

TRUCK SHOOTSMAN, THE KILLS SELF

Farmer Refuses to Hold Up Hands and Bullet Drops Him in Tracks.

ASSAILANT'S BODY NEAR-BY

Forest Grove Resident Will Probably Die From Wound—Would Be Assassin Blows Out Brains at the Scene of the Crime.

After shooting and perhaps fatally wounding Edward Naylor, a prominent and wealthy Forest Grove farmer, about 7:30 last night, Frank Linaker turned the 30-caliber revolver on himself and committed suicide. The would-be murderer blew out his own brains within 20 feet of the barn in which he had attempted the assassination of Naylor.

Sheriff Finds Body.

Sheriff Hancock, of Washington County, happened to be in Forest Grove last night from Hillsboro, the county seat. He was at the scene of the shooting within a few minutes. Upon being told of the third shot, which everyone had heard had been fired some time after the first two, he started out to search for the man who had shot Naylor.

Mr. Naylor, according to the story he recalled immediately after the shooting, was working in his barn when Linaker, whose identity was disclosed by papers found on his body after he had killed himself, entered and said:

"Throw up your hands."

"I have a damn sight," retorted Naylor.

Shot Goes Over Head.

The intruder then fired over Naylor's head. This did not seem to have any visible effect upon Naylor. He remained cool and collected.

"Damn you! I'll make you throw up your hands," exclaimed Linaker, leveling the gun at Mr. Naylor's body.

The next moment he had fired and the Forest Grove farmer lay writing on the floor, a bullet lodged almost in the center of his abdomen.

Paul Strickland, the intruder then washed from the barn a few moments later, neighbors of Naylor, whose farm is just outside the corporate limits of Forest Grove, found him badly wounded on the floor of the barn.

Mr. Naylor was a few yards from the door of the building found the body of his would-be assassin, a large jagged hole extending completely through the head.

Body Is Identified.

On Linaker's body were found cards showing that he had been a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows and Knights of Pythias lodges at Menlo, Ia. A postal card signed, "Clara," mailed at North Yamhill and addressed to him at Hood River, and a checkbook of the North Yamhill Bank, North Yamhill, Or. were also found in his pockets.

No notebook or memorandum indicating that he had an account with the bank were found. He had $1.15 in money.

There is considerable mystery attached to the affair. According to Naylor, no request was made upon him for money, although that might have followed had he thrown up his hands when first ordered to do so. His theory is that the man was seeking a place to sleep. Naylor is an unmarried man about 35 years of age and there is only a barn upon his property. He had roomed and taken his meals at the Michigan House, a Forest Grove hotel. Sheriff Hancock and Coroner Brown, of Washington County, are conducting the investigation.

A man closely answering the description of Linaker stopped at a house in Forest Grove, where he had been identified by Naylor by mistake and continued the error by mistaking Edward for George.

As far as is known in Forest Grove, however, neither of the Naylor brothers, both of whom have lived in that vicinity practically all their lives, had an enemy who might wish to take his life.

Dead Man Stranger.

Charles Mertz, a resident of Forest Grove, says that he saw Linaker in Hillsboro earlier in the day. Edward Davis, manager of the Pacific States Telephone Company, says that he saw the dead man, and a companion in a Forest Grove restaurant eating supper. This has led to the belief that Linaker had an accomplice, although nothing has been seen of the second man since the two were seen together in the restaurant.

The dead man is about 35 years of age. He was dressed in corduroy trousers, light slouch hat, heavy buckled shoes and coarse cloth shirt. His appearance is that of a laborer. He had never, so far as could be ascertained, been seen around Forest Grove until yesterday.

Edward Naylor is a son of T. J. Naylor, who took up a donation claim near Forest Grove in the early forties. The farm on which the shooting occurred is a part of the old homestead.

