RALLY TO SIGNAL REUNION OF PART

Republican Leaders to Join Mr. Bowerman as Speakers at Salem Meeting.

MALARKEY GIVES SUPPORT

'Progressive' Leader Declares At-People to Blow at Direct Primary Law.

Dan J. Malarkey, Republican candilate for joint State Senator and "pro pressive" leader in the ante-primary campalgn, accepted an invitation yesterday to speak at Salem Saturday night when the reunited Republican leaders are to appear on one lpatform. The principal apeaker will be Jay Bowerman, Republican candidate for Governor. His strongest contestants in the primary campaign, Grant B. Dimick, E. Hofer and Albert Abraham will likewise speak.

Mr. Maharkey, who has just returned from a trip to Puget Sound and British Columbia, said yesterday that it was his firm intention to stand by and work for the election of Mr. Bowerman as Repubthe election of Mr. Bowerman as Repub-

Malarkey Loyal to Ticket.

"I certainly amb going to support Mr. Bowerman," said Mr. Malarkey in discussing the present political situation."I did not participate in the late primary

"I oid not participate in the late primary election, elihor as a voter or a candidate, with my fingers crossed. Nor did I regard it as a game of 'heads I win, talls you lose.' Unless those who participate therein abide by the result, a primary election of and within a political party under the direct primary law serves no good purpose and is a mere waste of time and effort.

"One of the main objections to the old convention plan of nominating candidates was that through 'frameups' and states and manipulation of delegates by unscrupulous and self-seeking political bosses, the cambidates named by the convention were rarely the real choice of the rank and file of the party; and that such methods occasioned, and frequently justified the opposition to such nominees of many members of the party.

overcome those objections direct primary law was enacted. Under it any member of a party can with little trouble become a candidate for, nomina-tion, and the candidate who receives the tion, and the candidate who receives the most votes in the big convention held on primary election day in which all the members of the party participate with equal voice and equal influence under the safeguards of the Australian ballot system and the registration law becomes the nominee of the party. Under the system no loyal Republican can consistoppose one who has been so chosen consistently oppose one who has been so chosen as the nominee of his party.

Mr. Bowerman compiled with the direct primary law in becoming a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor in that he filed a sufficiently signed petition in regular form with the proper official and otherwise did everyticing required by that law. The primary election was regularly held and fairly conducted. No one contends that it was tainted by fraud or corruption. Notwithstanding the handleap of an assembly indorsement, Mr. Bowerman received the most votes for Governor in that election and became the lawful nominee of the Republican party in the only way that any other candidate for early other nomination. I voted against him in the primary election. But I bow to the will of the rank and file of the Republican party as expensed by the Republican party as expensed by the regular of the heliot bearing the conductor of the Republican party as expensed by the vertice of the heliot bear and file of the Republican party as expensed by the vertice of the heliot bear and file of the Republican party as expensed by the vertice of the heliot bear and file of the Republican party as expensed by the vertice of the heliot bear and file of the Republican party as expensed by the vertice of the heliot bear and file of the Republican party as expensed by the vertice of the heliot bear and the characteristics.

To be not of the respect lest, cal. Those who construed Henry Rectancy bear of the subject on the part of the votes and election judge. Tufts is of Tufts as an and file of the Republican party as ex-pressed by the verdict of the ballot box. The Republicans have expressed their will They have selected a Rpublican ticket of which Mr. Bowerman is the head. He is just as surely and legally and rightfully the nominee of the party as am I or any other Republican who at the primary election received a plurality of the votes cast for the nomination

Party Will Expressed.

"It is said by those who would now have anti-assembly Republicans oppose "It is said by those who would now have anti-assembly Republicans oppose Mr. Bowerman that he was not the choice of a majority of the members of the party. Neither was Mr. Lafferty, who was nominated for Congress in this district, nor Mr. Weinberger, who was nominated for Constable in this city, the choice of a majority of the Republicans who voted for candidates for those nominations. Neither was Jonathan Bourne the choice of a majority of the Republicans when in 1996, by a smaller plurality than Mr. Bowerman has obtained, he became the Republican nominee for United States Senator. Because the cardinal principle of my political creed is that the will of the people when deliberately expressed is supreme—and that applies to contests within the party for nomination as much as to contests in the general election between candidates of fival parties—I voted for Mr. Bourne for United States Senator when I was a purely personal stand-United States Senator when I was a subject from a purely personal stand-member of the State Senate in 1907. I point and not in the interest of any so accepted the verdict of the voters, not-methylanding the feet of the state of the voters. so accepted the verdict of the voters, not-withstanding the fact that I was elected to the State Senate before our direct pri-mary law, with its Statement No. 1 fea-ture, was adopted, and was under no and ture, was adopted, and was under no ante-election obligation so to do, and notwithmanding the further fact that I opposed Mr. Bourne's nomination and would cer-taintly never have voted for him for United States Senaftr if I had not felt it my duty to obey the popular mandate. Though I opposed Mr. Bowerman's nomination, I can certainly obey the popular mandate in this instance by supporting him for Governor more cheerfully and him for Governor more cheerfully and with more confidence that he will prove a good and worthy official than I did when I so voted for Mr. Bourne.

