Commercial Club Governors to Consider Problem.

MEMBERSHIP IS GROWING

Board United on Leading Questions of Policy--Re-election of Harvey Beckwith as President Seems Certain.

Quarters Are Deficient.

Whether a new building shall be built at a cost of approximately $500,000, or added quarters adjacent to the present club building shall be leased, will be considered by the board of governors of the Portland Commercial Club at its meeting tomorrow noon. The question was raised in the last annual address of President Beckwith, who said: "The securing, or rather the building of a new club is a matter of serious consideration. The present quarters cannot be enlarged. A new building is a necessity."
