Beavers Break Even With Oakland on Series, Thus Far, by 3-to-2 Victory.

GARRETT PERFORMS WELL

However, McCredie Takes No Chances on Losing Game in Ninth and Substitutes Gregg, Who Disposes of Commuters.

Portland evened matters up with the Daks yesterday, and incidentally retained the leadership of the league by scoring a 1-to-2 decision over Wolverton's speedy contingent from across San Francisco Bay. It was a game fairly full of thrills. At least, it was so to the big bunch of fair fans who thronged the stands. The "fans" simply went daffy about Jesse Garrett. With whom he seems to be a red-hot favorite.

Garrett pitched a fine game, though McCredie was on the job with the der-rick mighty quick in the ninth, when Cameron opened the inning with a safe hit, for Hig Mac chased Jesse to the clubhouse and sent Vean Gregg on the mound to dispose of the ambitious Oak-landers, who needed one run to the the more. Gregg has their number to a landers, who needed one run to the the score. Gregg has their number to a nicety, for he fanned Harry Wolverton, and Cutshaw ended the melee by hitting into a double play, which ending was most propitious and sent the crowd home happy in the thought of Portland still occupying first place.

Tyler Christian started to heave for the Oakland bunch, and in the third inning Wolverton decided to switch pitchers. The Oakland leader tried to substitute Moser for Christian when but two balls and two strikes had been but two balls and two strikes had been but two balls and two strikes had been called on George Ort, the first Beaver up in the inning, but McGreevy main-tained that the batter must be disposed of before a change of pitchers could take place, and in this ruling McGreevy and Fielder Jones differ materially. Wolverton also differed, but mildly, and Wolverton also differed, but mildly, and Christian wound up by walking Ort. Moser then went on the hill, and a couple of errors filled the bases. Olson fanned. Bill Rapps laced a low liner a mile a minute toward left field, but Welverton flagged it before it touched the ground, but in se doing he fell down and crawling to third base before Ort could recover from his astonishment at the catch, the Oakland leader completed a double play unassisted. However, that fancy stunt only delayed the Portland scores temporarily.

layed the Portland scores temporarily for the Mackmen flirted with the reg-leter in the fourth inning. Oakland had ister in the fourth inning. Cakland had scored one run in the first half of this inning on Bill Hogan's infield hit. Cameron's sacrifice and Wolverton's single, and this run loomed up largely until the Beavers got husy and chased over two in their half. Gus Fisher started it with a single to left, and stole second. Casey flew to Maggart, and Sheehan's out put Fisher on third. Billy Speas then beat out a bounder to Wares and Fisher tide the score. Speas then stole second, and scored when George Ort sent a slashing double to the fils poole.

In the sixth, Portland put another run across. Casey walked. Sheehar flew to Thomas, and Speas beat out another hit. Out failed to come through on a hit-and-run signal and Casey was on a lit-and-run signal and Casey was out at third. Speas taking second. Ort. hit a slow bounder to Wares and heat the low tosa to first, Cameron dropping the ball, and in the meantime. Speas dashed over the plate. When Cameron tossed to catch Speas. Ort darted for second and managed to get back to first in safety. He was forced at second by Garrett.

Oakland put over a "gift" run in the eventh. With Wolverton and Cutshaw on los. Garrett passed Swander, and Pisher had a passed ball on the fourth one, and loafed in fielding it against the stand, which mistake allowed Swan-der to take second instead of being held at first. Thomas then hit toward der to take second instead of being held at first. Thomas then hit toward right field and the ball was fielded by Rapps, but Garrett muffed the toss to first and Swander tailled.

Cameron was the first Oaklander up in the ninth, and he stammed a long single to the flagpole, which fast fielding by Buddy Ryan prevented being a double. At this danger signal, McCredie tied a can to Garrett and sent in Vean Gregg, who has the goats of the Oakland Club. Gregg opened by fan-Oakland Club. Gregg opened by fan-ning Harry Wolverton, and when Cutning Harry Wolverton, and when Cut-shaw hit to Gregg, the big southpaw tossed him out at first, and Bill Rapps heaved to third ahead of Frank Carroll. who was running for Cameron, and tried to go from first to third en infield tap. ## LINERS TO CARRY CEMENT

Rose City Brings First Shipment in Competition With Schooners.

Business that may grow to large proportions, and incidentally cut into trade exclusively enjoyed in the past by steam echooners, is the transportation of cement for Cattleria by the Heart echooners, is the transportation of cement from Southern California by the Harri-man consiters. The first lot will arrive on the steamer Rose City, which yesterday sailed from San Francisco. She loaded to tons of the material at San Pedro and it is expected that consignments will be dispatched on each steamer of the fleet. The five-day schedule maintained may secure for the regular vessels a lion's share of the cement trade, though representatives of the line assert that the shipments serve only as ballast from San Pedro to San Francisco, because busi-ness in general cargo has not reached proportions that can be accommodated out of San Pedro. Every steam schooner ar-riving from the south brings cement, most of it being from San Francisco, but it being from San Francisco, but uthern California has contributed many cargoes in supplying the local demand, which reaches about 15,000 sacks daily.
