Helvey contends that he was going out to help his father and brother drive some colts off their farm, when Smith, who was the larger of the two, sprang from behind a tree, brandished a club and struck at Helvey. With the intention of breaking Smith's arm, Helvey says, he fired twice, but both shots went wild. Just as they clinched, Helvey says, he have the clinched. Helvey says he fired again. The bullet entered Smith's heart, killing him. Helvey im-mediately telephoned to Sheriff Beatle to give himself up.

MR. M'PHERSON CONVINCED OF UNTRUTH OF CHARGES.

Previous Accusations of Mr. Ballin, He Says, Were Not Borne Out Upon Investigation.

"I have read with considerable inter est the statement of the Port of Portland Commission in this morning's Oregonian, which statement is both exgonian, which statement is both exhaustive and thorough in replying to the various charges of malfeasance," said W. G. McPherson yesterday.

I differ with them as to the necessity for the Broadway bridge, but I do not believe, after reading their statement, that any member of the Port of Portland Commission ever predict a dollar, directly or indirectly, by reason of membership in that body.
