NGLE TAX MOVE TABOOED

endment to Be Voted on by Peoe of Oregon Next Month Declared Not to Best Interests of State—How Plan Works.

fty-two real estate men banquetat the Commercial Club last night, ch preceded the regular meeting of Portland Realty Board. This ved to be more or less of an inction session, at which many facts interest to the men in their proion were learned.

dgar B. Piper was the first speaker, ing on "The Relation of Real Es Men to Journalism," and showing the two professions have a great in common in building up the

W. Raymond explained the workof the bureau of the Commercial , of which he has recently been ointed the head, and the aim of ch is to attract factories to Port. Mr. Raymond carried on this sort of work successfully in Se and gave the real estate men e of the results of his experience re and an insight into the methods is going to employ here in getting nufacturing industries located in tland. In looking over the various ds offered for a suitable site, a tory, Mr. Raymond said, does not t the figures that will be available the future, after a certain growth been made, or certain extensions ught about. What it wants, and at he said the real estate men can p him get, are the exact figures present industrial conditions, so t definite conclusions may be ched as to the value of this particucity as a home for the industry.

Portland Ideally Situated.

Mr. Raymond reviewed briefly some the natural conditions of Portland the country about it that will at ct manufacturing industries here pointed out the brilliant future that sees for this city as a manufactur center.

Whitney L. Boise spoke on what was lly of the most vital interest to the n present as citizens of Oregon—single-tax amendment to be voted in the form of an initiative measure the election next month.

"For the past 25 or 30 years," said Boise, "the labor unions, a class ich seems most to be attracted to fallacy of the single tax, have de desperate efforts before the Legature of every state in the country have this principle enacted into law. is one of these periodical attempts t is to be made here in Oregon at next election.

"Everyone who has thought about it all can see the fallacy of the belief t only the land should be taxed. e single-taxers erroneously argue t the owners of land which has not n improved are taking a profit of earned increment that has accrued anse their neighbors have made imovements.

How Plan Works Out.

"Those people and those estates ich year after year have gone on ying their taxes without getting a t of return from their property have d a share in bringing about this unned increment. Those who have put buildings and are getting rental riodically are entitled to what they t, but it is wrong to assume that eir improvements have been the only tor which has increased the value the unoccupied land.

"All of the attempts that have been de to get the principle enacted into w through the state Legislatures ve failed because the proposition has t enough merit. No state in this untry has been willing to try the ngerous experiment. Now it is hoped at through the initiative it can be sted on the people of Oregon."

Mr. Boise also touched on other initive measures that will come up, reewing the proposed change in the ter system and advocating waterain extensions to be paid for by a nd issue, the rentals to pay the inrest and establish a sinking fund for e redemption of the bonds so that e connections may be practically free. General discussion followed the eeches and a committee of seven was pointed to report at the next meetg on the advisability of advocating e repeal of the law that makes it possible for an agent legally to colct a commission without possessing written contract.

The personnel of this committee is follows: Henry E. Reed, chairman; orge D. Schaik, Henry W. Fries, W. Chapin, Carl Jones, Allen Slaussen, A. Spanton. W. M. Killingsworth, esident of the Portland Realty Board, sided at the dinner and the meeting terward.

ARBER DEFENDS SOUTH

ederal Department of Justice Subject of Spirited Attack.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Defending e South from the charge of having duced its great mass of laboring en to a condition but one step from ponage, Attorney-General Garber, of labama, today, in the Supreme Court the United States, made a spirited ttack on the Federal Department of ustice.

The Attorney-General was defending e constitutionality of the so-called bor contract of law of Alabama. The alidity of the law had arisen in an ppeal of Alonzo Bailey, a negro, om his conviction of a misdemeanor nder the law.

The Department of Justice had been ermitted to file a brief to participate the argument of the case as a riend of the court." Mr. Garber exressed surprise that the "Dart from he quiver from Attorney-General Vickersham should have been drawn rom without the case rather than from acts within it."

2 MEASURES ON GRIDIRON

Proposed Laws on Ballot to Be Discussed at Meeting.

For the purpose of reviewing and nalyzing the 32 measures on the Noember ballot, a meeting will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in the Medical building, under the auspices of the Jackson Club. H. B. Van Duzer will preside.

It is announced that the meeting will be entirely non-political and speakers of both Republican and Democratic parties will take part in the discussion.

