MARRIAGE HELD

Methodist Pastor at Ridgefield Thinks Himself Free and Weds. Legal Separation Is Late. Pulpit Is Taken Away.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Sept. 21.-(Special)-To have two wives at the same time was the unpleasant predicament of Rev. Charles M. Smythe, a Methodist minister of Ridgefield, who was remarminister of Ridgeleid, who was remar-ried here yesterday after he found that his first wife had divorced him August 17. To make his second marriage legal, Smythe was remarried by Judge Donald McMaster, of the Superior Court. The tangle started three and one-half The langie started three and one-ball years ago in Oregon, where Smythe started divorce proceedings against his wife, who was then in the East. He secured the services of Attorney John F. Watts, who had the evidence taken before a referre, and then he received a payment for his work, giving Smythe a receipt for the money. While Smythe thought he was divorced, he really was not, as the decree of divorce was not granted.

Smythe in Trouble Before.

Last Spring Smythe, who was supply ing a charge at Pioneer, got into trouble with Mrs. Marien Laue and her son-in law, Bock Soden, by making some re-mark about a daugnter of Mrs. Laus. Mrs. Laus and Soden caught Smythe in Ridgefield one evening and, while Soden held him, Mrs. Laus welded a small but heavy hazel club effectively against his head, knocking him unconscious and severely injuring him.

In Portland, June 17, Mr. Smythe and Miss Grace Converse, of Ridgefield, were married, Smythe believing he was a free man. Not long after that he was astonman. Not long after that he was aston-ished to find that his first and real wife was suing him for a divorce, which was granted August 17. Since then Smythe has been reflecting over the matter and, upon securing legal advice, decided to straighten out the tangle by remarrying the girl, which he did.

Church Refuses to Grant Pulpit.

About two months ago Smythe, who was only a supply minister at Pioneer, was relieved of his charge, At the gen-eral conference he was not given a new charge, so he is without the church. It is understood that Smythe has written to the County Attorney, J. P. Stapleton, asking him to drop the prosecution asking him to drop the prosecution asking hock Soden and Mrs. Laue, who were averated for assault and who
