the former Japanese Premier in a recent statement which has reached Washington. Count Okuma refers to the Chinese Prince Regert's refusal to grant a Parliament as prayed for during the turbulent times last Summer. Count Okuma, who has closely watched the situation in China says he doubts whether that country will be in a fit condition to have a national assembly for nine years at the present rate of progress, that in its present unprepared state it is "altogether too rash" to claim constitutional rights.

"Thus 19 years ago," according to his statement, "a decree was tested in Japan, promising the nation to open a Diet after nine years. Yet more than 50 years were spent in various arrangements before Parliament was opened. In China not more than three years have passed since the edict promising a Diet was issued. The constitutions of various countries were investigated, provincial assemblies opened and the council of administrative affairs is going to be organized, but national conditions hardly warrant the empire in possessing a Parliament instantly. In China the central government is singularly weak, owing to the constant friction between Chinese and Manchus concerning the Manchus government, the imperfection of communication and the difference of dialects. It is best for China to Change of Sentiment Since between Chinese and Manchus concerning the Manchus government, the imperfection of communication and the difference of dislects. The "wet" element of Roseburg is jubilant tonight over the result of the city election held here today, when five of the six "wet" candidates were elected members of the City Council over the co-called "dry" champions by majorities ranging from 15 to 50 votes.

In the First Ward, S. E. Krohn, manager of a local drugstore and a staunch supporter of the "wet" principles, defeated Clark L. Bargar by a majority of over 50 votes. Mr. Bargar's support was largely contributed by the "dry" voters, notwithstanding that he is supposed to be affiliated with the "wet" forces.

Krohn was strenuously opposed by a handful of the "drys" who contended that his business relations were such as that his business relations were such as to render him unfit for the office of Councilman. The "wet" element accepted this inference as a personal slap and combined their forces in support of the offended candidate.

Roseburg Painter, Assailant, Clears Up Mystery.

LUHMAN FEARED ATTACK

Trouble, Which Ended in Shooting of Mark Alexander, Direct Result of Controversy Relative to Land Bought by Luhman.

ROSEBURG, Or., Oct. 2.—(Special.)—
The mystery surrounding the attack of Carl Luhman. a local painter, upon Mark Alexander, secretary of the Umpqua Land & Water Company, at a lonely spot near the eastern approach of the Alexander bridge, a short distance south of the city about four weeks ago, was partially cleared up in court today.

was partially cleared up in court today.

Lahman, who was given a preliminary hearing on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, testified that he did not attack Alexander with a revolver with murderous intent as contended at the time, but simply discharged the five loads of the weapon, with a view of frightening Alexander, who, he thought, was in pursuit for the purpose of inflicting bodily harm.
Delving deeper into the mystery,
District Attorney Brown brought out assertions to the effect that Luhman and J. C. Alexander and his son, Mark, had engaged in previous disputes and that the trouble was the direct result of a controversy relative to some land purchased by Luhman and located in the Alexander Park Addition to the west of the city. Luhman said that he purchased a small tract of land from Alexander and that notwithstanding that there were no building restrictions in the lease, when he commenced the erection of a small residence, Alexander objected for the reason that the structure did not meet with his approval.

Luhman testified that in consequence royal. Luhman testified that in consequen residence Alexander denied him privilege of utilizing the bridge which owned and controlled by J. C. Alexander for the exclusive convenience of those who purchase his land.

him the right to traverse the bridge

He said that a few days prior to the shooting Alexander accosted him as he was crossing the bridge and ordered him to leave the structure at once under penalty of a sound thrashing. He says he resented the instructions and for protection armed himself with a revolver.

a revolver.

He asserted emphatically that he thought he was about to be attacked at the time he whipped the revolver from his pocket and ured and denied positively that he entertained any intention of killing Alexander.

Both J. C. Alexander and his son, Mark, contended in the court that Luhman attacked the latter out of a spirit of pevenge and not because of previous trouble. trouble.
