INCENDIARY IS WANTED.—Search is being made by the police detectives for a supposedly demented firebug, who has made five successive efforts to destroy buildings in this city, four of them being made upon North End lodging houses, and three upon the Dewey House. The theory that the fires were set by someone to satisfy a grudge against the Dewey House, is refuted by the fact that one attempt was made to burn another house, and that another fire was set by an incendiary at a brick plant on the East Side. The detectives will look for a demented man arrested two months ago, after he had thrown his blazing socks, soaked with kerosene, from a window in the Rheinpfalz Hotel. He was committed to the county court but has since disappeared.

NEW SUNNYSIDE PASTOR PREACHES.—Rev. W. H. Frye, who has been transferred to the Western Oregon Conference and who will be sent to Sunnyside Methodist Church by the conference which meets September 20, occupied the pulpit of the Sunnyside Church yesterday morning and night. At the morning services Rev. Mr. Frye said that he would deliver his introductory sermon after he had been regularly appointed to the charge. It is considered certain the new pastor will have the cordial support of the membership in his effort to complete the building. There are no debts on the new building, so far as the work has gone, and $14,000 will finish it according to the plans.

BRIDGE TENDER INJURED BY AUTO.—A. M. Quigley, an extra man who was acting as gate-tender at the east end of the Burnside bridge draw Saturday night, was struck by an automobile and badly bruised. His hand was hurt and he was cut about the face and body. Quigley had just opened the south gate of the draw and had started to open the north gate when the automobile darted forward, running into him and knocking him down. Engineer Stutsman says the arrangement of the gates at the east end places the gate-tenders there in constant danger, and he will try to have the gates changed to make the job safer.

COUPLE QUARREL ON STREET.—Cries for police attracted a crowd to the corner of Second and Jefferson streets early last night, when J. Howe found his wife with another man. Howe tried to persuade the woman to return to him, but he was met with fistic opposition. Goaded by the crowd, the woman lambasted Howe. An officer brought the disturbance to an end and escorted the principals to the police station. During the excitement the woman's companion made his escape.

MISSING HORSE AND BUGGY FOUND.—Horse, harness and buggy, taken from in front of the Electric Building September 13, have been found at Oregon City. The rig belongs to W. H. Phelps, an employe of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company. It was taken after being left hitched at the Electric building for a few minutes. Saturday the horse strayed into Oregon City. A search in the vicinity brought to light the buggy and harness.

TONIGHT DEAN C. U. GANTENBEIN and Judge H. H. Northup will give the opening lectures to the students of the first and third classes of the Department of Law of the University of Oregon. These lectures will be delivered at the Courthouse where the law school sessions are held. Classes are larger this year than usual.

SANDY GRANGE TO HAVE FAIR.—The Sandy Grange will hold its annual "harvest festival" fair next Friday, September 23. Many prizes have been provided by business men and bicycle races and broncho riding will be features. The horticultural and agricultural display will later be sent to the Gresham fair.

MANY SEE SHOW UNLOAD

SMALL BOYS "HELP" EMPLOYES OF WILD WEST.

Cook Tent Is First Erected on "Lot" and Performers Enjoy Tempting Sunday Breakfast.

Full 15,000 persons yesterday witnessed the curious spectacles attendant upon the disembarking of Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East shows from their special cars brought to Portland over the Northern Pacific tracks and subsequent erection of the combination's "canvas city" upon the Twenty-sixth-street show grounds, where two performances will be held today and as many tomorrow.

Most active among the great throngs of spectators were the small boys. The lads were awaiting the arrival of the train long before it pulled into the city. Later they appeared on the show grounds enthusiastic in their proffers of aid.

It proved to be a wholly good-natured crew of "razor backs," "rough-necks" and canvasmen, and some hundreds of the boys were permitted to "help" to their hearts' content and expenditure of much unnecessary energy.

First on the "lot" were the engineer who supervises the locations of the numerous tents and the chief surgeon who accompanies this army of amusement folk. The man of medicine stood before the red ticket wagon, surrounded by appliances for the repairing of human injuries and the amelioration of pain. Fortunately none was reported on the sick list.

The speed with which the "cookhouse," or dining tent, always the first tent to be erected, went up excited much wonder. The seven-ton portable range early was sent rolling to the show grounds, followed by a steamer, which supplies the heat for the coffee, tea and cocoas served the hungry show people. Then came the materials for the cookhouse, which was put together within half an hour. Within 40 minutes of the time of driving the initial stake the cookhouse was complete.

