will aid the officers. He believes the man can be captured near Desmet. He thinks the 30-36 rifle, with bacon and flour, have been carried near Desmet. He traced the fugitive a mile through underbrush and returned on account of darkness.

No attempt will be made to use bloodhounds, on account of the dense underbrush.

The fugitive fooled the picket guard left near Emida by the officers, who were forced to rest. He doubled on his tracks to Sanders and Desmet.

The settlers will aid the officers in the man-hunt, leaving Desmet Thursday to surround him.

SEASIDE IS INTERESTED

Robert Gibson, Who Married Mrs. A. D. Marshall, Well-Known Here.

SEASIDE, Or., Aug. 17.—(Special.)—News that Robert Gibson, who has lived here for the past few years, was married in Portland on August 10, to Mrs. A. D. Marshall, wife of the late A. D. Marshall, a prominent real estate dealer who committed suicide at his family residence in Portland, July 25, was received with interest here.

Mr. Marshall rented a cottage here early this Spring and lived here with his family until a month ago, when they returned to Portland. Gibson, supposedly a great friend of Marshall's, visited at that cottage often, and amused the children by taking them to the picture shows and was often seen in company with Mrs. Marshall.

Gibson at one time worked in the printing office of the Signal Publishing Company here, but resigned his position more than a year ago through some difficulty over wages. Since that time he has worked at odd jobs around town.

Mr. Marshall complained while here of his falling health and fever heavily, but never intimated that he would commit suicide. Gibson was seen with him at several times.

Mrs. Gibson visited here a few days after her first husband's death, and was seen numerous times in company with Gibson. She remained here two days, and then returned to Portland.

BEAR TRES LAWYER

WHITE SALMON RESIDENT FINDS SELF IN FIX.

M. J. Van Vorst, White Exercising Hounds, Is Confronted by Wild Animal—Dogs Are Killed.

WHITE SALMON, Wash., Aug. 17.—(Special.)—Up a tree and without a gun, an angry mother bear at the foot of it, two of his dogs dead and the other on the run, such was the predicament in which M. J. Van Vorst, a White Salmon lawyer, found himself yesterday.

Van Vorst went out to his 40-acre ranch near Gladstone, where he has three valuable bear pups along to give them a run. Tiring of the ranch, he wandered into the tall timber where he and soon encountered a couple of husky cubs. He was enjoying urging the young bear hounds, on which he was building great hopes for future sport, onto the cubs, when Mrs. Bruin suddenly lumbered into the game and the scene changed from comedy to high tragedy. Two of the dogs were quickly put out of commission, and the mother bear came in a sapping in the middle of the pack, and in his uncomfortable position for some time, while the old mother finally gathered her young to her and lumbered silently back into the woods.

Accompanied by E. Fish, of Husum, a well-known bear hunter, and other hunters, Van Vorst went back after the bear today and after a short hunt found the game and mother and cubs were killed.

CANDIDATES SHUT OUT BY PROTESTS

Lafferty Demands That C. J. Reed's Name Be Excluded From Pamphlets.

WORD PETITION IS ISSUE

Secretary of State's Office Interprets Law to Mean That Petition Signed by Electors Must Be Filed by August 14.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 17.—(Special.)—Many candidates who had to have a place in the pamphlets under the corrupt practices act will now find themselves crowded out as a result of two remonstrances which have been filed with the office of the Secretary of State. One of these remonstrances is from T. B. McDevitt, an attorney of Portland, and the other from A. W. Lafferty, candidate for Congress, from the Second District. McDevitt's protest is general in its nature, while Lafferty's is directed against Charles J. Reed, also a candidate for Congress from the Second District.

McDevitt declares that the Secretary of State should fully comply with the interpretation of the Hundley act which names August 14 as the last day on which petitions may be filed in order to allow the candidates to have space in the pamphlets. "The word 'petition,' as used in section 2 of the corrupt practices act, very plainly means a petition signed by the requisite number of electors to entitle a party to a place on the ballot. If the word is interpreted otherwise, it leads to the absurdity of filing the official pamphlet with arguments in behalf of the candidates whose nominations are never completed and who have no right on the official ballot."

Protests Are Recognized.

