LIQUOR MEN LOSE LICENSE TO SELL

Bruno and Bolich Denied and Others Are in Danger, but Get One Chance.

PLEAS ARE TO BE HEARD

Chief Cox, When Questioned, States "Lower Class" of Grills Should Not Be Granted Renewals. Reticence Criticised.

Several applications for renewel of liquor license for 1911 are in danger of being rejected by the Council. The liquor license committee yesterday voted to deny the renewals of Peter Bruno, 99 North Second street, and Monroe Bolich, 75 North Sixth street, and several saloon and restaurant applications for renewals were postponed for investigation.

The committee will decide today when the next meeting will be held, at which applicants for renewals, thus postponed, will be heard in their own defense.

The report of the committee will come before the Council at its next regular meeting, a week from today.

Chief of Police Cox was questioned by the committee concerning questionable places which seek renewal of licenses, but he merely filed a list of owners of places who have been fined and his only recommendation was that no licenses should be granted to the "lower class" of grills.

Some places of evil reputation have not been molested. One is conducted by Peter Bruno; another is owned by Toney Arnaud, Fourth and Everett streets.

Although Chief Cox gave no intimation that these places were not good, the committee unanimously rejected Bruno's application, and withheld Arnaud's for further investigation.

Cox's failure to report various questionable places, against which public criticism has centered, was criticised by the committee.

Saloon licenses withheld for investigation yesterday:

Peter Sinclair, 460 Glisan; Nichol & Bond, 404 North Nineteenth; Tim Nichles, 21 North Fourth; C. Rus, 91 North Second; M. Ralovich, 74 North Second; J. Mulinos, G. Hoohoulas and J. Pappainon, 285 Burnside; J. Marandas, G. Contos and G. Arvanitganis, 274 Davis; Toney Arnaud, Fourth and Everett; R. J. Emrich, 256 Union avenue; J. T. Ellerby, 203 Third; Pat Douglas, 266 Pine street; J. Charland, 188 Third street; T. A. Gordan, 635 North Sixth, and P. D. Healey, 226 Stark.

Several restaurant proprietors will be summoned before the committee and show why their applications for renewal of liquor licenses should not be refused.

HOME CLUBS ARE STARTED

Y. M. C. A. Takes Up Extensively New Work for Boys.

Organization of boys' clubs to meet at the homes of the boys is a work that has just been undertaken by the Portland Young Men's Christian Association. General Secretary Stone and J. C. Clark, head of the boys' department, regard it as one of the most important steps the association has taken and expect to continue forming these clubs until they are scattered throughout the entire city.

The first club of this kind has just been organized at Sunnyside. Several other suburbs have applied to the Y. M. C. A. to take up the work and these requests are to be granted just as rapidly as possible.

"These clubs," said Mr. Stone yesterday, "are of untold benefit. They take hold of the boy just at the time he is breaking away from home ties and provide entertainment for him at his own home and at the homes of his associates. Attendance at these club meetings is certainly better for the boy than the alternative, whereby he is left to entertain himself as he will about the city."

The general interest in boys' clubs is shown by the fact that the Y. M. C. A. recently received from five different sources in a single day invitations to form these organizations. Rose City Park, Sellwood, Woodlawn and Highland are the Portland suburbs from which requests came, while one application was from out of town.

TAKE WOMAN IN DISGUISE

Jessie Hamilton, in Male Attire, Caught Drinking on Street.

Dressed in full masculine garb and drinking openly on the street from a bottle of whisky, Jessie Hamilton, aged 25, who says that she is a school teacher from Montana, was arrested by Patrolman Whitesides just after daylight yesterday at Fourteenth and Burnside streets, in company with Cecil G. Melville, a stonecutter. The pair said that they had spent the night slumming.

The attention of the officer was attracted to the masquerader and her companion at Fourteenth and Washington streets, and he followed them northward. He saw Melville hand a bottle to his companion, from which she drank. Thinking that the whisky was being given to a boy, Whitesides advanced and flashed his pocket light in the drinker's face, whereupon he discovered a woman in disguise. Her hair was coiled up under her hat. Both were placed under arrest.