A very democratic crowd of diners assembled in the cookhouse, where some 50 waiters attended upon their wants. First of all was Major Gordon W. Lillie (Pawnee Bill), the business head of the Wild West-Far East. Colonel William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) was the only member of the "aristocrats" of the show who was absent, he being a guest of the newspaper men along with Admiral Robley D. Evans.

One of the sights that especially won the admiration of the visitors was the great cavalcade of horsemen and women. In it were breezy cowboys from the rapidly decreasing wild and remote districts of the United States, Indians, Mexican lariat throwers, Cossacks, pretty, fresh-faced young girls from the Arizona ranches, Nubians, Arabs, Kurds and other strange people. All were clad in native costume and the flash and blend of colors as the hundreds of riders dashed upon the grounds added a picturesqueness to the scene as pleasing as most scheduled features of a regular performance.

Some 50 or 60 solemn little burros were the delight of the children, particularly the small girls, who were there in abundance. Being excessively tame and gentle they were permitted to roam at large behind the space reserved for the big three-sided arena tent and were promptly impounded by the juveniles, who were allowed to romp with the quaint animals at pleasure.

"DRY" OREGON PREDICTED

Civic Chautauqua Speakers Denounce Home Rule Bill.

Denunciation of the Oregon Home Rule Association and its methods was the keynote of the address delivered yesterday afternoon in Hawthorne Park Tabernacle in the meeting held under the auspices of the Civic Federation, and was the close of the Civic Chautauqua of the week.

Rev. Clarence True Wilson, who presided and made the first address, declared that the prohibition speakers were drawing bigger crowds than the political speakers, and said that the Oregon Home Rule Association had refused to make an open fight, declining to send a representative to the Civic Chautauqua meetings, although invited to do so. Rev. Mr. Wilson said that the association had tried to induce Colonel E. Hofer to cease speaking for the liquor side for the reason he was ruining their cause. Rev. Mr. Wilson predicted a sweeping victory on for Oregon dry in November.

Rev. William Parsons and Rev. Benjamin Young also spoke. Miss Marie C. Brehm, representing the Presbyterian Church, spoke briefly, calling attention to the temperance parade which is to be held in Portland in October. Rev. J. R. Knodell and Rev. E. Nelson Allen closed the discussion.

It was announced officially that the temperance parade for Portland will be held October 22. Rev. William Parsons is the general chairman of the committee of arrangements, and he announced that he would be at 110 Second street every afternoon between 3 and 5 o'clock to confer with people and organizations which will take part. Miss Brehm, who assisted in the two parades in Chicago, will assist here. Miss Brehm will address a mass meeting of women at the White Temple next Sunday at 3 P. M. She asked that each church appoint committees to represent the church at large, the young people and the Sunday school, to aid in the temperance parade.

Chairman Wilson announced that the programme of campaigning on the street from automobiles would be continued and asked donations of automobiles for the work.

FOSTER TO ARRIVE SOON

OFFICIAL OF REED INSTITUTE GETS IDEAS IN EAST.

Plan for Buildings Will Be Taken Up With View to Many Years in Future.

William T. Foster, president-elect of the Reed Institute, will be in Portland on November 1, according to a letter received from him by Dr. T. L. Eliot, chairman of the board of trustees of the Reed Institute. Professor Foster has been busily engaged in visiting the various institutions of learning in the East and he will continue to do so and at the same time will look over the field for material for the faculty for Portland's new university.

Upon his arrival he will at once take up the matter of construction with the board of trustees. A plan for the arrangement of the buildings and the campus for all time will be made and this will be followed out step by step as funds are available and as the institution grows. With this plan in view at all times each building as added will be a unit to make a part of the completed whole. This plan looks not a few years ahead, but scores of years, with the idea that nothing may be done which may later have to be undone as the great university which is being established grows to its proper place.

LITTLE MAN WHIPS

Ex-Convict Meets Partner Who Betrayed Cell-Mate.

THEY FIGHT; 1 ARRESTED

Dave Hill Confesses to Robbery Committed in San Francisco Two Years Ago—Partner Serving Time at San Quentin.

After eluding arrest for over two years for a daring robbery he is alleged to have committed in San Francisco, Dave Hill, alias Lee, was encountered on the street early yesterday morning by Howard R. Coryell, a former cellmate of the partner whom Hill had "double-crossed," and was taken bodily to the police station by Coryell, after a bloody fight.

