J. J. HILL GAINSELS CONSERVING SENSE

No Real Reason Exists for Abating Confidence in Business Future.

FEAR IS WITHOUT BASIS

Railroad Man Quotes With Approval Sentiment That Capital is Absurdly Foolish in Doubting Ultimate Result.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 13.—(Special.)—James J. Hill thinks the National Conservation Congress, which was in session here last week, overlooked one of the most important things to be considered—namely, common sense. In an interview today, in which he discussed business conditions, he told how business is suffering because of fears which many men have, and said that this lack of confidence—"a senseless lack," he called it—is entirely unwarranted.

Men Resemble Sheep. "It's just like a flock of sheep. If one starts to run every sheep in that flock runs, even if they die for it."

Capital Requires Stability. "In the disestablishment of credit we find the most obvious cause of the prevailing depression. The link that connects labor with capital is not broken, but we may not deny that it is less cohesive than it should be, or than conditions warrant. Financially the country is stronger than ever before in its history."

Reason Begins to Prevail. "But capital is notoriously timid. In the present instance, too, it is absurdly foolish. No decision of any court can permanently impair any so-called vested interest. Confiscation is undreamed of as compared with only a few years ago."
