> To formulate grounds upon which to base a complaint, the merchants prac-tically have decided to organize and employ an attorney who will be au-thorized to investigate and ascertain the best manner in which to bring the issue before the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is the opinion here that the merchants will subscribe freely toward carrying on the fight with the railroads, inasmuch as they have come to the conclusion that the present rates are not only unjust, but that they are a hindrance in the development of the country.

They say that it can be easily proved that the alleged excessive rates are due to manipulation and are not the result of economic conditions as contended by the railroads.
