MUNLY'S REPLY CAUSTIC

CORBETT'S DEFENSE OF PORT BOARD HELD WEAK.

Leader of Campaign to Oust Commissioners Says Manufacturer Does Not Controvert Charges.

"Mr. Corbett's tirade is of the kind frequently heard from the police court lawyer, who, when his client has no defense, abuses the attorney on the other side," said M. G. Munly yesterday...

"That the precise terms of the proposed lease have never been made public and that it contained a provision providing for the sale of the public drydock to the Oregon Drydock Company on or before the termination of the lease."

"That the new schedule of rates is 60 per cent higher than the old rates in force at the public drydock making it impossible to compete with the Oregon Drydock Company."

"That Captain Macintosh was discharged because he used his best efforts to bring business to the public drydock, which is in competition with the Oregon Drydock Company, controlled by Corbett, Swigert et al."

"That C. F. Swigert owned stock in the Willamette Iron & Steel Works and that Mr. Corbett told Mr. Ballin that Mr. Swigert was to transfer his stock in order that the public drydock would be levelled at the works for building boats for the Port."

"That the public money was wasted by collusive bidding when the contract for the construction of the public drydock was let and that it was wasted in the purchase of supplies and river towboats."

"After all, it is fortunate that the Commissioners should have undertaken to obstruct the Broadway bridge as they thereby revealed their vulnerability and called attention to their lax and unbusinesslike methods."

"The committee of 50 to be appointed this week pursuant to the instructions of those at the mass meeting will endeavor to secure a full investigation of the charges made against the Port Commissioners and will not relax endeavors until a measure has been obtained bringing the Commission under popular control and making it responsible to the people."

"It will not cease until the transactions of the Port are taken out from behind closed doors in Swigert's office and transacted openly. This committee will also attempt to secure complete and jury investigation of the Commission's acts which are open to suspicion."

"The Republican issue has been defense of the direct primary law. Warnings have also been sounded, the issue has been broadened. Personalities have been avoided so far as possible. The fact that West lived in the United States 25 years before he took out his naturalization papers has not been used by the Republican committees at all in the campaign; a fact in decided contrast with the petty attacks of the West-Bourne-Chamberlain element on Bowerman—attacks that fell flat in the light of Bowerman's unimpeachable record."

When the machine issued a manifesto to the voters of Oregon not to vote for Bowerman and other Republican candidates not desired by the machine, it stepped into an unexpected trap. For these men were the nominees of the direct primary law, the primary law is regarded by thousands even above party and hence the Bourne treachery aroused a wide and bitter resentment.

WOMAN IN THE CASE AND REJECTED SUITOR WHO SHOT SUCCESSFUL RIVAL.

"Hayworth knew Rose Lessey, the woman the quarrel was about, only a few weeks before he married her. She had been his sweetheart for two years, first in Boise and later in Walla Walla and Portland. He made her ditch me and I wanted to get even," said Wiley Rhodes, aged 21, would-be assassin of W. H. Hayworth, a fellow-waiter, from his cell at the police station yesterday.

The youth blames his intoxicated condition for his action and expresses himself as glad that his rival was not mortally wounded by the two bullets which struck him in the struggle on the walk in front of 215 Tenth street Saturday night.

"I guess I wouldn't have done it if I hadn't been drunk, but he made me sore and I couldn't think of anything but getting even," he said in explanation. "I pulled the gun and commenced shooting without giving a thought to the consequences to myself, if I killed him."

Rhodes and I had a row a few weeks ago and parted. Hayworth knew that, but he induced her to marry him, just the same. I went to the place where they were living to get some trinkets of mine. I didn't see Rose. Hayworth started taunting me. On top of his stealing the girl that was too much for me, he had a brother in Walla Walla, Idaho. The woman's relatives, he says, live in Los Angeles, Cal., and Eastern Oregon. A friend of mine whom he had been sharing a room at the Philadelphia lodging house, corner Third and Salmon streets, yesterday telegraphed me to come to the assistance of his relative.

W. H. Hayworth, the victim of the shooting affair, is improving rapidly at St. Vincent's Hospital. Wounds Will Not Prove Dangerous — Youth Talks.

"BOOZE" OF "DRYS" SHOWN Window Filled With Alcohol-Bearing Medicine Brings Comment.

Rain spoiled all plans of the "wets" and "drys" for street speaking yesterday and unless the sun comes out today or the real wet is held up, both sides will content themselves with their big rallies tonight. The only excitement on the street yesterday was the display in the Perkins Hotel window. A large assortment of patent medicines containing all the "wets" and "drys" of any that has been tried. It was easy to tell how a man would vote after he glanced at the window. If he walked on with a smile, it was a "wet" vote. If he started an argument with a bystander or looked sour, it was a "dry" vote.