The woman said that she lived at 322 Couch street. Bail of $25 was deposited by each of the prisoners, and they left the station before more could be learned concerning them. When their cases were called in Municipal Court they failed to appear, and the bail was declared forfeited.

BRIDGE PLANS INSPECTED

Morris Will Not Guess at Cost Until Details Are Known.

Plans for the proposed bridge across the Willamette River, at Ellsworth and Mead streets, will be ready for submission to the City Council at the meeting following today's session. City Engineer Morris had expected to have them completed for today's meeting, but other matters intervened.

The joint bridge committee from the South East Side and West Side visited City Engineer Morris yesterday and were shown the maps of the proposed bridge as far as they have been finished. These plans were explained in detail by Mr. Morris.

According to the plans the bridge will be practically 4000 feet long, including the West Side and East Side approaches. It will contain 11 spans, nine being 250 feet each; the West Side span 216 feet and the East Side, 110 feet.

The draw span will be 250 feet long and will be a lift-draw like the one on Hawthorne bridge.

In the clear the bridge will be 60 feet wide.

Unlike the spans of the Morrison and Hawthorne bridges, these will be supported by Pratt trusses from below the deck of the bridge, so the bridge will look like a paved street, or like the structures across Sullivan's Gulch.

On the West Side the landing will be made on Water and Mead streets and there will be a steel viaduct between the river and the landing.

"This style of bridge," Engineer Morris said to the committee, "is the best and most economical that can be constructed for the money. It will endure. Engineers of the O. R. & N. Co. and others inspected the plans and pronounced them worthy.

"We have arrived at a time when bridges across the Willamette must be the best, permanent in character, economically constructed. The viaduct on the West Side might be cheapened by using piles, but that would be temporary."

Engineer Morris was asked as to the probable cost, but he declined to give estimates.

"I would not guess at the cost," he declared, "until the details have been worked out. A thousand and one things must be considered, which includes the bridge itself, rights of way, and other things, but the bridge will cost considerable money, as the point spanned is a wide portion of the river."

"We hope the bridge won't cost above $1,000,000," a member of the committee said. Morris smiled and did not reply.

On the East Side it is contemplated to straighten out Ellsworth street and make it 70 feet wide between the approach and Milwaukie street. City Engineer Morris approved of this plan and offered suggestions as the best method of straightening out the jogs at East Sixth street.

STREET LIGHTS STUDIED

A. N. SPENCER, ON VISIT, SAYS PORTLAND SYSTEM GOOD.

Only Objection Made Is Installation of Different Kinds of Electroliers.

Studying the lighting of Portland, with a view of taking his impressions back to his home city in the hope of having them adopted, is the object of the visit to Portland of A. N. Spencer, chairman of the lighting committee of the Commercial Club of Grand Rapids, Mich. Mr. Spencer has devoted three days of his stay here to a thorough examination of Portland's method of municipal lighting. He was willing to concede last night that Portland is a well-lighted city but he thought Portland was somewhat deficient in the proper esthetic treatment of the subject.

"I have visited probably 15 or 20 cities since last October," said Mr. Spencer in commenting upon his investigations. "Among these places are Atlanta, New Orleans, St. Louis, Birmingham, Memphis, Nashville, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle. Grand Rapids, my home town, is the best lighted city in the world, but from an artistic sense it is as far behind as any city in America. We have not outgrown the carnival idea of stringing wires from corner to corner like fish lines, with a light for a hunk of bait ever foot or so. But we will get out of the rut and when we place our system in operation it will be the most attractive to be found in the country.

"I regard Los Angeles as the most completely lighted city in the world. For 10 miles on Broadway it has a string of seven-globe electroliers. They are all uniform, of beautiful Corinthian design, and give an impression to the mind that is lasting. I found Nashville the most beautifully arranged in the matter of its lights. Here their columns are made of fluted burnished copper, beginning at the standard and extending up to the arms. When lighted, and in the daytime, these electroliers give a wonderful effect and ad much to the scheme of the 'city beautiful' which is being undertaken by so many municipalities in the country.

