Chamber Takes Up Case of People Who Are at Mercy of Interurban.

CITY MAY FORCE RATE CUT

By Forbidding Operation in Limits Without Franchise and Insisting on 5-Cent Fare Seattle May Save Situation.

SEATTLE, Wash, Oct. 15.—(Special.)

—Two thousand residents of the Duwamish Valley, comprising the suburbs of Duwamish, Riverton, Foster and Tukwila, are more than gratified at the unexpected publicity given to their affairs. With the publication of the facts shout the threstened denominfacts about the threatened depopula-tion of the valley, the Seattle Cham-ber of Commerce is considering the troubles of the people in their fight with the Puget Sound Electric Comwith the Puget Sound Electric Company, which operates the interurban service between Scattle and Tacoma.

The committee on city affairs has recommended the passage of a resolution requesting Judge John R. Mitchell, of the Superior Court for Thurston County, to decide the case at an early day; and the committee has further recommended that the corporation counsel prevent the company from operating in Scattle until it secures a franchise. The resolution has been referred back to the committee with instructions to get a statement of the structions to get a statement of the case from the company.

Big Reduction Is Possible.

The step indicated conforms to a suggestion by E. W. Engle, Mayor of Tukwia. If it could be enforced, the interurban would be compelled either Interurban would be compelled either to secure a franchise of its own or establish a 5-cent fare within the city limits. The southern boundary of Seattle is close to the station of South Side, near the Meadows, and it is distant only from two to four miles from the little villages hardest hit by the rise in rates. If Mr. Engle's suggestion could be realized, the residents of the valley would pay a fare of 5 cents to all points within the city, plus mileage at 2 cents a mile from points outside the boundary. This would cut the present rate by almost two-thirds; and the residents of Riverton, for example, instead of paying 34 cents for a round-trip ticket, would get it for about 14 cents. Since the old rate was 15 cents, the new plan would be welcomed by the residents. Most of all, they want the question settled. It has been dragging in the courts so long that most of them have become discouraged.

It is hard to say what motive lies ouraged.

It is hard to say what motive lies back of the action of the Puget Sound back of the action of the Puget Sound Electric Company. The increased rates have killed its business. A boycott has been in effect for nearly a year, and the residents who remain in the valley continue bitterly hostile. Some of them declare that the company is trying to heat down the prices of land so as to buy large holdings at reduced rates. There seems to be little foun-dation for such a conclusion.

Test of Commission Law Wanted.

Others contend that the company, Others contend that the which is one of many owned by Stone & Webster, is fighting the Railroad Commission idea everywhere in the Commission idea everywhere in the Puget United States, and that the Puget Sound line has been selected for the test of the courts. Whatever may be the reason, it is certain that the action of the company has blocked the tion of the company has blocked the development of Seattle toward the south just as effectually as if a wall had been built across the valley.

If the Superior Court for Thurston County, before which the appeal is pending, sustains the Railroad Commission and the Supreme Court does the same thing, the Puget Sound Electric will be forced to make extensive refunds of fares dating from October a year ago. Whenever residents of the year ago. Whenever residents of the valley are compelled by circumstances to patronize the interurban, they take receipts for the fare. These receipts have accumulated by hundreds and thousands, and some day they may be presented to the company with a de-mand for the difference between the old fare and the new.

Scattle Wild Over Bonds.

Evidences accumulate that Seattle is running wild in the matter of bond issues. A sentiment appears to be develop-ing against the policy of blanket methods of voting bonds, such as will be presented at the election in November. For example, the County Commissioners have tied the Duwamish project to the Lake Washington cansi, in hope that each plan will carry the other. In like manner the proposed bonds for dock improvements are entangled with the issue for Cedar River water improvements. In the present state of public opinion, this method may endenger all the bonds, for the electors are likely to vote them down in a lump. The same thing happened at the election two years are, and sentiat the election two years ago, and sentiment this year seems to be rather more bestile than then. An appeal for the bonds was made by

An appeal for the bonds was made by Robert Bridges before the Municipal League at the Arute Club during the week. He emphasized the point that Scattle would be outstripped by Portland and other ports on the Coast unless bonds were voted for the barbur here. "All the projects involved are for the general interest of king County and Sestile," he said. "Yet each appeals more atrongly to a particular section. To seibmit these separately would be to risk arraying the interests of one section against another, and so jeopardize the success of all the projects. Nothwith-standing the arranges, there is a disposi-tion to take exactly the outcome. tion to take exactly the opposite stand and resent as unfair the plan of forcing a voter to support a bond issue he may not approve simply because it cannot be separated from something he wants.

