In that position they may be use: as supports when resting, and do not in-terfere with the men when firing.

GIRL'S DEFENDER FINED George Oliver Arrested for Fighting

With Edwin C. Newill.

That he came under the ban of the law through protecting a defenseless woman, to him unknown, was the story offered to Judge Taxwell by George Oliver yestorday to explain his arrest on a charge of fighting, after a sensational chase by Policeman Bunn, end-ing only when the office fired at the fugitive.

Oliver said that he was approached at Grand avenue and Burnside street by a laundry girl, who said that she was being followed and desired pro-tection. Oliver gallantly undertook the task, and fell foul of Edwin C. Newill. The two men were beligerent when Bunn interfered and arrested them. Oliver broke away and fied, while Newill was sent to jail. An hour later Bunn again encountered Oliver and attempted to arrest him. Oliver ran into the East Side railroad yards, but sur-He was NewII

It has a most commanding view of the rivers and mountains, a view of all views. It has been platted with the contour of the land, and each tract has a beautiful building site. Marine View joins Willalatin Park, in which place the St. Helen's Hall is to have its new home, on the south. The proximity of this girls' seminary, with the $1500 building restriction that prevails, insures an exclusive neighborhood. Three well improved roads intersect Marine View, which afford the most beautiful automobile drive out of the city.
