BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

THE following appeared in the "New York American" on August 25, 1909, written by Mr. Shotwell, financial editor of that paper:

"Wall Street has paid little attention to news of extreme importance from British Columbia. The Grand Trunk Pacific has this week let a $10,000,000 contract to Foley, Welch & Stewart for a third section of 140 miles of railroad in British Columbia. The company is building east from Prince Rupert and west from Yellowhead Pass. It will have trains running from Prince Rupert to Yellowhead Pass in two years, and will open some of the most magnificent timber, farming and mining country in the world. Although the region is far north, it is within the influence of the Japan current and the Chinook winds. The region is destined to become one of the richest in America.

"Wall Street may marvel at a railroad outlay of $50,000,000 in a single year for the province of British Columbia, but it forgets that British Columbia has seven times the area of the state of New York; that it has double the area of France, and mineral and agricultural wealth surpassing that of the German Empire, and a climate of unsurpassed salubrity. Moreover its fisheries are the richest on the continent, and its inland lake, its river and mountain scenery outrivals that of all the world.

"British Columbia, of all parts of the North American continent, should be watched by commercial men. The energy of 20,000,000 horses can be harnessed from its rivers, and its coal, iron, gold, silver, copper, lead, antimony and zinc mines will yet rival the greatest of the world. Moreover, it is a white man's country, with the lowest taxation and the best popular government on the continent."

Do you know that one hundred million dollars were made in the past year by small investors in one of the safest, cleanest and most legitimate propositions in the world? Fort George, the last great metropolis of North America, is starting on the line of America's greatest transcontinental railroad, the Grand Trunk Pacific. Fort George is the geographical center of British Columbia at the junction of eleven hundred miles of navigable waterways. Fort George is on the line of seven railroads chartered and building. Twenty-five thousand men with a payroll of $100,000 per day, will be employed in the Fort George district for the next five years in railroad building alone. Fort George commands the river navigation of Central British Columbia; it is the point where the Nechaco, with its tributaries, meets the Fraser.

Fort George is the central and distributing point for Central British Columbia today; and its central geographical location and strategic situation are such that it will continue to be the chief commercial place of Central British Columbia for all time. Central British Columbia is sufficiently vast in extent to support many cities. But there is declined to be one pre-eminent place of commerce and manufacture, one metropolis and it is inevitable that this place will be Fort George. To Fort George will be tributary all the natural resources of Central British Columbia, and all lesser towns and cities. Central British Columbia is sufficiently rich in natural resources to support a population of millions.

Vice-President and General Manager Chamberlain, of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, says:

"We regard Northern British Columbia as our great field, and we shall spare no effort or expense to develop that country in the most effective manner. As soon as our main line is completed we shall undertake the construction of branch lines, and one of the first we shall put in hand will be a line to the north. In our original plans our engineers proposed to start that line from the Bulkley valley, but we have now come to the conclusion that Fort George is the best point at which to connect it with the main line, and form our main junction point. There is a vast, rich country there awaiting transportation, and we shall supply it.

An investment of $100 a few years ago at the beginning of any of Western Canada's business centers, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Calgary, Vancouver, is now worth $50,000 to $100,000. Fort George will inevitably be one of the largest cities on the continent. You have the opportunity now to get in at the beginning. The government owns one-quarter of the townsite and guarantees and insures title. We are joint owners and sole agents. You can buy one of the choicest business lots for a short time only on payments of $10 to $20 per month. No interest. Let us send you a free copy of "British Columbia Bulletin of Information," giving official and up-to-date news of development and fortune making opportunities in British Columbia—Canada's largest and richest province.
