

GRAND JURY TURNS TO BAILEY REPORT

Inquiry Into Food Official's Conduct May Be Terminated This Week.

FOURTH DEPUTY CALLED

Commissioner, Himself Before Inquirers, Denies All Wrongdoing—Furniture From Home Returned to Office.

The grand jury inquiry into the official conduct of J. W. Bailey, State Dairy and Food Commissioner, probably will terminate by the end of the week. It is intimated that the evidence already in, supplemented, as it is expected to be, by other evidence of a similar character, will result in the return of an indictment against Mr. Bailey for misappropriation of funds and incompetency in office.

Fourth Deputy to Be Called.

Three of Bailey's deputies have already been on the witness stand. All gave damaging testimony. It is proposed to call a fourth, Bert Pilkington, chemist at the Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, who was formerly chemist for Bailey and for a time his only deputy.

Furniture Now in Office.

The furniture which Bailey is alleged to have bought for his private use with state funds has, it is said, been removed from his home to his office at 251 1/2 Washington street. The transfer took place after the announcement that there was to be a grand jury investigation of the charges against him.
