Oregon Merchants' Association Denounces Methods of Wholesalers.

SAN FRANCISCO INDORSED

Good Roads Bill Given Hearty Supof Convention - Meeting Pendleton as Place for Holding "Roundup."

SALEM, Or., Jan. 27 .- (Special.) -- After spirited contest in the convention of the Oregon Retail Merchants' Association tween Portland, Cottage Grove and Medford, the latter town was today named as the place for holding the next annual convention. Portland merchants strongly supported Medford and the final vote showed that the Southern Oregon city had won by almost 2 to 1 majority. A resolution couched in stinging terms was directed against the wholesale deal-ers who make a practice of selling direct to the consumers after loading the retail merchant up with goods.

A recolution indersing Pendleton as the place for holding the "Rounday" was passed with a whoop and the entire delegation shouted "Let 'er buck." San Prancisco received the hearty indersement of the association in her fight to secure the Panama Exposition, while the plan to hold a centennial at Astoria next year met the hearty approval of the con-

by County School Superintendent Jackson and his assistants, 96 failed to pass. This record is unprecedented here, as generally the percentage of failures in Linn County is small and the showing of only one-fifth of those who took the test securing a passing grade has astorned local school authorities.

About 156 students in the various schools of the county took the examination and there are about 25 papers from smaller districts on which the final grades have not been made.

Some of the very largest percentages of failures were in the city schools of the county, many rural districts making much better showings than the towns, though the ratio of failures was large in almost all districts. Of 21 Aibany pupils who took the test 11 failed. There were 34 applicants from the Brownsville schools took the examination and every one failed to pass.

The successful scholars who have been awarded diplomas are: Verda Bilyeu, Kittle Kyle, Faye Yoder, Mirlam Page, Walter Gray, Lizzie Burton, Kenneth Stevens, Abbie Anderson, May Bender and Stella Hoover, of Albany; Mirlam Meetce, Lillie Duncan, Amelia Miller, Nellie Duncan, Russell Hall and Arline Hoerr, of Lebanon; Daisy Trulove and Walter Holloway, of District 88, near Albany; Linna Stiers and John F, Middlestiaft, of Crabtree; Mai Caldwell, Ralph Harris and Dee Walker, of Dis-

RADICAL CHANGES IN LAW PRO-POSED IN BILL.

Constitutional Amendment Introduced Provides Four-Year Term for State Officials.

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 27 .- (Special.)-Sweeping and radical changes are demanded in Idaho's direct primary law, passed two years ago, through a bill introduced today in the Senate by ator Potts, of Coeur d'Alene, and Senator St. Clair, of Idaho Falls. Their measure is in reality a substitue for the present law. By the new measure, which will receive serious consideration, due to the dissatisfaction over the primary, the date for the primary election is placed one month earlier, or the last Tuesday in July, instead of August 30. The mandatory second choice feature is made optional with the elector; party declaration is demanded, and if not given by the voter, he is barred from nominating candidates at the primary, but may vote at the general election; the expenses limit is doubled for National, state and county officials, and the platform convention by delegates not candidates is provided.

Klamath Falls Cheered by Encour aging News From Washington. Pending Projects Would Irrigate 100,000 Acres.

KLAMATH FALIS, Or., Jan. 27.—(Special.)—Good news for the future of the Klamath country was contained in Washington dispatches Wednesday saying that the Senate had agreed to an amendment to the Indian bill, appropriating $50,000 to resume work on the Modoc Point irrigation project on the Klamath Indian Reservation.

Captain O. C. Applegate, then Indian Agent at the Klamath Agency, succeeded in 1991 in getting the Government to inaugurate a plan to irrigate 10,000 acres lying from 7 to 14 miles south of the Agency, on the borders of the Upper Klamath Lake. During that year considerable work was done on the project. KLAMATH FALLS, Or., Jan. 27 .- (Spe siderable work was done on the project but was finally dropped, as no appro-priations were made to continue it. The work done consisted in the building of a ditch three and a half miles long, the clearing of a large amount of the ditch right-of-way, and some rock excavation in the Sprague River Canyon, where the water was to be taken from the Sprague

Railroad Aids Project.

The water for this project was to have to have permitted the Hill Paving Company to save at least $100,000 on the according to specifications.

Captain Applegate said today that he had also worked on other reciamation and irrigation schemes for the Indians which, if carried out by the Government, would make this Reservation one of the richest in the United States. Among the plans which he reported upon favorably were the complete reclamation of the Klamath marsh, containing nearly 60,000 acres, by the dredging of a channel to drain it and the pag of this drain to drain it and the use of this drain water for irrigation of several hundred acres lying below and between that and the upper lake. Another channel was to have been made around the head of the marsh to impound much of the source