"There are so many measures to be acted upon that a meeting of this kind should result in aiding the voters to familiarize themselves on each subject," said Colonel R. A. Miller last night. "The Jackson Club believes that by inviting speakers well informed on the respective amendments to address the meeting it will have done a good service for the voters, irrespective of their politics."

INTENSELY strong and somber is "The City," the posthumous play by Clyde Fitch which was received with unusual demonstration at the Heilig Theater last evening. The problem it deals with is one not commonly exploited in modern literature, a marriage of consanguinity. Without doubt the piece is a most remarkable one, and of its kind highly effective.

Whether or not Mr. Fitch died before imparting to his effort the last finishing touches he had in mind, it is a characteristic and striking specimen of his work in comedy and melodrama. It is more than this, a fair proof that the author had in the ripeness of his experience prepared a rich morsel for the delectation of the voracious appetite for raw sensation, which grows only by what it feeds upon.

The story deals with the children of a hypocrite who have to atone with their lives for his sins. They live in Middleburg, N. Y., but yearn for the city. In the words of the baby of the family, "Why rejoice in new mown hay in Middleton, when you can smell gasoline on Fifth avenue?"

So they move to New York, make a merry mess of things generally, and they try to lay the blame for it on the city. The oldest son, who is hardest hit, defends the city in the last act, but after what has occurred in the second, a defense seems hardly to the point. For then a girl had unwittingly married her half-brother, a drug-crazed fiend who is in ignorance of the relationship. The girl's father, a prosperous banker back in Middleburg, has been the father also of this degenerate rake by a woman not his wife. The son, knowing only that he has a power over the banker, has blackmailed him up to the moment of his death, after the latter has revealed the trtuh to his son George and asked him to provide for the weak half-brother.

Then, in the city, when George has grown into a great factor in public life and has been given the nomination for Governor, the degenerate brother who has been directing his old tactics toward his benefactor and who has accumulated compromising evidence against his character, tries to market it in a scene with George. The latter casts him off and tells him that his attentions, just learned of, to Cicely, George's sister, must cease. When distractedly he calls the girl and demands that she cast the degenerate Hannock adrift, the young, foolish thing informs him that she and Hannock have been married several hours.

George has no alternative but to summon Hannock and tell him that Cicely is his half-sister. When the truth is out, her husband shoots her. He wishes to kill himself, but George takes the pistol away and sends it crashing through a window. With the body lying in another room, with the murderer awaiting trial, the protestations of the rest of the family sound hollows.

The horror of the deed is too greatly impressed upon the audience to permit of any happy glimpses into the future for the hero, in spite of the fact that the last curtain leaves him enfolding his staunch-hearted sweetheart in his arms.

The drama is admirably acted. To Geoffrey C. Stein, the actor, belongs the credit of showing up the whole psychological make-up of a character so steeped in depravity as Hannock, the drug-crazed parasite. He easily eclipsed every one else in his performance and scored a vivid effect in a scene of violent agitation in which remorse, terror and mania are combined.

Norman Hackett, as the brother George, is excellent. As the embodied ambition from the country town who makes the big city his own, Mr. Hackett suggests all the part demands, restless youth, complacent egotism, bewildered awakening and finally manly recognition of his own littleness when confronted with the big issues of life and death.

M. H. Harriman is the typical American big man of his small town, but over and above all looms the wonderful characterization of Geoffrey Stein's twitching, maddened, hysterical drug fiend, an almost unbearable realism.

"The City" will be given this evening, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night.

SIX BISHOPS NAMED

Episcopal Convention Discusses Economic Problems.

CHILD LABOR IS OPPOSED

Resolution of Protest Against Unfair Treatment of Jews in Russia Is Lost by Close Vote. Session Nears Close.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 20.—With the appointment of five new missionary bishops and the selection of a successor to Bishop Graves, of Kearney, Neb., today, the last important action by either of the houses of the convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in session here, probably was taken. The business sessions of the committees will conclude tomorrow noon.

The most noteworthy actions of the convention during its week's session have been the creation of suffragan bishops, the calling of a world's conference for Christian unity, and a movement indorsing unction to the sick for healing purposes.

Arthur F. Lloyd, bishop of Southern Virginia, was elected president of the reorganized board of domestic and foreign missions at the joint meeting of bishop houses today. Gordon King, bishop of Albany, was elected treasurer.

Protest Against Russia Lost.