Emerson Would Protect Forests.

At the recent meeting of the Washington commission on forest legislation, George H. Emerson, of Hoquiam, read a paper recommending stringent methods of pratection against fire. He would cut trails into the woods, increase the num-ber of wardens, sive them matercycles, hulld waichtowers connected by tele-phone and would inspire the people with as great a dread of fire in the country

"First of all." says Mr. Emerson, "stop rallway locomotives from emitting sparks. Nothing can be done that will save our Nothing can be done that will save our timber until the railroads are prevented from burning their greatest source of future revenue. They are responsible for nearly all the forcest fires today." The commission will recommend, among other things, the passage of a law enlarging the passage of the care of the city, and suddenly begin to the passage of the city and suddenly begin to the passage of a law enlarging the city and suddenly begin to the passage of the city of the city and suddenly begin to the passage of the city of the city and suddenly begin to the passage of the city of the ci parts running from 2:30 until 5:30 in the afternoon. There will be an orchestral recital, a platform meeting, a series of discussion groups, and a friendship supper. The plan which has been worked out by Secretary Arn S. Alien is based on the theory that idleness is the cause of wrongdoing, and that the best way to combat it is to keep the young men occupied. Therefore, having secured an audience of young men at 2:30 o'clock on Sunday afternoons, the T. M. C. A. intends to hold them until 6:30 o'clock.

INHERITANCE TAX LARGE

Washington Collects $189,121,62 From Estates in Two Years.

OLYMPIA. Wash., Oct. 16.—(Special.)
—During the biennial period ending September 30, 1910, the Washington
State Tax Commission collected $189, 121.62 in inheritance taxes on estates, with a total appraised value of $19,-824,897. In addition to this the com-mission also turned over to the state treasurer $12,820.70 in escheats, making the sum total of revenue for the state from this source $201,952.33.

King County paid more inheritance taxes than all of the other counties in the state combined, as the estates probated in that county were assessed $109,262.22. Ferry County didn't have an estate in all that time which was subject to the inheritance tax. Pierce subject to the inheritance tax. Pierce paid $9,192.20: Spokane $19,547.94; Walla Walla $7,217.44, and then ranks Clarke County with $4,797.78.

LAND GOES UNDER HAMMER Freewater Orchard Tracts Sold to Eastern Men at Auction.

PREEWATER, Or., Oct. 16.—(Special.)—Auction sales of fruit land is the latest innovation to which truitgrowers in this section are becoming accustomed. Two sales have just been held with most satisfactory re-sults and another one is scheduled for several weeks ago. Three of them being immediately recaptured and the fifth man is still at large.

The land is put up in five and 10-acre tracts, the auctioneer then pro-ceeding just as if he was disposing of a horse or other property. The re-sults, however, are so satisfactory that there seems a likelihood of all future sales in this section being made in this

Eastern buyers assert that by this method they are able to obtain a better idea of land values, as they directly compete with focal landowners, who know just what the property is worth. The property about to be soid is worth over $20,000 and consists entirely of splendid fruit and berry land.

Wade was the man most badly wanted by the officers. He was sent to the penitentiary for committing a murder in Jackson County, his brother being sentenced at the same time for the same offense. Both received life sentences, but the brother was pardoned a number of years ago. Wade was later sent to the criminal ward at the asylum. Officers here have always considered him most dangerous as a criminal, and he has been closely watched.

watched.

He was arrested in California under the allas of Wiley, on a charge of horse stealing. In one of his pockets was found a letter addressed to the Governor of Oregon and signed Frank Wade. The document is a lengthy one and typewritten, evidently having been written for him by someone else. He explains all of the details in connection written for him by someone else. He explains all of the details in connection with his case and seeks to secure a pardon. Whether Wade will be brought back here is not yet known. The penitentiary authorities were notified of his arrest, but as he was in custody at the asylum when he escaped, what disposition will be made of his case is not determined.

Harry Spencer, who escaped from the saylum westerday, was also captured to-asylum yesterday, was also captured to-day near Brooks. This is the third time Spencer has escaped. The last time he broke away from a working gang on the grounds.
