OREGON URGED TO ADVERTISE ABROAD

Ex-Consul to Belfast Says Fruits Are Labeled "California" in Europe.

ORGANIZATION HELD NEED

Completion of Panama Canal Will Be Aid to Growers in Pacific Northwest, Miller Tells Horticultural Society.

"If Oregon expects to sell her apples in Europe," said H. B. Miller, ex-Consul to Belfast, in an address before the Oregon State Horticultural Society resterday afternoon, "she must establish a selling agency through an organization of her fruit-growers."

There were 500 interested fruit-growers in the hall at the time, and when Mr. Miller made the statement, he was cheered to the echo. He continued:

"If the selling of our products in Europe is essential to the expansion of the apple industry, and I am inclined to believe that it is, when you take into consideration the enormous increase in the acreage of apple-tree increase in the acreage of apple-tree planting, some systematic, organized effort must be made to advertise our products; to supply the trade and maintain the permanent, substantial and direct commercial relations between the dealers of Europe and the growers here. I expect no permanent market for products in Europe to justify our great production until some such organisation is permanently created. I do not mean that nothing can be done in any other way. I do not mean to intimate that our trade with Europe will not grow to some extent without it, but I do insist that nothing satisfactory will be established for our products until he established for our products until the growers create a proper organisa-tion to that end.

Canal Will Be Help.

The cost of transportation on the The cost of transportation on the completion of the Panama Canal will be reduced one-half. Many of our more delicate fruits will readily find a good market in Europe when this line of transportation is established. There will be no reason why direct shipments cannot be made with enormous experts from Portland to all the lead-ing fruit markets of the old world. It is of the utmost importance that the splendid fruits of the Northwest shall be properly advertised in the markets of Europe. It is the com-mon thing to see Oregon fruit labeled in the stands as 'California fruit.' It is the most universal thing to see Ore-gon prunes labeled 'California plums.' It is equally common to see the finest Rogue River pears marked 'Pears from Everywhere our fruit fails fo get its proper recognition on account of the general popularity of the Califor-nia fruit, and the fact that it is suf-ficient to make the labeling of it an advantage in its sale. The dealer will ell you that the Oregon apple, the egon pear, and the Oregon prune is perior to those received from Califor-s, but at the same time will proceed label the Oregon products as from

The fruit seller in Europe has pla cards printed 'American' and "Califor-nia' in large and attractive letters and keep them on hand for their fruit sales. It would be of great value to the Oregon product to have a small, nearly-printed placard 'Oregon Apples.' egon Pears. 'Oregon Plums,' that

The proper marketing of our fruit tative leads into the question of organization of the growers. I have no hope or faith whatever in the sub-stantial and successful expansion of our markets in Europe in any other method than by proper organisation of the growers for that purpose. Until that is accomplished everything will be chaotic, spasmodic and uncertain.

Organization Is Needed.

The primary work, therefore, as it seems to me necessary to the enlarge-ment of the fruit markets of the Northwest in Europe lies in the per-fection of an organisation of the grow-ers for the purpose of handling the European market primarily in their in terest. This organization must find methods of transportation and market-ing that will be of the most economical character. They must have represen-tatives in Europe to watch and care for the trade and device every possible means for extending and improv-

You will be able to produce something of a grade better than the average and the market will never be overstocked with first-class fruits."

WEATHER CONDITIONS

The western high pressure area with its attendant cold weather is central this evening over Western North Dakotn and the harometer has fallen slightly in the North Pacific States. No rain or snow of consequence has fallen in this district during the last twelve hours, except a small amount along the Strait of Puca. The Williametic River above Albany is now failing and all danger of damaging high water in Portland has passed. The river will continue to rise below Salem for two or three days and a stage of about 13 feet by Friday or Saturday will be the highest water that need be expected in Portland. The temperatures everywhere in the United States east of the Rocky Mountains are below normal and their are unusually low in the Middle West and in the South Albantic and East Gulf States.

The conditions are favorable for light rain Thursday in Western Oregon and Western Washington and for generally fair weather cast of the Cascade Mountains, No marked change in temperature will occur in the next 24 to 36 hours.