Law Provides for Pluralities.

"Under our present laws pluralities must decide both in primary elections and general elections. If the election of September 24 had been a general election and Mr. Bowerman and his three opponents had been candidates for election in stead of for nomination and the vote had been the same, he would certainly have been elected Governor and as such have been entitled to the same deference and respect as if he had received nine-tenths of all the votes cast. No more can it be claimed that he now is the less entitled to the same consideration at the hands of Republican voters at the general election stood he will strongly advocate the electhan he would have been entitled to had he received nine-tenths of all the votes est in the recent primary election.
"If we want to get away from plurality nominations and plurality elections, we must do it by incorporating into our elecvisions such as they have in Washington and Idaho and other states, and I am inclined to think that such a provision violation of the letter and spirit of the direct primary law. I still so bemy power to preserve the direct primary law in its integrity. But there are other ways than through assemblies that the direct primary law can be assailed and be weakened, and to my mind the friends of the direct primary mind the friends of the direct primary law are furnishing ammunition to its enemies when they become parties to a deliberate and concerted effort to defeat one who was regularly nominated under that law because they did not inderse his candidacy or approve his nomination. And it is because I feel that the merits of the direct primary law are now being tested rect primary law are now being tested that I shall do all in my power to se-cure Mr. Bowerman's election.

Bowerman's Assurance Enough.

"Mr. Bowerman has in an open letter "Mr. Bowerman has in an open letter given the most positive assurance that he will, if he is elected, veto any bill passed by the Legislature intended or calculated to weaken or cripple the direct primary law or even to add to or change it in any particular, and no one could ask more in that regard. So far as Statement No. 1 is concerned Mr. Bowerman as a State Senator voted for Mr. Bourne in 1967 under the same electromystances that I did and Mr. Bowerman as a State Senator. circumstances that I did, and Mr. Bow-erman and everyone else know that Statement No. 1 is here to stay and that the people will not tolerate any inter-ference therewith.

"I shall be sorry if my attitude in this respect gives offense to any of my friends or displeases any of my supporters in the late primary election, but I feel it is clearly my duty as a Republican and as a true friend of the direct primary law to give my hearty direct primary law to give my hearty support to Mr. Bowerman as the nom-inee of the Republican party for Gov-ernor of this state. The Republican ernor of this state. The Republican party must be kept together and not be disrupted for the benefit of those who seek political profit and preferment by such disruption. The Republican party gave the people of this state the initiative and referendum and the direct primary law and Statement No. 1. and will, in my opinion, continue to be in the future, as it has been in the past, the party of progress and achievement.

"In answer to the argument that an assembly was desirable to secure party organization and a united party back of its nominees, I repeatedly urged, during the primary campaign, that so-called party organization in behalf of one Republican aspirant for a nomination argument was improper and one Republican aspirant for a nomina-tion against another was improper and un-Republican, and that the time for party organization was after the party had in a fair and open direct primary nominated its candidates. That time has arrived and all good Republicans should now get together and present a united front to a common enemy and carry to victory at the polls on No-vember & the men who have so become vember 8 the men who have so become the candidates of their party."

PRECINCT VOTE QUESTIONED

Election Judge Acts as Notary and County Clerk Raises Issue. Because G. A. Tufts, a judge of the election board in Precinct 25, erroneously swore in 30 voters in his capacity as a notary public instead of as judge of the board, County Clerk Fields advanced the theory yesterday that the votes are invalid. The 39 votes were not discovered until after the official election returns had been forwarded to the Secretary of State. Mr. Fields believes, however, that should the election be contested, it would be necessary to throw out the entire vote in Precinct 25. throw out the entire vote in Precinct 2L.

Reunited Republicans will hold a rousing meeting at Salem Saturday night, at which those who were factional leaders in the primary campaign will meet on common ground and promote the spirit
