

ALMA MATER PAYS HOMAGE TO DEBTOR

Memorial Services for Late Harvey W. Scott Held by Pacific University.

GREAT CAREER REVIEWED

Appreciation of School Which Editor Attended When Young and Befriended Through Life Shown in Impressive Way.

FOREST GROVE, Or., Sept. 29.—(Special.)—In paying homage to the memory of Harvey W. Scott today, Pacific University honored not only its first graduate, but also its recognized most illustrious alumnus. The services were simple and impressive. The weather seemed to be peculiarly consonant with the nature of the occasion in the play of recurrent clouds and sudden bursts of sunshine, calling to mind the early hardships Mr. Scott suffered and the subsequent blessings of his life.

In the chapel in Marsh Hall there was an audience of many gray-haired men and women, early pioneers of Oregon, who were deeply affected when some special incident of pioneer life or some prominent trait of the late editor was referred to in the eulogies.

Mr. Scott's Career Reviewed.

Mr. Scott's career was portrayed in all its phases—as an editor, as a scholar, as a patriot, as a historian, as a theologian. The part he played in the development of the state and the Northwest, together with the impress he has left because of his intellectual powers was dwelt upon by each of the speakers.

President Ferrin Speaks.

Following Chopin's funeral march, by Professor Frank T. Chapman, President Ferrin spoke of Mr. Scott's connection with the institution, first as a student in 1887, then as a graduate in 1893, then as a trustee and benefactor of the institution. President Ferrin said that the two greatest men Oregon had produced were, in his opinion, the late George H. Williams and the late Mr. Scott. The speaker also referred to Mr. Scott's life-time association with H. L. Pittock, saying that their co-operation had resulted in the great success of both.

Minutes Adopted by the Trustees of the Institution were Read by Milton W. Smith, of Portland, in which regret was shown over the loss of one of the school's greatest friends. Letters from prominent educators and friends were read, each containing kindly words of the life-work of Mr. Scott. The messages were from Dr. Luella Clay Carson, president of Mills College, Oakland, Cal.; Professor J. B. Hooper, of the Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis; President P. L. Campbell of the University of Oregon at Eugene; Representative Hawley, of Salem; Judge Thomas A. McBride, of the Oregon Supreme Bench; Stephen A. Lowell, of Pendleton, and President C. A. Dunaway, of the University of Montana.

Character Sketch Given.

In a character sketch of the late editor, Federal Judge Wolverton said that Pacific University was fortunate in being the alma mater of a man of such a strong personality and should be proud of the fact that Mr. Scott's association with the early instructors of the institution was the first step in his important career. The speaker spoke of the editor's powers as a writer, saying that he always wrote from deep convictions and illumined his subjects so well that all who read his editorials were greatly impressed.

Editor's Associate Speaker.

Edgar B. Piper, managing editor of The Oregonian, spoke of his close association with Mr. Scott, covering a period of 15 years. The speaker said he first saw Mr. Scott in 1895, when the editor was 59 years old and in the prime of his intellectual powers. He said that Mr. Scott's personality and inspiration would always be felt by the associates and co-workers of The Oregonian.

Ex-Governor Geer spoke of Mr. Scott's position in public and political affairs of the state.

"Mr. Scott was more widely conversant with the history of the Northwest and all important subjects than any citizen in the state," said Mr. Geer. "He was a deep and a ripe scholar, he never swerved from the loyalty to his convictions and was always on the fighting line in state politics. He was ever loyal to Oregon's every interest."

Late Editor Broad-Minded.

Dr. T. L. Elliot, minister emeritus of the First Unitarian Church in Portland, spoke of the religious side of Mr. Scott, saying that the late editor always took a kindly interest in religion and was broad-minded in his interpretation of religious thought.

Mr. Scott influenced the age in which he lived for great good," said W. D. Fenton, of Portland, and the final estimate of the man cannot be made until a later day. He was a part of the wool and fabric of our lives. He was a broad-minded, many-sided man, whose gifts to the country and industry were united in his blood.

The speaker said Mr. Scott was not a successful politician because to play to the popular fancy was foreign to his nature. He was regarded as one of the strongest advocates of sound monetary principles and it was through his editorial interferences that he helped to save the high money standard to the country. Mr. Scott fought for all high principles, said the speaker, and the state was not ready to see him leave the battlefield.