A resolution in the house of deputies declaring that "We protest against the unfair and inhuman treatment of the Jews in the Empire of Russia" was lost by a close vote and the resolution was placed on the calendar.

Preceding the social service conference, a resolution presented by Bishop Greer, of New York, was adopted asking help from everyone to further the laws against child labor. Social and economic problems were discussed by speakers at the social service conference today.

The Bishop of Utah said that the question of making the rich charitable to the poor was not reaching the real heart of things and that to inculcate within the church sound ideas of economic justice was one of the prime issues.

At the night session of the conference, John B. Lennan, general treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, was the principal speaker.

New Bishops Appointed.

The following new bishops were appointed:

Rev. George Allen Beecher, of Omaha, to be bishop of Kearney, Neb.

Rev. Theodore Payne Thurston, Minneapolis, to be bishop of East Oklahoma.

Rev. Francis L. P. Potts, Shanghai, China, to be bishop of Wuhu, China.

Rev. Louis Sanford, Berkeley, Cal., to be bishop of San Joaquin, Cal.

Rev. Julius Walker Atwood, Phoenix, to be bishop of Arizona.

Rev. Edward A. Temple, Waco, Texas, to be bishop of Northern Texas.

By the election of these bishops the membership of the house of bishops of the church is increased to 110. Bishop Attwood is a missionary in Arizona. Bishop Sanford is secretary of the board of missions for the eighth missionary department and formerly was rector of St. Johns in San Francisco. Bishop Potts is head of St. John's College at Shanghai. Bishop Temple is the rector of the church at Waco, Texas.

OTIS COUNTY OPPOSED

VALE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ADOPTS RESOLUTIONS.

Initiative Measure Attributed to Desire of Drewsey to Become County Seat.

VALE, Or., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—The Vale Chamber of Commerce has adopted resolutions opposing the creation of Otis County. The commercial bodies of Ontario, Nyssa, Beulah, Riverside, and Juntura have taken similar action. The Vale resolutions are:

"Whereas, all the taxpayers of Malheur County residing in the district proposed to be cut off into Otis County are opposed to such action, for the reason that there is not sufficient taxable property in said proposed Otis County to maintain a county government,

"Therefore, be it resolved, that we deplore the action of the residents of Drewsey, Or., in seeking to initiate a bill for the establishment of Otis county, and request that the electors of the state vote against said measure."

Opponents of the bill give the following reasons, among others, for their position: That the new county will have to assume part of the debt of the counties from whose territory it is taken; that a courthouse and jail will have to be built; that a year will have to elapse before a tax can be levied and collected; that the county will be in debt at least $100,000 within the first year; that everything will have to be paid for in warrants; that with no prospects of such warrants being paid for 15 to 20 years they will be subjected from the beginning to a discount of probably 30 or 40 per cent, so that the county will pay a premium on everything bought; that those having only personal property will move out of the county to escape the heavy taxation; that Drewsey will be off the railroad and that in a few years the county seat would be removed; and that there can be little future development in that section because practically all of the land susceptible of cultivation is now in private ownership.

Children's Songs Delight Adult Hearers

Musical Gems Beautifully Warbled at Gaynor Concert.

If all the rosy-cheeked, starry-eyed, laughing-voiced babies of Portland, they and their mothers or nurses, could have been taken last night to the auditorium of the Masonic Temple and left for one hour and a half to listen to children's songs by Mrs. Jessie L. Gaynor and her two daughters, Misses Rose Fenimore Gaynor and Dorothy Eyre Gaynor, what a good old-fashioned treat those babies would have had. It would have been like home over again, with sugars and spice and all that's nice, added. The programme consisted entirely of children's songs, most of them composed and sung by Mrs. Gaynor and her charming daughters.

The concert, which was given for the People's Institute, was well attended and had a pleasant, homelike atmosphere rarely if ever experienced at Portland concerts. The magic name of Mrs. Jessie L. Gaynor is a household word and in one sense she is one of the most famous women in America. She is not known as a captain of industry, one who can make the stock market rise and fall at her nod, and universities are not called after her, but she and the influence of her songs have made American children happy and wondering, and have transformed the nursery into a place of joyous, birdlike music, mostly of the kind known as "mother's songs."

Mrs. Gaynor is from St. Joseph, Mo., and with her two daughters is now touring this Western country in concert. She possesses remarkable musical talent, as a composer, accompanist and singer, and these talents have liberally descended to her daughters. Mrs. Gaynor is a mezzo-soprano and it was a treat to hear her singing such children's gems as "Comparison," "Tired Shoes," "Nod-a-Way," "Only a Rose," "Making Calls," etc. Her voice is an unusually expressive one, and she speaks her words with scrupulous care.

