

TRIP WOULD OPEN GATES FOR JAPS

He Would Annul Restrictions on Coolies Entering the United States.

NEW TREATY IS PROPOSED

Agreement May Be Submitted This Session, but Pacific Coast Senators Are Likely to Prevent Ratification by Talk.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 26.—(Special.)—Information has been obtained by the New York Times correspondent from various trustworthy sources to the effect that the Government has determined to give the Government of Japan a striking proof of its cordiality and good will by taking up for immediate action the matter of negotiating a new treaty to replace the treaty of commerce and navigation now in force between the two countries, which would expire by limitation on July 17, 1912.

It is furthermore the decision of the Government to withhold the request of Japan that the paragraph of the existing treaty which specifically exempts from the stipulations of the treaty "the laws, ordinances and regulations with regard to trade, the immigration of labor, public police and public security which are in force or which may hereafter be enacted in either of the two countries," shall not appear in the new treaty.

On both these points the present attitude of the American Government is not only strongly conciliatory to Japan, but it is a reversal of the attitude that has been maintained up to within a comparatively short time. The preliminary exchange of views has been going on for some little time, and it is the hope of the Government to have the matter concluded in time for action by the Senate at this session.

In view, however, of the concession to Japan in regard to the elimination of the provision regarding the immigration of laborers, it is problematical whether such a treaty can be ratified by the Senate at this session.

Such a concession to Japan by the Government is certain to encounter decided opposition on the part of the Senators from the Pacific coast, while they might not be able to muster the votes necessary to prevent ratification, they could easily prevent the matter from coming to a vote by insisting on their right to discuss it at length.

VETERAN JEWEL BESTOWED

Oddfellows at The Dalles Honored With Decorations.

THE DALLES, Or., Jan. 26.—(Special.)—Fourteen members of Columbia Lodge of Odd Fellows received the veterans' jewel at the lodge meeting last night. Dr. O. D. Doane had received the decoration in 1865; following received the honor: Ex-Governor Moody, Salem, February 11, 1857; Richard Graham, Los Angeles, April 14, 1864; George Beach, The Dalles, November 16, 1865; H. T. Blakney, Baker City, September 6, 1868; I. C. Nickelson, The Dalles, February 4, 1870; J. J. Norman, Drew, Or., March 24, 1871; William S. Worsley, Swanton, Or., February 12, 1874; H. C. Nielsen, The Dalles, December 9, 1874; Morris Wise, Portland, May 28, 1875; Harry Clough, The Dalles, January 25, 1878; Emanuel Beck, Portland, May 2, 1879; J. W. Thomas, Oswego, Or., October 17, 1884; Ben Vlaunauer, Portland, October 24, 1884; J. J. Cranall, The Dalles, October 19, 1885.

About 125 were present at the session. This lodge is the oldest secret society in the city having been organized November 1, 1856. The veterans' jewel is presented to those who have been members of the order 25 years or more.

LET US DEVELOP—DAWES

Banker Opposes Federal Regulation of Railroad Securities.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—A protest against what he called "government interference in the canalization of railroads" was made by Charles Dawes, president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, in the hearing today before the Railroad Securities Commission.

Mr. Dawes said that while he favored government regulation of general utility corporations, he opposed a control that would discourage development. He said that restricting dividends to the impaired service to the public, he said, had been shown in Massachusetts. In that state, he asserted, the gas companies had not shown the progress made by companies in other states. The same lack of progress would result to railroads if Congress attempted to control their dividends. In the opinion of the witness, as to rate-making, he said, since one railroad alone had numerous kinds of rates, he did not see how any one body was going to fix all the rates of all railroads.

AMERICAN WIFE OF FOREIGN COUNT, WHO HAS LEG BROKEN TO BE RESET.

COUNTRESS DE BEAUFORT.

LEG BROKEN AGAIN

Countess de Beaufort Prefers Pain to Lameness.

SHE RETURNS TO HOSPITAL

Limb Broken Before Separation From Count Does Not Knit Well and She Calls on Surgeons to Do Job Again.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(Special.)—Countess Irma Kilgallen Jacques Alexander von Murk da Beaufort returned to St. Luke's Hospital today and it is reported that her leg, which was fractured in a mysterious manner just before her separation from her husband, was to be broken again by surgeons and reset. The report of a relapse was denied at the hospital.

The second trip of the Countess to the hospital was shrouded with as much mystery as was the first. She rode to the hospital in a large automobile with her father, M. H. Kilgallen, the wealthy steel magnate. Attendants at the hospital admitted that she was a patient, but refused to say what had made it necessary for her to go there. When asked about the report that the Countess leg had not been set properly the first time, the hospital attendants were evasive. They finally denied the story.

According to the story in circulation today, the Countess discovered that she was lame as a result of the imperfect setting of the leg. She decided to undergo the pain of having the leg broken and reset.

Taft Programme HALTED

Understood to Have the Approval of the President, while Others Favored the Dalsell Bill, Dalsell, being the ranking member of the ways and means committee, secured the adoption of his bill by the committee, but the influence of the President secured the insertion in it of several of the most important features of the Longworth bill.