Coryell was formerly in the Navy. While there he was convicted of compounding a felony by shielding a shipmate, was sent to San Quentin penitentiary and there met George Young, doing 25 years for robbery. From Young he heard the story of how his partner had secured all the profits of the "job" and escaped, leaving his partner to bear the penalty.

Coryell was pardoned recently and came to Portland. He met Hill by chance on the street, engaged him in conversation and learned that he was Young's partner. Coryell, who is a little fellow, attempted to take Hill, who weighs nearly 200 pounds, into custody. A fight ensued, in which Coryell is said to have used a knife and a brick. Hill was frightfully cut and battered. When he submitted Coryell conducted him to the station, bleeding in a dozen places. He told his story and both men were locked up. Dr. Ziegler attended Hill and sewed up his wounds.

Acting upon the information secured from Coryell, Detectives Hellyer and Moloney questioned Hill yesterday and easily persuaded him to admit that he had taken part in the San Francisco case.

Hill said that in April, 1908, he and Young went to a room in the St. George Hotel, at Eighth and Howard streets, in San Francisco, and that Young beat the occupant into insensibility, while Hill went through his clothes and secured $72. The clerk heard the noise and ran to the rescue, capturing Young, but Hill escaped with the money.

Captain of Detectives Moore telegraphed a full account of Hill's confession to Chief of Police Martin at San Francisco and is holding the man until he learns whether he is wanted in the California city.

TRIBUTE PAID MRS. STOW

Many Friends Attend Last Service for Departed Author.

Buried beneath masses of flowers, the tributes of many friends and relatives, the coffin in which lay the body of Mrs. Marion Cook Stow, the well-known Oregon author, who died on Friday, was surrounded by sorrowing friends, while the obsequies were conducted under the ritual of the Christian Science Church, of which Mrs. Stow was a member.

Mrs. John Proctor, second reader at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, conducted the service at Holman's chapel at 2:30 P. M. Following the service the body was removed to the Portland Crematorium, where private services were held.

At the public service a quartet composed of Mrs. Imogene Harding Brodie, Miss Muriel Williams, C. C. Richards and J. Hickey sang several hymns from the Christian Science hymn book, accompanied by Miss Evelyn Galbraith at the organ.

Friends of the former writer and artist and associates of the bereaved husband, who is a Portland newspaperman, were present. C. H. Gilbert, F. H. Lewis, E. N. Blythe, Paul Kelty, O. C. Merrick and S. B. Vincent acted as pallbearers.

Mrs. Stow, who was the author of "Where Flows Hood River," "The Child and the Dream," "Nature Sonnets" and "Voices of the City," is survived by the husband, Charles Messer Stow, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Cook, her parents, who reside at 345 East Thirteenth street, and two brothers, Walter M. Cook and Frank R. Cook, Portland business men.

YOUTH RUNS FROM GHOSTS

Fearing Spirits, Boy Wanders Two Days, Clad Only in Night Robe.

A strange story is told of the experiences of John Haley, the 18-year-old son of Mrs. McDonald, of Sandy, who disappeared from his home Thursday of last week and was gone two days and nights before he was found and taken home. The youth's body was bruised, his face and feet were cut and he was greatly exhausted. Since his return Haley has recovered his faculties and recalls his wanderings.

Haley had been breaking horses the day before he disappeared, and when he returned home he was very tired and nervous. He went to bed, but got up hastily at 10:30 o'clock and dashed over to the home of A. C. Bomback scantily dressed, and said that ghosts were after him. Before he could be caught he darted away in the darkness. Running along the Sandy bluff, a steep mountain overlooking the Sandy Valley and River and dangerous for anyone to descend, Haley made his way down the steep slope to the Sandy River, on the bank of which he passed the night clad only in his night robe. Those who went in search for him found that he had made leaps of six and eight feet in his flight.

M'ALLEN AGAIN CITIZEN

Portland Man Is Surprised to Know Early Record Is Lost.

After living for more than a quarter of a century under the impression that he was a citizen of the United States, Dan McAllen, for many years a well-known Portland merchant, discovered a short time ago that the Multnomah County records did not bear him out. The books showed that he had filed his declaration of intention to become a citizen, but there was no record that the final papers had been taken out. However, he lost no time in completing the formality, and last Saturday was admitted to citizenship by Judge Cleeton.

Mr. McAllen was a very much surprised man when he discovered that there was no record that he had completed the legal process of becoming an American. He remembers distinctly that he took out final papers during the incumbency of County Clerk Church, about 26 years ago. He believes that the records must have been lost at a time when there was a fire in the County Clerk's office.
