

SCENES AT CLARK COUNTY FAIR, WHICH OPEN

6000 PEOPLE SEE VANCOUVER'S FAIR

Clark County's First Exhibit Is Pleasing Revelation to Farmers.

ANNUAL EVENT PLANNED

Opening Day Sees Varied Assortment of Field, Garden and Orchard Products and Fine Array of Women's Handiwork.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Sept. 29.—(Special.)—More than 6000 persons passed through the gates of the first annual Clark County Show, which opened for three days, at 10 o'clock this morning.

Many are requesting that the tent, in which are exhibited the products of the farms and the women's exhibits, be kept open over Sunday.

In the individual exhibits B. Burns, of Fields, has an astonishing list of 72 lines of produce, raised from a ten-acre field. The apples are large and well colored, the peaches luscious, the prunes 25 to the pound, the English walnuts monstrous in size, the butter fresh and sweet, the corn large and well developed, the peas of high grade, the eggs fresh and clean, the butternuts fine and all other articles above the average.

A few of the grain exhibits are: Wheat, rye, barley, oats, black oats, corn, buckwheat and many grasses. The following also are shown:

Vegetables—Cabbages, pumpkins, yams, one weighs 84 pounds; potatoes, onions, carrots, beets, mangio beets, sugar beets, turnips, rutabagas, celeris, lettuce, many varieties of tomatoes, sweet corn, peas, cucumbers, gourds, muskmelons, watermelons, radishes, kale, cauliflower, peppers and many others.

G. J. Allen, who 35 years ago planted a vineyard, has four varieties of grapes grown in Clark County. They are: Worden, Eaton, Concord and Delaware. He also exhibits one of the grape vines planted 20 years ago.

In the art and curio department is a quilt made of 4600 pieces of cloth gathered from all branches of the Army and Navy. J. Currier, a sergeant in the post here, made it. A bedspread made by John Kaley, in 1829, attracts much attention.

A lunchbox made in 1780, another made in 1858, a cup and saucer of 1740, a box made of all woods grown in Oregon and Washington, a Dutch oven used before the war, a tin of tin, a tin made 38 years ago, steel and copper boxes made by the Filipinos, are only a few of the many interesting curios and relics.

The women's department contains all classes of baking, fancy needlework and paintings.

Made by Mrs. Mary O'Donnell, over 100 years old, is a cake that has on it in white frosting "Meet me on the parkway, Clark County Harvest Show, Vancouver, Wash." By its side is another cake made by a little girl only 3 years old.

In one exhibit is a basket of "Cackles-berries, Clark County's legal tender," which attracts much attention. They are large eggs, which bring 40 cents a dozen.

Today was Vancouver day, tomorrow will be Portland day, and Saturday will be Clackamas day. The motor-boat races will be held Saturday in the Vancouver harbor, between the Wolf II and the combined Seattle Spirit-Pacer II.

The poultry exhibit contains more than 250 fowls of high breeds, including ducks, geese, turkeys and many others. The livestock exhibit attracts much attention.

A balloon ascension and parachute leap are scheduled daily. A baby show will be held tomorrow afternoon. A dog show will also be held at the same time.

Clement Scott, manager of the show, is being showered with congratulations. Judge J. A. Munday and Professor H. W. Sparks delivered lectures today and the First Infantry Band furnished the music.
