GUILT OF DOCTOR

Mrs. Nettie Hall's Evidence Against Dr. Rosenberg Is Damaging.

DEFENSE MAKES SHOWING

Physician and Undertaker Tell of Finding Girl's Heart Abnormally Small and No Evidence of Any Criminal Action.

Mrs. Nettie Hall, mother of Vera Hall, Dr. J. J. Rosenberg's victim, gave effectively before a Circuit Court jury yesterday afternoon the evidence through which the state bases its strongest hopes of sending the young doctor accused of mal-practice to the gallows or penitentiary.

Mrs. Hall's stay on the stand was brief but her story served as a strong climax to the state's case. She related incldents and conversations tending to re-move all doubt as to Dr. Rosenberg's unlawful part in the death of the girl. And, oddly enough, some of her most damaging testimony against the accused was brought out unexpectedly in the cross-examination.

Mrs. Hall was called to the witness stand late in the afternoon and following evidence of very little consequence. Elmer Erickson, the youth responsible for Miss Hall's condition and who took her to the malpractitioner's office, went back empletely on the stories he first related to the authorities. He told a coloriess take of having taken the girl there to be treated for a hemorrhage of the nose. The effect of his evidence was to shield lineenberg in every possible way.

Dr. McKny Cites Ethics.

Dr. Harry McKay, when cross-examined fellowing a description of the au-topsy on Miss Hall's body, aided the state's case materially by his replies to questions relating to professional ethics. questions relating to professional ethics. Dr. McKay said positively he would not think of administering an annesthesia in his private office, as Rosenberg did and that he always insisted on the presence of a second physician in administering chloroform or ether. So far as he knew that was the custom of all other reputable dectors, Dr. McKay said. Nor did any amount of adroit cross-examination any amount of adroit cross-examination cause him to modify his statements. Mrs. Hall maintained control of her-soff by a continued effort, clutching the arms of the witness chair and weeping bitterly at times as she told of the hor-rible night she was called from her home at Oregon City to the side of her dead child in Dr. Rosenberg's office in South Fortland. Young Erickson summoned her and met her on the east side of the river, taking her at once to the office but denying, en route, having seen the hap-

The doctor told me to take her home to save the disgrace," she said. "He said he would give me a certificate showing she died of heart disease and that it would be the end of it. He told me the authorities would take the body and keep it in Portland for the autopsy and that I City Attorney Rules on Effect of wouldn't get it again."

Defense Seeks Dismissal.

The taking of testimony in the case was commenced early in the forenoon. Judge Morrow overruled the motion of case because of an alleged technical defect in the indictment.

Charles Hall, the girl's father, was the first witness called by the state. He merely identified a photograph of her. Elmer Erickson, the youth in the case, Edimer Erickson, the youth in the case, teld of his love for the girl and of being out with her the night of her death. He said she was taken with "nose-bleed" and that he took her up to Dr. Rosenberg's office to get the flow of blood stopped. The dector sent him out for some chloroform, which he secured as directed. He was compelled to await in the outer office and saw nothing of what happened in Rosenberg's private office, so he alleged.

Dr. E. A. Sommer, of Oregon City, de-scribed the autopay. He said the girl's heart was abnormally small. He found o evidences of a criminal operation hav-no evidences of a criminal operation hav-ing been attempted. Thomas Meyer, an undertaker, gave similar evidence. At the conclusion of the state's testi-mony, Rosenberg's lawyers resumed their attack on the indictment and asked for a directed verdet because of insufficient evidence. Attorney Moody argued until court adjourned, and was advised by Judge Morrow that he must occupy only 15 minutes of this morning's session in concluding his address.

The doctors call it flatulency, but unprofessional folks know it as "wind on the stomach," and a most distress-ing state of things it is. It is a serious condition of this great motor organ. Always annoying and painful in the extreme, at times often leading to bad and fatal results. The stomach emand fatal results. The stomach em-barrassed and hampered with wind, cannot take care of its food properly and indigestion follows, and this has a train too appalling to enumerate. The entire system is implicated—made an active or passive factor in this trouble and life soon becomes a questionable All this is explained in doctor books:

On account of the ever-increasing freight and passenger business in and out of Portland it is probable that five new railroad offices may be opened on "railroad offices may be opened on "railroad row" on Third street within the present year, the list of probabilities including the Missouri Pacific, the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, the Baltimore & Ohlo, the Erie and the Pere Marquette, to say nothing of the likelihood of the Pennsylvania opening a larger and more attractive place to do business.
