The number in the classes range from 16 to 40.

EIGHT GRAVES TO BE MOVED.—Extension of Villa avenue from East Eighty-second street 80 feet wide to the city limits means that eight graves in the old Brainard Cemetery east of Montavilla must be moved. W. E. Brainard, owner of the cemetery, is willing that the graves should be moved to another part of the cemetery, but the consent of relatives of those buried must be obtained. There will be a cut of about 20 feet on the side of the cemetery when the avenue is extended, and the eight graves are close to the proposed street. A committee from the Montavilla Board of Trade is conferring with the relatives.

RAILROAD CUT CAUSES INCONVENIENCE.—The deep cut the Mount Hood Railroad Company is making through the eastern part of Montavilla is causing great inconvenience to people who live east of the cut. The bridge on Villa avenue is down part of the time. It was out of commission Saturday and Sunday and up again Monday. When it is down the mails cannot be delivered to people who live east of the cut.

MOUNT HOOD RAILROAD FRANCHISE TO BE CONSIDERED.—A mass meeting of residents and property owners of Irvington and Holladay Addition will be held Friday night, in the First Universalist Church, East Twenty-first street and Broadway, to consider the proposed franchise for the Mount Hood Railroad on Halsey and Weidler streets. Considerable opposition has been developed among residents who object to the noise of the carline. They contend that the main line of the Mount Hood Company should run down Sullivan's Gulch and reach the West Side over the railroad bridge and not run through a residence district. The company is asking for a franchise on Halsey and Weidler streets to connect with the Broadway bridge near the Willamette River. For freight cars it is announced that the company will use the present track of the O.-W. R. & N. Co. between Montavilla and the new railroad bridge.

SHEEPMAN BUYS HOME

RICH MONTANAN WILL INVEST IN PORTLAND.

With Another Billings Man, C. M. Bair Also Buys 16,000 Acres in Yamhill County.

C. M. Bair, of Billings, Mont., the largest individual owner of sheep in the United States, yesterday bought the Joel M. Long residence at Sixteenth and Wasco streets, and will make his home in Portland. Mrs. Bair and her daughters, Margaret and Alberta, are with Mr. Bair and will move into their new home Friday or Saturday. Mr. Bair has telegraphed for the shipment of his automobiles and his servants will come to Portland at once.

"Mr. Bair owns 150,000 head of sheep in Montana and is a director and principal owner in several banks and mercantile establishments. It is his intention to invest heavily in Portland property.

"For 27 years I have made my home in Montana," said Mr. Bair. "I have felt the necessit yof giving my family some of the better opportunities of life, and for that reason I have chosen Portland as the place to live in. There is a tremendous future for Portland. You have the only water level city on the Coast, and your territory is beyond question one of the largest in the country today remaining undeveloped. I have bought 16,000 acres in Yamhill County. William Rae, of Billings, is interested with me in this venture, and I understand that he also is coming to Portland to live. He commands considerable capital and will take part in your progress, I have no doubt.

"I am delighted with your climate and I know that I am going to find the city all that I expect.

"We have lived on the plains of Montana so long that we shall find it quite different here. Over in Montana we have some of the best friends to be found. There is no better state in the world than Montana, and it is with regret that we have decided to leave for the present and make our home here. The Winters there are severe, however. We want to enjoy Portland's mild Winters and take advantage of your schools for our children.

"We expect to do something with the 16,000 acres in Yamhill County, and I am inclined to believe that we shall experiment first, to determine the best that circumstances will warrant. The Willamette Valley is the greatest in the world, and some day will be one of the most densely populated spots on the earth. I do not expect to follow any particular line of business here. I still have my Montana interests and that will keep me busy."

Eugene's Lighting May Cost $15,800

EUGENE, Or., Jan. 10.—(Special.)—At a special meeting of the City Council last night the fire and water committee was directed to ascertain the probable cost of a city lighting system, in order that an amendment to the city charter may be prepared and submitted to the voters at the April election. It is estimated that the system will cost from $15,000 to $30,000, and a bond issue will be necessary. The Council also determined to install a sewer system in Fairmount, and plans and specifications were ordered.

CITY ASKS $15,000

Suit Advised to Determine Rent of New Bridge.

CAR COMPANY RESISTS

Validity of Former Franchise, as Compared With Measure Voted by People to Be Tested by Court Action.

Legal action to compel the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company to pay the city $15,000 a year for the use of the Hawthorne bridge will be authorized by the Council at its meeting this morning, if the recommendation to be made by City Attorney Grant is approved. The company is now operating its cars without paying anything, pending the settlement of a difference between the company and the city regarding the amount to be paid.

Before the old Madison-street bridge was removed to make room for the new structure, the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company was paying the city only $100 a month for the use of the bridge. This was according to the provision of the franchise held by the company.

When the measure providing for the building of the new bridge was before the people for approval it included a provision that the streetcar company should pay at the rate of $15,000 a year for the use of the bridge. As this measure was legally approved by the people, the city authorities hold that it can be enforced, regardless of the contention of the company that its agreement for the use of the old bridge is valid in regard to the use of the new structure.

When the Hawthorne bridge was to be opened, the company threatened that it would not operate its cars over the bridge unless it were permitted to do so at the old rate of $100 a month. Mayor Simon, who was determined that something should be done to give the people on the East Side car service over the new bridge, entered into a stipulation with the company in which it was agreed that the company might operate its cars over the bridge without paying anything until the courts decided the merits of the contention. The stipulaton is so worded as not to take away from either the city or the company any legal rights.

City Attorney Grant explained yesterday that when the courts have finally decided the amount, back dues must be paid the city from the time the new bridge was placed in operation.