"Portland, to my notion, is not conforming to best artistic sense obtainable. I find that your electroliers differ. You have sometimes three, sometimes four and sometimes five globe lights for your arms to carry. Each post is of different design, varying according to the wishes, apparently, of the merchants who live on the streets.

"If you expect to make your city conform to the beauty of your scenery, you should make your scheme not of the crazy-patch order but one harmonious whole with due consideration for the immensity of your snow-capped mountains and your rugged shores of the river and ocean. You have wonderful possibilities in Portland to create effects but you can only do so by considering your natural scenery and then making all man-made things unite in the perfection of your glorious whole."

ACTRESSES TO SELL SEALS

Misses Grace Cameron and Alice Lloyd to Aid Red Cross Work.

Two charming actresses are to aid in the sale of the Red Cross seals this week. Miss Grace Cameron, who is appearing at the Bungalow, will sell at Tull & Gibbs this afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30. She will also sell at Swetland's tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Alice Lloyd, who is appearing at the Orpheum this week, will conduct a sale of seals at the Portland Hotel tomorrow from 12 to 1 P. M. and at Olds, Wortman & King's store from 4:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon.

A dressed sheep has been donated to the Red Cross cause by Adams Bros. The meat will be put on sale today at the Jones' Market, the money to go to the tubercular fund of the Visiting Nurse Association.

Those to sell seals at booths today are: Tull & Gibbs, Mrs. H. M. Carlock, Mrs. Glendenning and Miss Inez Slocaton; Meier & Frank, Miss A. Kinny, Miss Maida Hart and Miss Bertha Tongue; Olds, Wortman & King, Mrs. Walter Gates, Mrs. George Marshall, Miss Caroline Benson and Miss Jessie Hurley; Lipman, Wolfe & Co., Miss Marguerite Boschke and Miss Geraldine Hall; J. NEW INDUSTRY PLAN

Coopey Organizes Company to Manufacture Uniforms.

DEMAND BIG AND GROWING

Promoter Expects to Have Factory in Operation Early in Year and to Employ at Least 50 Men by Next June.

Organizing a company with a capitalization of $50,000 for the purpose of manufacturing uniforms and creating an extensive general suit order business, Charles Coopey, a local merchant tailor, believes he will be able to build up an industry which will supply the needs of the three Northwest states, and incidentally save in the aggregate large sums of money to buyers of uniforms and suits of Oregon, Washington and Idaho. The company was incorporated Monday by Charles Coopey, J. R. Coopey, Fred Muller and W. Y. Masters.

Mr. Coopey announces that he will be ready soon to give out the details of his extensive plans. He has sufficient backing, he says, to assure the success of the undertaking.

"There are thousands of men employed in various pursuits in the Northwest who require special kinds of uniforms," said Mr. Coopey. "These men must necessarily buy their uniforms in the East as there are no houses in the Northwest where adequate supplies are carried for this kind of trade. In Portland alone, the men employed by the streetcar company, interurban lines and railroads will easily number 1500. Their uniforms are purchased every year from Eastern houses.

"One can readily see that the local demand is large. But by extending the field to cover the three Northwest states, it is apparent that the possibilities are attractive for this line of business.

"Hundreds of thousands of dollars are sent out of this part of the country annually for uniforms, regalia and kindred apparel. A good establishment in Portland could get the bulk of this trade.

"It is my belief that we could keep right here in Oregon the first year $300,000 which otherwise would go to the East for uniforms and clothing of the kind that we propose to make, and there is no reason why this amount should not be increased year by year. It is my hope to make Portland a clothing center, as it is now becoming a furniture center. We expect to get into operation by the middle of January and by June at least 50 people should be employed in our factory.