There is no certainty that a majority of the House of Representatives will vote for a tariff commission bill. Certain it is that there will be a fight on the floor, but even more certain that there will be a much more bitter fight when the bill goes before the Senate. In fact, if the bill is passed by the House, it probably can not pass the Senate in the short session, because certain Democratic Senators will institute a filibuster, and only a very weak filibuster can prevent a vote being taken this session.

In all probability the most that can be hoped for at the present session is an appropriation of $900,000, which is estimated to have the approval of the President, will keep the tariff board at work for the next two years. The Republican leaders think they can pass the appropriation, but down in their hearts they know full well they can not pass a tariff commission bill.

Subsidy Bill Seems Doomed.

The President has not made as strong a fight for the subsidy bill as he has for the tariff commission, but he has had a number of conferences with leading Republicans of the Senate and House, and on his suggestion the Gallinger and Humphreys bills have been modified in scope, in the hope of reducing objection and opening the way for favorable action. The fate that awaits this measure, even in its modified form, is a question for speculation. There are votes enough to pass a subsidy bill through the Senate, if the bill can be brought to a vote, but already there has been considerable filibustering, and, if this fight is continued, it may be found necessary to abandon the subsidy bill for the present. Abandonment now means laying the bill aside until the Republicans again have full control of the entire Congress and the Presidency.

There is considerable doubt whether a majority of the House of Representatives, as it is now constituted, would vote for even the modified Humphrey bill. The fear of subsidy advocates is

QUEEN RETURNS; FIRES IS QUELCHED

Passengers Remain Calm as Crew Fights Flames in Steamer's Hold.

ALL ARE LANDED SAFELY

Desperate Battle With Blaze Continues While Children Slumber in Bunks—Fireboats Complete Subjection of Flames.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—(Special.)—With her bow far down in the water and her engines working under very slowly, the Pacific Coast Steamship Company's steamer Queen arrived in port shortly before 3 o'clock this morning. The steamer was being towed by tugboats and fireboats, while an imminent danger of fire at sea.

Lining her rails and crowding her decks were 97 passengers, many of whom were children, who had fled from the burning steamer, up the main deck. The fire, which had been burning since the ship was overtaken by the tugboats and fireboats, was now being fought by the fireboats. The Queen proceeded up the bay to Mission wharves, where she remained until the fire was under control. The Queen proceeded up the bay to Mission wharves, where she remained until the fire was under control.

Crew Fights Fire Desperately.

It was 8:15 when the fire alarm called members of the crew and the officers to their stations. The officers gave their attention to the passengers and went about assuring them that the men were in control and calling upon them to preserve order.

The only way to reach between decks was through the forward hatch and, as the way was blocked by a large shipment of perishable goods, it was necessary for the seamen to discharge this part of the cargo over the side.

When the fire was under control, Captain Zeb, with a towel bound about his head, descended with the rest of the ship's company and personally directed the work of fighting the fire. For two hours the men worked bravely and the fire was finally brought under control.

Women Cool Amid Danger.

The women passengers showed great presence of mind and coolness, the men of the Queen testify, and many retired for the night while the fire was burning. An instance is cited of Mrs. J. Ferguson, who had inquired as to the safety of those on board and then tucked her little children in their bunks for the night.

MAYOR TO OFFER CASH

IDEA OF TRADE WITH RAILROAD IS ABANDONED.

Condemnation of Property Needed for Bridge to Follow if Mr. O'Brien Refuses.

MAYOR SIMON will today call upon J. P. O'Brien, manager of the Harriman lines in Oregon, and offer him cash offers for the purchase of pieces of property which the city desires to secure from the O. W. R. & N. Company, including the land necessary for a park and six acres on the East side which the city wants for boulevard purposes.

Mr. Simon's offer will not be based on the findings of a committee of appraisers, consisting of Lewis Russell, David S. Stearns and W. E. O'Brien, he contends the valuation which they will make on the properties to be excessive. Should the O. W. R. & N. Company not see fit to accept the offer, which will be made by Mayor Simon, which will be given to begin condemnation proceedings at once.

The Mayor yesterday affirmed his belief that it was best for the city and the railroad company to abandon the idea of a trade. He wishes to pay cash for any property bought by the city and will not be satisfied until the city and the railroad company have agreed to the purchase of the several East Side streets.

Legal methods to rest the O'Brien matter further interfering with the construction of the Broadway bridge are being worked out by City Attorney Grant and his deputies, and the procedure to be adopted has not been announced. It is understood that the court probably will be asked for a restraining order to prevent Mr. Klenman from making further misrepresentations concerning the legal status of the bridge bonds to prospective purchasers and from bringing any more suits against the bonds.

SEASIDE HOUSES ENTERED

Beach Resort Needs Watchman, Declares Portland Man.

SEASIDE, Or., Jan. 26.—(Special.)—Two beach cottages here have been entered this week. That of Mr. Harbort was entered through a rear window. Nothing was taken, but there was a trail of burned matches and of candle drippings throughout the cottage.

The basement of the cottage of Mr. Kennedy was entered, but entrance was not gained to the upstairs, as the door leading to the basement was locked. Harbort said he wished all Portland property owners would agree to contribute $1 a month to employ a watchman.