Edward Naylor was a graduate of Pacific University. He is reputed to be worth at least $25,000, but it is said by Forest Grove people, seldom carried any large amount of money in his pockets. He is best known as a breeder of goats, having captured many important prizes at large exhibitions, among them the Alaska-Tukoa-Pacific Exposition in Seattle.

"Formal demand or requisition of one government upon another for the surrender of a fugitive is a political character. It would appear, therefore, that the making of a requisition is a matter which primarily concerns the political branch of the government.

The first objection raised by counsel for the accused in this case is without merit and of no effect in defeating extradition.

The second objection is that Charlton

PORTER HAD GUN, DEFENSE SHOWS

Public Opinion Regarding Parker Murder Case Undergoes Change.

MANY WITNESSES TESTIFY

Father of Prisoner Creates Sensation by Relating Conversation With Porter, Containing Reference to Previous Crime.

LA GRANDE, Or., Dec. 9.—(Special.)—With defense in the Jess Parker murder case coming into its own, opinion is still the United States, a opinion is swinging in another direction and many who were convinced Parker would be found guilty of the murder of his father-in-law, are surprised that the defense has an overwhelming pile of evidence.

The story of four eyewitnesses and one or two others put on the stand by the prosecution that Porter did not have a gun, is now being counter-balanced by nearly a dozen witnesses that Porter had a gun on his person the day he was shot; that a gun was found in the dust at the exact spot where he was shot, a few days later, by Attorney Cochrane, who is investigating the case, and that Porter is alleged to have said: "He got that to fix the Parkers."

The state witnesses testified Porter never carried a gun, yet witnesses for the defense, to the number of seven or eight, declared he did often and that on the day of the killing especially was that true. Not only did the defense have witnesses to show that Porter had a gun, but also that he had a pair of brass knuckles.

Many Witnesses Testify.

A. H. Stone was the first witness in the trial to state that Porter carried a gun and brass knuckles. Following this statement came Dan Graham, who also said he was aware for some time that Porter was carrying a gun and brass knuckles. George Barnard was another witness, who in riding to Elgin with Porter on one occasion, observed that Porter carried a gun. Frank Brassius stated that at one time Porter had showed him a gun, saying: "I got it for the Parkers." Porter also displayed the brass knuckles, saying he might have to use them also, testified Brassius. Oscar Swicker, a former son-in-law of Mr. Porter, said he had worked with Porter day after day and saw a gun and brass knuckles in his hip pocket frequently.

In the testimony of Woodson Gray, it was brought out that Porter said to Gray: "I'll whip Jess Parker, if it takes me any time."

Prisoner's Father on Stand.

Grant T. Gray was another important witness for the defense. He recalled his neighborhood relations with Mr. Porter, and told of several conversations they had had relative to the Parkers. On one occasion, according to Mr. Gray's recollection, Porter said he will give $10 to get either of them (meaning Jess or his father) to touch me. All I want is for one of them even to touch me.

The father of Jess Parker was an important witness.

When Sam Parker was telling of the Porter trouble, he remarked that William Porter had made threats against the Parkers, saying he would lay them under the sod, just as a relative of his had done the Macy family.

This remark caused every old-timer who is familiar with Eastern Oregon history to take notice, for in the early days the Macy family were murdered in the Valley by a man named Porter, an attorney and conviction Porter was hanged in Union.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The Government's case against the so-called "coal trust" will be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Department of Justice set forth today its determination not to be satisfied with partial victory in the United States Circuit Court at Philadelphia, which held the Temple Iron Company to be an illegal combination.

The statement follows in part: "As soon as the judgment is settled and entered, the Government will appeal to the Supreme Court for so much of the judgment as is in favor of the defendants. The case will be entitled to priority in the Supreme Court and it is hoped it may be advanced and heard at a reasonably early date."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—At the end of another day of conferences and Cabinet consideration, it appeared today that President Taft was but little nearer a solution of the Supreme Court problem than he was at the beginning of the week. Several tentative slates were fixed, it was said, only to be wiped out upon final consideration.
