Economy of Administration, Equality of Taxation and Control of Corporations Put First in Address of Acceptance.

Dr. Wilson was nominated on the first ballot and received 40 more votes than was necessary to nominate him. He had 747 votes to 373 for Katzenbach and 206 for Silber.

The platform adopted is in line with the Democratic platform of three years ago except that it was more specific in advocacy of reform measures, including the conferring of rate-making power upon the present public utilities commission.

Three Issues Lead.

Dr. Wilson accepted the nomination and made an address which was highly pleasing to the delegates. After dis-cussing the platform, Dr. Wilson said. "There are three great questions be-fore the President, reorganization and economy in Administration, equalizaof taxation and the control of cor-

In concluding Dr. Wilson said:

Utah Convention Adopts State-Wide Plank After Long Fight.

He paid particular attention to the Muskegee town and his own removal from the Democratic National committee, both of which he said originated in political moves on the part of Roosevelt for persecution only. Commenting on principles announced by Roosevelt in the latter's Kansas City speech, the Governor endeavored to show the former President insincere, and said he had suffered an entire change of thought since his Presidential term ex-

"Is it building for the welfare of ou country when leaders of public thought breed lack of respect or encourage con-tempt for our great institutions?" He said Roosevelt had stopped prosecu-

Commission to protect Paul Morton. He asserted that H. M. Daugherty, a Republican lawyer of Columbus, was indicted with him in town lot cases, but prosecution was stopped by Roosevelt because Daugherty was prominent in the party.

Closing, the Governor said: "Where he asserts his principles to be clean, impartial and of the square-deal nature, other facts heretofore related show the certainty of his change of policy in those particulars."

Senator From Maine Is Being Urged Not to Retire.

LOSS OF PRESTIGE FEARED

State Has Been Blg Factor in Congress and Does Not Like Idea of Taking Back Seat-Cry of Bluff Will Go Up.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Sept. 15.—Word comes from the State of Maine that friends of Senstor Hale are urging him to reconsider his purpose to retire from Congress at the close of his present term. The attitude of the Maine Senator is not known; that is to say, he has had no public announcement to make since he made hie retire ment to make since he mane he retirement announcement hast Spring.

It will be recalled that Senator Hale, of Maine, and Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, announced, almost simultaneously during the past ression, that they would not be candidates for re-election, but would retire from public life upon the expiration of their present terms, March 4. 1911. Since that announcement it has been generally believed that the two New England Senators were sincers.

Friends May Cause Trouble.

But the activity of Senator Hale's But the activity of senator falses friends in Maine may lead to trouble for the Republicans in the Fall campaign, especially if the Senator allows himself to be persuaded from his original course, and consents to again run for re-election to the Senate.

For if Senator Hale, after solemnly declaring his intention to retire, turns around and makes another try for the Senate, the cry will go up that Senator Aldrich was only bluffing when he announced his purpose to quit public life. And the minute the country thinks Aldrich intends to change his mind, there will be trouble. Addrich, that instant, will become a campaign issue, and one that will be difficult for the Republican party to carry. Hale, on the other hand, is not of himself an issue, and his change of purpose would only be dangerous because it would create the impression that Aldrich also wanted to "come back." to the Senate.

Hale Is Big Man Today.

It is but natural that some of the It is but natural that some of the Maine Republicans should urge Senator Hale to reconsider his purpose, for Hale is today the biggest man in the Maine delegation, chairman of the mighty committee on appropriations, and one of the big leaders of the Senate. Senator Frye, his colleague, is feeling his advanced years, and is no longer an active representative of the state. There is no Congressman today from Maine who has achieved distinction in the House of Representatives, so that Hale is really Representatives, so that Hale is really the only member of the delegation who gives the state unusual standing in Con-

Maine, though a little state, has been accustomed to play an important part in Congress. Not so long since, when both Senators Hale and Frye were in their prime, Maine had a delegation in the House that was known the country over. That delegation consisted of Thomas B. Reed, Speaker; Nelson Dingley, chairman of the ways and means committee, and author of the Dingley tariff law; Seth Milliken, head of the postoffice committee and C. A. Boutelle, chairman of the

In those days Maine was strictly "or the map"; it was a factor in Congress, and it was heard from on all occasions. Naturally, with all its big men gone, but one, it hates to see the last one go. And yet should Hale declare his pur-pose to seek re-election, the cry of Aldrichism would most certainly be reembarrassment of the Re-