"The demand for uniforms in Portland, which is already large, is increasing every day, and orders from all over the Northwest come to my house in this city. What is needed to reduce the cost to purchasers is ability to carry a large stock of goods and standardization of methods of production. Where it now costs $8 to make a coat, giving the work to one man, we could reduce that cost to $4.50 if we could let six men work on the coat, having each workman perform the operation that he is most expert at. That is the secret of successful manufacture in any line and it applies to the manufacture of clothing as perhaps it does to nothing else.

Several prominent business men have declared themselves greatly pleased over the launching of this enterprise and say it is deserving of most cordial support. There is such a wide variety of classes of occupation where uniforms are required that the business of supplying them is already important and is becoming more so. Among them I may mention steamship and riverboat officers, railroad and streetcar employes, elevator operators, hotel employes, Army, Navy, National Guard, military academies, war veterans, policemen and firemen, uniform ranks of lodges, messenger boys, servants in liveries, baseball players, and so on. There is scarcely any end."

Mr. Coopey has been a resident of Portland for 19 years and has manufactured most of the uniforms ever made in Oregon.

Mr. Coopey plans to manufacture woolen fabrics and water-proof cloth, in addition to the uniforms and general clothing for men and women.

WEDDING KNOT TANGLED

JUSTICE ACCEPTS LICENSE OF ANOTHER STATE.

Olson in Doubt as to Legality of Own Action—Clerk Suggests Amended Law.

Justice of the Peace Olson has tied a marriage knot, which, after five months, is looked upon as a tangle that the State Circuit Court may be called upon to unravel.

In a nutshell, Magistrate Olson married in Oregon a couple to whom license to wed was issued in Washington. County Clerk Fields contends that the marriage is illegal. Judge Olson says he is not certain of the law.

The license was issued July 14 by the Auditor of Yakima County, Wash., to Alfred F. Lyons, of Linn County, Or., and Miss Eulila G. Lewis, of Yakima. The couple sped to Portland July 16 and Judge Olson performed the ceremony in the presence of W. E. Kilman and Edward J. Davey. The document reached County Clerk Fields on its official round, and is filed for reference in case a suit ensues.

A Portland clergyman recently married a couple under the same conditions, and upon being informed by Mr. Fields that the ceremony probably was void the minister experienced considerable difficulty. He found the couple after search lasting several days and a new ceremony in the home state and county of the contracting persons was required to legalize the union.

County Clerk Fields is preparing marriage statistics to guide him in framing a more stringent law against the performance of marriage ceremonies by magistrates and clergymen in counties where neither the bride nor bridegroom resides. He declares that such a measure is required to keep state and county records clear, and aims to submit a bill covering this point to the next Legislature.

As the law now stands it is stipulated merely that ministers and magistrates shall file returns of weddings performed, but no penalty is attached for violation of the statute. The bill in view will contain a penalizing clause.

Tonight at Hotel Portland the teachers of this city will be hostesses at a large reception in honor of Dr. Margaret Schallenberger, of the San Jose Normal School, and the visiting instructors who are here for the Western convention. The receiving line at this affair will include Mrs. L. W. Sitton, Miss Mary Donohoe, Miss Christine MacConnell, Miss Emma Greibel, Mrs. Ella Slayback, Miss Mabel Stout and Mrs. A. E. Watson.

NATIONAL STANDARD DESIRED

Teachers Want Certificates Good Throughout Union.

The annual convention of County School Superintendents of Oregon met in Jefferson High School yesterday and was called to order at 10 o'clock by J. H. Ackerman, State Superintendent. E. F. Carleton, Assistant Superintendent, was elected secretary.

The most important business of the day was a discussion of resolutions adopted by the conference of State Superintendents held at Salt Lake City, November 17, 18 and 19.

The aim of these resolutions is to adopt a standard of certification, whereby a teacher may, after securing a life certificate in one state, have it indorsed in any state in the Union.

The convention here approved of the resolutions adopted there.

