DISEASE HAS GONE

Portland Is Remarkably Free From Contagion.

CHILDREN ARE HEALTHY

Health Officer Wheeler Makes Inspection in Schools and Induces Foreigners to Improve Sanitary Conditions.

As a result of City Health Officer Wheeler's campaign during the Summer months to stamp out contagious diseases, Portland is now almost free from contagion. The healthful condition among the school children is particularly noticeable and, according to Dr. Wheeler, only two cases of scarlet fever have been discovered among them. One of these cases was detected just before the opening of the schools.

"The general health condition among the school children is better than it has been for years," said Dr. Wheeler yesterday. "Early in the Summer the City Health Department started to investigate the conditions of the city and to insist upon better sanitation, particularly among the poor. By hard work myself and assistance succeeded in causing such cases as scarlet fever and diphtheria have been reduced to a minimum."

Dr. W. E. Smith, who is directing inspection of the school rooms, reports that the situation shows a marked improvement over that of last year. The school children of families of the poorer classes not only have a cleaner appearance, said he, but they are taking more pride in trying to keep the school rooms clean.

"Parents have profited by our campaign in taking better care of their children," said Dr. Smith. "They have cleaned up their homes better this year than ever before, and as a result there is considerably less sickness. One important thing is that we have practically stamped out tuberculosis among the school children of poor parents."

Dr. Smith is being assisted in inspecting the city schools by Drs. W. E. Smith, J. J. Pifer, L. J. Wolf and J. G. Abelle. He hopes to have completed examination of all the schools by the end of the month, or as soon as possible, in order to check any contagious disease in its incipient stage that may be found.

Mrs. Rachael D. Shatto, who is connected with the City Health Department as a nurse, said last evening that the result of the work of the health authorities was exceedingly encouraging, and that the general health among the children of school age throughout the city had greatly improved since last year.

PROPERTY MAY BE SOLD

Peninsula Improvement Association Is After Delinquents.

"Mooseharks" will no longer be endured by the Peninsula Improvement Association, particularly when street improvements are held up, through failure of property owners to pay street assessments.

Resolutions were passed by the association petitioning the City Auditor to issue warrants of sale immediately, for all the delinquent property on Lombard street, from Wabash avenue east, and to proceed to close the matter without delay.

It is pointed out in the resolutions, that the matter has been dragging along for two years, and that practically half the property along the street has been signed up on petitions asking for a hard-surface improvement of the street, but the petitions cannot be filed until all the assessments for the proposed improvements have been disposed of.

According to the resolutions, the assessments have been due and delinquent since September 1, 1901, and every property owner affected has had ample notice to pay them.

PAPERS ARE GIVEN

Saloonist Is Naturalized in Spite of Protest.

Examiner Hazard Contends H. H. Tannensee Has Not Proved Moral Character, but Applicant Explains Away Charges.

Hugo Henry Tannensee, proprietor of a saloon at Fourth and Madison streets, was granted citizenship papers by Circuit Judge Morrow yesterday afternoon over the protest of Henry B. Hazard, United States naturalization examiner. Mr. Hazard contended that Tannensee's good moral character had not been proved for five years, as is required by law.

In support of that contention he produced the record of the Police Court, showing that Charles E. Hicks, George Rogers and Annie Briggs had been convicted of having given liquor in Tannensee's saloon to Hazel McKay, a 17-year-old girl. Hicks and Rogers were each fined $20 and Annie Briggs was placed on suspended sentence.

Mr. Hazard said the Tannensee case was in some respects like the case of J. E. Fall, proprietor of the Quella, who was refused papers by Judge Cleland last Saturday. Besides the conviction of persons arrested in Tannensee's saloon, Mr. Hazard cited Hazard's testimony that he was never arrested while the Police Court record shows him to have been arrested twice.

The matter came up yesterday on a motion of the naturalization official to set aside an order made July 16, granting Tannensee his papers. He said the sale of the liquor to a minor was made only three days after the order for papers had been made, but before the certificate had been issued.

Tannensee and his wife said the waiter in their grill had asked the party how old the girl was, and suggested that she take a soft drink. He said Annie Briggs had told him the McKay girl was her sister, and that she was 21. After the party was arrested, he said he discharged the waiter and later paid the fines of the two men.

WIFE SAYS SHE PAID BILLS

Creola M. Hatch Wants Divorce. Says Husband Failed to Support.

Complaining that William R. Hatch ignored grocery and furniture bills for three years, compelling his wife, Creola M. Hatch, to support him, as well as herself and her two daughters, she brought a divorce suit in the Circuit Court yesterday.

Hatch, who is a carpenter, must pay his wife $35 a month alimony, if her request is granted by the court. She says here husband last April twice threatened to commit suicide, going so far once as to abut the door and turn on the gas. At another time, she alleges, he flourished a revolver. The family formerly lived at the Locks. The couple married at Willet, Cal., February 15, 1893.

Nellie M. Gove filed a divorce suit yesterday against L. R. Gove, alleging that he deserted her a year ago last March. They were married at John Day, November 24, 1903. Mrs. Gove asks to take her maiden name, Officer.

Hotel Men Sued.

F. W. Tubbsing filed suit yesterday against M. U. Howwell and Lloyd E. Rogers, for the recovery of $7950 damages, charging Howwell and Rogers with having violated a contract to turn over a lease on the Hotel Phillip. Tubbsing says they agreed to give him the lease to the second and third floors of the hotel, and that he went to the expense of employing an architect to remodel the rooms, and a plumber to inspect the premises. He intended to take possession September 18, he said. They now refuse to complete the deal, he asserts. The hotel is located on Burnside street between Fourth and Fifth.

Teeth No Fit, Says Mrs. Keller.

That R. T. Royal, a dentist, who had no license, but who was in the employ of the Rex Dental Company, attempted to fit her with teeth, but failed, are the assertions of Mrs. C. R. Keller in her answer to the company's suit for fees. The case is brought in the Circuit Court in the name of H. Stinfield. Mrs. Keller says she went to the company June 2, and was to have been charged $150 for the work. But the plates did not fit, she said, so she refused to take Them. She says Royal pretended to be a graduate practitioner in dentistry.

Criminal Cases to Be Heard.

ASTORIA, Or., Sept. 19.—(Special.)—

The September term of the Circuit Court, convened here today by Judge Campbell, will continue its session for several weeks. A grand jury has been drawn and there are several criminal cases to be heard.
