BOY MAY HAVE DROWNED

Overalls Containing Watch, Nails and Marbles Found on Ferryboat.

That some small Sellwood boy has met his death by drowning is suspected by residents of that suburb from evidence found on the Sellwood ferryboat last Sunday and reported to the police yesterday. Upon reporting for work at 6 o'clock Sunday morning John J. Conlin, a deckhand on the boat, found hanging over a rail of the boat a small pair of overalls and a red bandanna handkerchief. In the pockets of the overalls were a gold-plated watch of fair quality, a lot of nails, a three-foot tape and two marbles. Conlin kept the articles until yesterday, expecting that the owner would come back to claim them.

WHITES TO BE KEPT OUT

Chinese Promise That Their Gambling Games Shall Be Exclusive.

No persons other than Chinese will be allowed to play in gambling games conducted by the people of that race was the promise made to Chief of Police Cox yesterday at a conference with leading men of the colony. The leaders were summoned to a conference by the Chief because he had learned that the agreement that those of other races would be kept out was being violated. Evidence to that effect was laid before the Chinese conferees and they were told that if they did not keep the agreement the privilege of running the games would be cut off. Chief Cox also informed the Celestials that they must not give any money to anyone for the privilege of conducting the games. They were made plainly to understand that no one was authorized to make collections and that they must report any attempts to get money, either by officers or by others.
