The scores of yesterday's bargain-counter affair were 3 to 1 in favor of Vernon and 2 to 1 in Portland's favor.

Vernon captured the opener by timely hitting against Bill Steen, while George Boice, Jesse Garrett and Veap Gregg were utilized by McCredie in the pecond, and proved successful in staving off the onrushes of the villagers.

near scoring a shutout, and held the home guard safely in his hand all through the engagement. Vernon managed to bunch hits in the second, third and sixth innings, and on each occasion they scored a run. Incidentally, three of the several two-baggers

The second run was the result of Tommy Sheeban coming to life once more as a batter. Tommy had gone through the entire Vernen series without getting a hit until he came up as first man in the fourth inning. Tommy slashed one into the right center-field crowd and took two bases under the rules. Bill Rapps hit to Raleigh, who caught Sheehan between third and second, but Rappe negotiated first in safe-ty. Ort's demise at the first sack sent Rapps to second, from whence he scored on Tommy Murray's corking two-bag-ger to the left field fence. The two runs were amply sufficient for Portland to win, though McCredie took no chances, and when Bert Coy smaahed one for two sacks in the sixth. NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—This week will see the new football rules brought oft for public inspection at most of the big Eastern colleges.

will be at New Haven on Saturday, when Yale plays Syracuse. In all the camps there is still a feeling of uncertainty as to the working of the new rules. The most radical changes are the rules preventing pulling and pushing of the runner and interfer-ence with the man eligible to receive the forward pass. The concensus of opinion forward pass. The concensus of opinion among experts is that the days of tandems and other mass plays is past and cosches will be compelled to abandon many formations heretofore relied upon as the ground gainers.

The new rules place a premium on speed and agility and call for more trick able and the forward pass will be a more resourceful play, although not much less treacherous than it was last year. An increase in variety and versatility is promised. The preliminary work of most of the big elevens has been devoted to development of offense and little scientific work with the defense has been attempted. It remains to be seen whether a consistent, connected, two-

If he shall make good this assertion, the season of 1916 is bound to see some sen-

THAT bargain-day engagement cer-tainly brought out a handsome growd, for the stands, bleachers and the outfield were crowded with Portland fans anxious for the home team to win.

Some slight disappointment was felt at the result of the first game, but there was so much good baseball mixed up in the fray that Portland's failure win was forgotten.

Bill Steen pitched a steady game, but he was found at opportune times by the villagers. He did fine work, but his teammates were helpless against the pitching of Brackenridge.

San Francisco actually won a game from Oakland yesterday, and it is not at all unlikely that Ed Walter will demand an explanation from Danny Long. The series this week at San Francisco looks as though the word has been passed that the Oaks must "cop the flag."

When Drummond opened the seventh and last inning with a hard hit to left. Big Mac once more used his derrick and sent Vean Gregg in to take Garrett's place. Gregg disposed of Carlisle, Bur-rell and Ross in order.

Happicus Hogan disappointed the crowd by playing in the second game without being put out of the lot. Hap got a little bit obstreperous toward the end of the game, but he avoided a clash with Finney. The Sacramento team seems to have come to life of a sudden, for the treat-ment the Senators inflicted upon Los Angeles last week was most uncompli-mentary indeed. However, it is a cinch bet the Senators don't play that way against Oakland,