Other topics discussed were teachers' institutes, and inspection of schools by county superintendents. At the convention a year ago it was decided to make a campaign for better sanitary conditions in the schools. It developed today that in many counties during 1910 superintendents have been able to abolish the common drinking-cup and to have an effective plan of ventilation adopted.

Besides the county superintendents, there were at the convention: L. R. Alderman, State Superintendent-elect; Father Galagher, president of Columbia University; P. L. Campbell, president of the State University; Fletcher Homan, president of Willamette University; E. E. Coad, City Superintendent, Hood River; E. T. Moores, president of the Teachers' Association, which meets at the Jefferson High School today; Miss Cornelia Marvin, secretary State Library Commission.

The following counties were represented:

Baker, Superintendent William Smith; Benton, H. L. Mack; Clackamas, T. J. Gary; Clatsop, Miss Emma C. Warren; Columbia, J. H. Collins; Douglas, Thurman Chaney; Josephine, Lincoln Savage; Lane, W. B. Dillard; Linn, W. L. Jackson; Gilliam, J. C. Sturgill; Morrow, S. E. Notson; Crook, R. A. Ford; Multnomah, R. F. Robinson; Lincoln, R. P. Goin; Polk, H. C. Seymour; Sherman, W. C. Bryant; Umatilla, F. K. Welles; Union, E. E. Bragg; Wasco, Justus T. Neff; Washington, M. C. Case; Klamath, J. G. Swan; Marion, W. M. Smith; Yamhill, H. H. Belt.

ROSE CITY WORLD MECCA

Christian Church Heralds Praise of Portland Everywhere.

Arrangements are being made for the National convention of the Christian Churches, which will be held in this city July 4 to 12, 1911.

It is expected from 8000 to 10,000 people from all parts of the world will attend.

A campaign of publicity will soon be undertaken through the press of the United States, the object being to herald the advantages of Portland as a convention city.

In order that this work may be successfully accomplished Will F. Powell, an experienced newspaper man, has been selected to direct the publicity campaign.

Mr. Powell says:

"At the last convention, held at Topeka, Kan., it was unanimously decided Portland should have the next convention and it is the purpose to make this gathering the most interesting and profitable ever held by the Christian Church. A gratifying feature in an undertaking of this kind is to see the public spirit manifested by the people of Portland, regardless of religious affiliation. Co-operation is quite apparent every where.

"Conventions of this character, not only help in a commercial way, but stimulate religious growth, and we are confident it will be an impetus to the rapidly growing work of the Christian churches on the Pacific Coast."

COMPROMISE NOW PLAN

PROPERTY OWNERS ON HALL STREET OPPOSE ASSESSMENT.

Should City Decline to Agree With Citizens Courts Will Be Asked to Settle Dispute.

Property-owners on Hall street, who have been opposing the assessment against their property of more than $30,000 as the result of a contract let for about $13,000, decided at a meeting held in the City Hall yesterday afternoon to agree to a compromise with the city for a payment of 33 1-3 per cent in advance of their contract price. In case the city refuses to agree to such a compromise the committee appointed to offer it will take steps to have the courts decide if they are legally responsible for the price charged.

The City Engineer has explained that the excessive cost of the work was due to more excavation and concrete work being necessary than was originally outlined in his estimate. The property-owners insist that if they had been informed that the contract price would be almost three times that for which the contract was let, they would have gone to the Council and opposed the improvement. They feel that they have been injured by the action of the city, and at the meeting yesterday made it evident that they would not, under any circumstances, pay the amount for which they were assessed unless authorized to do so by the courts.

At the meeting Joseph Gaston served as chairman and C. H. Farrington acted as secretary. The chairman announced that he would appoint a committee of five to deal with the city some time today, as he wanted time in which to make the selection. The motion made to prevent attorneys from being appointed on the committee was lost.

The meeting was attended by a large number of men and women. The City Engineer's office received the blame for the whole trouble from the majority of speakers. Some of the property-owners insisted that the men responsible for the error should be made to suffer for it, but it was pointed out that the entire city would have to pay the damages in case the court decided in favor of the property-owners.