The whole question all along has seemed to hinge on the interpretation of the word "petition," and the Secretary of State's office has given it the same construction as that laid down in the letter of protest from the Portland group. But Chief Clerk H. H. Corey states, regardless of this interpretation, he had taken the stand that he would allow candidates to file until such time as there was a protest, which in a remonstrance has been received he will act accordingly, and none of those who have filed their petitions late will be given a chance to appear on the ballot unless mandamus proceedings are started and the question at issue is decided in the courts. This procedure seems very likely, as there seems to be a wide diversity of opinion as to whether the word "petition" refers to the petition signed by the requisite number of electors, or whether it refers to the petition for nomination which has commonly been referred to as the declaration of intention.

Judiciary Also in Doubt.

Even members of the judiciary have expressed themselves as doubtful as to the interpretation of this word. The conditions as at present proceedings of some nature are looked forward to by the Secretary of State's office finally to determine what course shall be pursued at elections hereafter.

Lafferty, in his objection to allowing Reed a place in the pamphlet, desires information from the Secretary of State's office as to what steps he may pursue in restraining Reed from using the privilege extended under the act of those who file their petitions within the prescribed limit. He states it would be an injustice to all candidates concerned to allow Reed a place in the pamphlet in this manner.

In case the original interpretation naming August 14 as the last day for filing is adhered to, there will be a radical difference in the size of the pamphlets as in many cases the candidates have been tardy. Numerous inquiries have been received from all over the state relative to legislative candidates who are candidates for office that will represent one county, but at the same time come under the classification of a state office.

Since it was claimed recently in the Oregonian that such candidates will be allowed a place for their picture and complimentary matter relative to their candidacy, many of them desire to take advantage of this fact and have them there are legislative candidates who will represent but one county, they are supposed to file their declarations with the County Clerks of their respective counties. The matter for the pamphlets and the illustration are supposed to be sent to the office of the Secretary of State, accompanied by a certificate from the County Clerk that the petitions necessary were filed on or before August 14. If this is done, space will be allowed them; otherwise they will be excluded. Remittances, as required by the statute, of course must accompany such matter.

YIELD OF HOPS LIGHT

OREGON CROP IS ESTIMATED AT 95,000 TO 105,000 BALES.

Some Buyers Are of Opinion That Small Burs Will Not Mature Until Rains Begin.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 17.—(Special.)—After making a four days' trip through practically all of the Willamette Valley hop yards of any importance, Joseph Harris, a local hop dealer, has reached the conclusion that the yield this year will be lighter and of inferior grade than last year's. He estimates the total crop at 95,000 to 105,000 bales. This estimate, he says, is somewhat higher than some of the estimates which are made. He declares certain buyers contend that the crop will not mature until there is rain in the valley. After talking with many careful growers, he is of the opinion that they will be successful in securing a good crop. Indications he asserts, all point to the best quality in years and that the picking will be cleaner than ever before seen in this section. Numerous letters and telegrams which have been received in Salem throughout the summer, urging the growers to take particular care with their picking, are having their effect on the minds of the growers. In the opinion of Mr. Harris, and he believes the growers are becoming more and more satisfied that Oregon hops will receive only scant attention in any market if more care is not taken in getting a clean pick.

"I find that the upland yards have suffered somewhat from drought and that the hops are not getting the moisture they should. There is practically no vermin, however, and the yards are cleaner than I have seen in years. The market is now very quiet and there is a little demand for good quality of the crop of 1909 at 12 cents. There are a few orders here for contracts but very little business is being done."

GOATS DRAW LINE AT SOAP

They Eat Everything Else at Ranch While Owner Is Away.

ALBANY, Or., Aug. 17.—(Special.)—The popular belief that goats will eat anything has been shattered by the experience of William Toner, for many years express messenger on the Albany-Yaquina run on the Corvallis & Eastern Railroad. They may eat tin cans, old clothes and cordwood but they draw the line at soap.

Toner has been camping for a few weeks on his ranch just east of Toledo and has a number of goats there. They have been killing off all small vegetation on his uncleared land, eating leaves, bark and twigs off the small trees. They ate everything they could reach in the field in which they were placed and one day when the Toner family were away from the ranch they invaded the camp. They started in to eat everything not covered up, disposing of various kinds of vegetables, a box of crackers and other supplies. But they stopped on a bar of soap. One goat took a bite off the end of the bar but he didn't finish it.