Programme Is Given.

The programme was as follows: Funeral march (Chopin), march trio, Profraternities, President Ferrin, Invocation, Rev. C. E. Cline, D. D. Introductory, President Ferrin, Minutes of trustees of Pacific University, Milton W. Smith, Esq., Character address, E. Wolverton, Edgar B. Piper, ex-Governor Geer, T. L. Elliot, D. D. Address, William D. Fenton, God's Promise (Lutz), Mrs. Pauline Miller-Chapman, Benediction.

A resolution from the Native Sons of Oregon, conveying a tribute to Mr. Scott's memory, was not read on account of the lateness of the hour, as it was desired to complete the programme so that the Port-

Listen to Your Stomach

It Gives Words of Most Serious Warning and Appeals Aloud for Help.

When by over-eating and excesses, poor cooking and imperfect mastication, late hours and physical abuse, your stomach is depleted of its strength and lies irritated and sick, then it is that this wonderful machine signals for help and begins to talk. Listen to it when many other events of like character happen, your stomach is talking.

Straight Talk From the Stomach.

The stomach does not talk like you would like it to, but you should listen and you should heed.

When foul breath makes people turn away from you, when pains and nausea come and go before and after meals, when gases distend your abdomen and affect your heart, when false appetite and abnormal craving comes to you, when the sight of a meal makes you sick and when many other events of like character happen, your stomach is talking.

It is trying to tell you that its peristaltic or churning muscles are irritated and unfit for duty, that alkali is filling the stomach and digesting and eating the membrane within, that the juices are not doing their work and consequently are permitting the food to lie for hours, eventually decaying and passing to the bowels, where such food is absorbed in a poisonous state and taken up by the lymphatic system and the blood.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will give to the stomach all it needs. They will ease up the peristaltic muscles, they dilute the alkali juices, enrich them and digest the food when the stomach is unable to do so.

Don't say they cannot help you. Why, these tablets will digest a hearty meal placed in a glass tube, without aid from the stomach.

One grain of a single ingredient will digest 3000 grains of food. It is due your stomach to reply to its appeal. Send today for a trial package of these digesters. It will prove these tablets marvelous, and the answer will come from your stomach. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package free by mail. Address: F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

land people present could take the 4:30 train home. A copy of the resolutions was submitted to President Ferrin and it will be included in the complete publication of the day's programme to be issued by the institution.

A committee of the Portland Rotary Club was present, consisting of H. V. Carrington, C. D. Starr, S. T. Brittan, George W. McMillan and Captain J. J. Reynolds. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Pittock, of Portland, attended the exercises.

Members of Mr. Scott's family who were present were Miss Judith Scott and John, Leslie and Ambrose Scott.

MEN WATCH YOUTH DROWN

No Attempt Made to Save, Though Water Is but Three Feet Deep.

KLAMATH FALLS, Or., Sept. 29.—(Special.)—Although a crew of men have been dragging Link River all day, no trace of the body of Ernest Finnell, the 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Finnell, of this city, has been found.

Young Finnell and a number of other boys about his own age, were fishing in the river just outside the city limits, when the lad hooked a large trout. In his excitement to get the fish out of the water, he slipped and fell into the river, where the water was very swift. His boy companions stood terror-stricken, unable to aid because of the rushing current. The lad was rapidly swept down stream, but swam for more than 200 yards with the current before he finally sank.

While being swept down the stream, he passed two men, standing on the bank where the water, though very swift, was not more than three feet deep, but they stood there and made no attempt to go to his rescue.

Every effort has been made to find the boy, but he has not been seen since he was last seen in the river. The father of the drowned boy is proprietor of the Link River chandise store here. The boy is one of six children.

Surety Company Files Answer in Ortis Hamilton Case.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 29.—The surety company which furnished to the state a $20,000 bond for Adjutant-General Ortis Hamilton, now serving a term in the Walla Walla penitentiary for embezzlement of state funds, denies that it is liable to the state to make good any part of General Hamilton's shortage.

The company's reply to the state's suit was filed today and contends that there was no law under which Hamilton was authorized to handle state funds and any loss sustained by such handling was due to the negligence of the state's agents. Hamilton's thefts amounted to $50,000 and were discovered last year.