The "wets" will close their campaign tonight with a rally in the Armory. The meeting will be addressed by Captain Dan Morgan Smith, of Chicago, general counsel of the Model License League.

The "drys" will close their campaign with a big rally in the White Temple. The meeting will be addressed by Michael J. Fanning, of Philadelphia, a noted Irish temperance orator. The meeting will be presided by a parade through the downtown streets.

SUFFRAGE A DELUSION. We commend to the attention of electors the article in the current Ladies' Home Journal on conditions in the four states where women vote. The article is a demonstration that nothing good has come from the extension of the suffrage to women. The article is a "wet" vote. If he started an argument with a bystander or looked sour, it was a "dry" vote.

BALLOT TITLE. Don't be misled by the ballot title. The measure proposed involves votes for all women, native born or naturalized, not for tax-paying women only. This measure has been defeated three times in the last 10 years; it is an abuse of the initiative to propose it again. This year, Mark 801 on the official ballot and vote it down. OREGON STATE ASSOCIATION OPPOSED TO THE EXTENSION OF SUFFRAGE TO WOMEN. Mrs. Francis Bailey, President. (Paid advertisement.)

WALLOWA, Or., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—An estimate prepared from a number of estimates by members of both parties concede the county to Bowerman by 50 votes, to Lafferty by 258. The remainder of the state ticket will go from 150 to 250 Republican majority. The county will go dry by approximately 150 votes.

ENGINEERS TO RALLY VETERAN TRAIL-BLAZERS OF WESTERN ROADS TO GATHER.

Reunion of O. R. & N. and Northern Pacific Builders Is Under Way.

W. H. Galvani Backer.

A reunion of the few remaining railway engineers who blazed the trail for all the construction work of both the O. R. & N. and Northern Pacific routes through the Northwest is being planned.

William H. Galvani, of this city, states that arrangements for a dinner in under the auspices of the O. R. & N. and Northern Pacific routes through the Northwest is being planned.

"It is surprising," said Mr. Galvani yesterday, "to think how few of us are left. Of the large corps of engineers who helped to build the network of roads in the Northwest those who are still living are scattered through various parts of the country."

Henry B. Thelless, who was assistant to his father, Hans Thelless, chief engineer of the O. R. & N. and chief supervisor and engineer of the Northern Pacific, western division, is now engaged in the dairy business near Salem, being the proprietor of a large ranch.

Y. G. Bogue, who was assistant chief engineer of the Northern Pacific, is now a consulting engineer for several large enterprises in New York and last week was in Seattle on a professional visit.

W. W. Bretherton, assistant engineer for the O. R. & N. in the early days, now is claim agent for the Southern Pacific with offices in this city.

Engineer Rapp, who has charge of the construction work on the Mount Tabor Reservoir, was assistant engineer on the Northern Pacific on the line between Portland and Goble.

John R. Hanson, former chief of the drafting department of the O. R. & N., is now Deputy City Engineer.

Peter Hansen and Mr. Galvani divided their time between the office and field, the latter being the youngest in the service. The former is now with the United Railways and the latter for five years has been with the Oregon Electric.

George R. Marshall and Otto Kleeman were the chief of the engineering department of the O. R. & N. Joseph Chamberlain, then draftsman for the O. R. & N., is now a private accountant.

P. P. Weymouth, ex-superintendent of the Northern Pacific and now residing at Spokane, is probably the oldest of the corps still living. He is past 50 years of age.

Mr. Galvani hopes to get in touch with others of the early-day service, whose present addresses are unknown to him, by having them or their friends communicate with him.

Five Deer Shot. ATHENA, Or., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—Five deer were bagged by the party of hunters that left here a few weeks ago for a good hunt back in the mountains. They reported a very enjoyable trip and said that the deer were the finest of their family. The party was composed of F. B. Boyd, editor of the Athena Press, H. O. Worthington, Al Sigman, M. Kelly and Tom Larkey. They returned to their homes Wednesday morning.

THE GREATEST CRISIS IN A WOMAN'S LIFE IS WHEN FIRST SHE BECOMES A MOTHER. All the physical strength of her nature is demanded at such times, and it is necessary that her system be thoroughly prepared for the event, in order that her health be preserved for future years. Mother's Friend is woman's safest reliance; it is a medicine for external use, composed of oils and other ingredients which assist nature in all necessary physical changes of the system. Its regular use before the coming of baby prepares the muscles and tendons for the unusual strain, aids in expanding the skin and flesh fibres, and strengthens the tissues.