Miss Rose Fenimore Gaynor has a contralto-soprano of light, birdlike, sparkling beauty, and she artistically "acts" her songs by using her eyes and facial expression so daintily. She was best in "The Ginger Jar," "Rondel" and "Mistress Mary." Her sister, Miss Dorothy, has a mellow, well-placed contralto voice of agreeable quality, which gives a sense of restfulness. Her best songs were, "My Valentine," "Because She Kissed It," "Das Rathses" and "The Sunbeam's Kiss," the latter rendition being marked by charming sentiment. All three singers were liberally encored.

APPLE CROP BEST YET

JOSEPHINE COUNTY YIELD PICKED AND SHIPPED.

But 20 Carloads Left to Complete Season's Business — Higher Price Is Expected.

GRANTS PASS, Or., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—The banner apple crop of Josephine County has been picked fully and is being shipped to Eastern and Southern points and London. Manager C. H. Eismann, of the Rogue River Fruit and Produce Exchange at Grants Pass, has given out the statement that to date Josephine County has shipped 29 carloads of apples and that there yet remains about 20 carloads to complete the shipping crop.

This is the largest and finest apple crop ever shipped in the history of this county and Manager Eismann says that buyers are uniformly satisfied with the pack and that he is daily receiving letters and telegrams of praise for the flavor and quality of the Rogue River apples.

While the apple market has not been as staple as could be wished, and has fluctuated toward low prices owing to the immense crop of the whole Pacific Northwest being thrown on the market, yet conservative growers believe that prices will go higher soon.

Recent returns show that 30 carloads of Baldwins from Grants Pass and Medford sold f. o. b. at $1 a box. Ten carloads were four-tier fruit and the balance four and a half tier fancy fruit. Fifteen carloads of yellow Newtons have brought prices as follows. Three and a quarter tier, $1.80 a box; four-tier, $1.60; four and a half tier, $1.35. All these quotations were f. o. b. Spitzenbergs, have been so recently marketed that no returns are yet available, but it is believed they will bring as high an average as $2 a box f. o. b. as both color and flavor are unusually fine this year. At least, half the crop will be fancy fruit.

LAND-FRAUD TRIALS BEGIN

Ex-Officers of Sugar Company in Court at Boise, Idaho.

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 20.—(Special.)—John H. Garrett, W. C. Howie, Fred B. Daniels, Elias J. Colthrop and C. J. Griffiths, ex-officers and business associates of the Great Western Beet Sugar Company of Mountain Home, charged with conspiring to defraud the Government out of valuable desert land, are on trial before Judge Frank S. Dietrich, in the United States District Court at Federal Chambers in this city.

The case opened this morning and in the entire day's session was spent in attempting to impanel the jury, a task found to be more difficult than was anticipated. There were seven jurors passed for cause as the net results. Court chambers were crowded with spectators. The Government was represented by District Attorney Lingenfelder, Assistant Tipton and C. H. Hartson, chief of the field division. A galaxy of prominent Southern Idaho lawyers appeared as counsel for the defense, including Judge K. I. Perky, Cavanah & Blake, J. C. Bockery, of Boise, and Wolfe, of Mountain Home.

During the latter part of the day's session the first clash between counsel came up. In examining jurors the District Attorney referred to embezzlement charges preferred against Garret, in Seattle. Counsel for the defendants hotly interrupted, asserting the reference was made to prejudice the jurors. The court sustained the defense.

WHAT'S THE USE

To Keep a "Coffee Complexion."

A lady says: "Postum has helped my complexion so much that my friends say I am growing young again. My complexion used to be coffee colored, muddy and yellow but it is now clear and rosy as when I was a girl.

"I was induced to try Postum by a friend who had suffered just as I had suffered from terrible indigestion, palpitation of the heart and sinking spells.

"After I had used Postum a week I was so much better that I was afraid it would not last. But now two years have passed and I am a well woman. I owe it all to leaving off coffee and drinking Postum in its place.

"I had drunk coffee all my life. I suspected that it was the cause of my trouble, but it was not until I actually quit coffee and started to try Postum that I became certain; then all my troubles ceased and I am now well and strong again."

"There's a reason."
