CONSERVATION OF POWER MUST WAIT

Objection of Theorists Will Defeat Action at Short Congress Session.

STATE CONTROL IS ISSUE

Borah Is Likely to Be Leader of Those Who Support Western View East Will Not Abide Judgment of Those Affected.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington. Sept. 14 .- Congress may attempt further conservation legislation next Winter and some bills urged by the Administration may become laws, but there is little chance that any measure looking to the so-called "conmeasure looking to the so-called col-servation of water power" can be spassed in the limited three months of the closing session of the filst Con-igness, for there is too much diversity of opinion as to how water powers should be "conserved."

Wrapped up in the question of water power conservation is the intricate, if not delicate problem of state versus National control. This same issue is more or less involved on other plusses bof the conservation question, but in no other instance is the same issue so clearly defined, or is public sentiment so sharply divided. For, under the provisions of the Federal Constitution, the control of the waters is vested in the states and in the judgment of many states, and in the judgment of many leading men, regardless of party, this constitutional right of the states must be recognized in any attempt to 'conserve' the water powers, which is nothing more nor less tran utilizing the flowing waters. whose regulation is specifically re posed in the states.

Roosevelt for National Control. At the conservation congress at St. Paul a majority of the delegates went on record in favor of National, regulation of water powers. Theodore Roose velt and Gifford Pinchot both advo-cated National control. President Taft cated National control. President Taft did not share their view, and while inclining towards state control, announced that he would leave the determination to Congress. James J. Hill, however, one of the greatest thinkers of the times, and perhaps one of the most practical of all Americans, came out flat-footed in favor of state control especially as to water powers.

especially as to water powers. There will be no more unanimity of opinion in the Federal Congress next Winter than was evidenced at the conwinter than was evidenced at the con-servation congress at St. Paul. There will be big men on both sides of the question, men who have actually studied the problem and given it seri-ous consideration. The great bulk of ous consideration. The great bulk of the membership will know little about it, and many of them will have no con-cern whatsoever. But among those who are posted will be found leaders unwilling to allow such an important question to be railroaded through Con-gress without full and deliberate conideration, and these men will probably insist upon postponement until full op-portunity for debate is afforded in the long session more than a year hence.

West Agrees With Hill.

Conservation only as it applies to the Sr., of Gresham. The executive commit-west and can be made a revenue-pro-ducer for the Federal Gavernment, will combat the Western view.

J. D. Gordon to take the place of C. L.

ocombat the Western view.

It is but natural that the West should resent the effort of such Easterners to rob the Western states of a power conferred upon them by the Constitu-tion; but it is even more natural that the West should oppose the attempt of the East to impose a tax upon users of Western water powers, and expend the money derived from such taxation in the improvement of harbors, tia public improvements in the states of Borah to Lead Forces.

In the fight for state control of waterbowers, Senator Borah, of Idaho, is like-jowers, Senator Borah, of Idaho, is like-by to be conspicuous, and probably lead the Western forces, for the Idaho Senator has already gone on record as be-ing unequivocally opposed to the taxa-tion of the West for the benefit of the East, and since he has demonstrated his qualifications as a fighter his colleagues will likely defer to him in making the washault upon any water-power bills that may be presented by believers in Pin-chotism. Sensior Jones of Washington will be a most active opponent of the Pinchot idea, as he has always been, and other assistance will come from such men as Carter, Montana; Nels Minnesota: Warren and Clark, Wyoming, and Hughes, Colorado. Senator Cham-berlain, of Oregon, and Senator Dixon, of Montana, probably will take the Pinchot end of this question, and advocate National rather than state control. wise the West is likely to remain silent. Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, a theo-rist pure and simple on such questions as conservation, is likely to assume leader-ship of the cause of Pinchotism. He broke into the fight at the Conservation Congress, discussed the questions in-volved from a purely theoretical stand-point, reflected the information that had been supplied him by Gifford Pinchot, and thus assailed the West on a question of direct interest only to the West. Beveridge has long been a Pinchot partisan and is the most likely selection for leader of the Pinchot forces when the conser-vation fight opens.

Early Action Unfavorable.

Some of the insurgent Senators, who passed; they will have precedence over all other legislation, and there will be little opportunity to consider other legisto which there is serious obje-

The question of water-power legislation could, of course, he settled next Winter if the theoretical East would abide by the judgment of the West, where conservation is to be practiced, but there is little possibility that the theorists will be willing to surrender their opinions, and it is certain the West will not submet to Eastern domination of this character without a fight. Hence, there is every reason to expect that the water-power question will be saved up for solution in the long session of the Sixty-second Congress, beginning in December, 1811. PORTLAND DAYWINS

Stockyards Are Criticised. President Bailey in his annual address took occasion to censure the Portland Union Stockyards and was supported by several of the stockmen present. He de-clared that the stock market was in much worse condition since the establishment of the yards and that competition had been entirely eliminated. He said this was so much so that stockmen were now compelled to consign all stock to the Portland yards, as no buyers now ever go to the country, and only one bid was

The remarks by the retiring president were in a large measure brought about by a letter from Manager Lively, of the yards, in which he said the stockmen noist give the yards credit for bringing about better market conditions. The opening of the new Baker The-ater, which will take place Saturday evening, promises to be an event of much importance, and the list of sub-scribers for seats has grown to such proportions already that Manager Baker is beginning to wonder if his capa-cious new playhouse is going to hold them all. Night and day the wellknown manager has worked for the past three or four weeks, driving the task to completion, and when the doors open at 7:30 tomorrow evening the results of his efforts to give Portland new and handsome fireproof theater will prove a most delightful surprise and revelation to the hundreds of the city's most prominent personages who will pass through them to witness the

The number of persons who attneded the show last night demonstrated that the interest of the public in the Exposthe interest of the public in the Expos-ition has im no way deminished.

The pie-eating contest of last night was especially comical, among the con-testants being two little chocolate-col-ored lads, who endeavored to get away with a piece of cream pie in the shortest time possible. In their haste the pickaninnies left a goodly amount of the cream on their faces, which made a striking contrast against the natural color of their skin.

The "Mysterious Woman With the Red Mask" gave some Spanish dances. An unusually good musical programme was rendered by Rosebrook's orchestra.

The center of considerable attraction was the "tomatoes growing on a po-tate plant." This shows a tall tomate vine which has been grafted on the rots of a potate plant containing a number of potatoes. The grafting was done by a local florist, and is a complete success.

This afternoon there will be another baby show. Arrangements are being made by th emanagement to care for all the babies that may be brought. Babies from 3 months to 3 years will be eligible to enter the contest. Tonight will be Fraternal night. To the best appearing man in the uniform of his lodge, a prize will be given. Tomorrow afternoon will be be Chitdren' day, and tomorrow night has been set aside as Union night. The feature of the evening will be a tug-of-war.
