DAUGHTER LURED AWAY BY CAPTAIN

Father of Jane Cunningham Gives Voice to Fiery Indignation.

TIRED OF BEING CHECKBOOK

Man Who Asked Police to Prevent Young Woman From Sailing on Bark Besuet Tells Story of Wayward Life of Girl.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 6 .- (Special.)-Long hoarded, the secret of Jone Cunningham s romance le out at last. Her father, M. J. Cunningham, whose relegrains to the Chief of the Portland police haited his daughter as she was about to fine with Captain F. Letroquer, of the French bark Bossuet, was found this afternoon at his hotel, 122 North Broadway, this city.

It was a statement contained in a dispatch from the Descent city has a single patch from the Oregon city last night that stirred the old man into speech. "The dirty dog, to declare that he does not want my daughter on his ship and still holds her there," exclaimed Mr. Cunningham, when the dispatch was pointed out to him. "Fit fix him, if there is any law in the land."

Cunningham Jokes Softly.

Junningham, who is from the North Cunningham, who is from the North of Ireland, talks with a strong Ceitle brogue. He is a typical self-made man who, in his time, has been up against the real facts of life and won his way despite them. The conduct of his daughter and his wife in this matter is telling upon him, but his native Irish humor enables him to joke about it in a sad, half-hearted way.

Many of the facts in the case Cunning ham deciled to discuss. For instance he would not say where his daughter med Captain Le Troquer, except to deny that, when she sailed with him as Miss Johnson, she was meeting him for the first lier assertion that she "would work as a kitchen maid rather than return home," called out but a single grim joke from her father. "She wouldn't make good even at that. I'm afraid," he said.

Romance Begins in France.

The story of Miss Countingham's remounce began two years ago in Havre, France, according to a friend of Countingham at the hotel. "There she first met Captain Le Troquer. He followed her to much time with the young American girl tourist. Her father learned of the affair and summoned his daughter buck to Callfornis. She came, but she left Los Angeles for San Francisco, where her mother, who has been separated from Cunningham for 29 years, is living.

Shortly after that she heard from her French lover that his ship was in Portland and, telling her parents that she was going back to the continent to study music, she started with her captain to music, she started with her captain to Australia.

Returns, but Rejoins Captain.

"For several months her parents heard "For several months her parents heard nothing of her and then came a letter from her asking for money. Later came a demand for more cash—this time by cable. Her father, through the American Consul, learned that his daughter had been seen in company with the Frenchman, and his Irish soul revolted. He sent several hundred dollars to Miss Jane, telling her to come home. For a month or more his request and commands were ignored. Then, one day last mands were ignored. Then, one day last mands were ignored. Then, one day last Summer, his daughter returned, remained here for a short time; only to leave for Bun Francisco and her mother once more. It was the old round.

"The next her father heard of her she was in Pertland again and Captain Lettroper was at Liunton with his bark. Then followed the telegram to the Chief of the Portland police." of the Portland police."

Father Is Family Checkbook.

Asked why he asserted that his daughter was incompetent, Cunningham declared that he thought she was. "Any woman that lets a worthless scoundred run away with her is incompetent," he added. She has spent my money reck-lessly. I don't begrudge it to her, but she has squandered it. My oldest daughter, who married a Spaniard, has dribbled it away on her nobleman. My other daughter, who lives in Chicago, drains me. My wife, whom I have not seen for years, spends it. They all are incompetent. They are ungrateful. They treat me as a checkbook only, but they are not as careful of me as most folk are of their checkbooks. I am tired of it and am going to put an end to it at

Governor Johnson Takes Scalp of Gillett Man.

SPECIAL BILL IS - MEANS

Limmediately After Signing Measure Governor Announces Appointment of State Treasurer Williams as Incumbent.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 6 .- (Special.)-The Governor today announced that he would appoint State Treasurer R. Williams as the new superin-dent of banks for California to succeed Alden Anderson.

ceed Aiden Anderson.

The appointment is in line with the announced purpose of the administration to oust the man who ran for Governor against the present incumbent. It was given out immediately following the Executive's return from San Francisco, where he went to attend the clast birthday of his son. Jack.

The special bill framed to reorganize the state banking department passed expressly to provide a legal means to oust Anderson, was signed at 16 o'clock by Governor Johnson, who immediately gave out the appointment of Williams.

gave out the appointment of Williams. The Governor accompanied the appointment with a laudation of the State Treasurer. The new job pays $10,000 a year. Williams as Treasurer has been getting $5000.

Johnson's movement to secure the jobs of Alden Anderson and other ap-pointees of Governor Gillett began im-mediately after his inauguration. He mediately after his inauguration. He declared Gillett's appointments illegal. He said Anderson might have been ousted by recourse to the courts, but that this method was not suited to the dignity of his position. So a bill was put through making the tenure of office of superintendent of banks at the planting of the Governor instead

Another bill, now pending, provides for the consolidation of the Building and loan commission with the state banking department. This would have the effect of abolishing the two commissionerships which are held by Jacob Transue and Charles F. Curry, ex-Secretary of State, both appointed by Governor Gillett. These two commissionerships pay $3000 a year each.

Williams is 41 years old, comes from Fresno County, and was born in Gold Hill, Nev. He was in the drug business for a time and later became an accountant. From 1895 to 1898 he was accountant. From 1895 to 1898 he was Deputy County Clerk of Fresno County, and from 1898 to 1907 was associated with the California Raisin-Growers'

HILLMAN'S TRIAL BEGINS

Millionaire Real Estate Man Used Mail to Defraud, Charged.

SEATTLE, Feb. 6.—The trial of mil-lionaire Clarence D. Hillman, the real estate promoter, charged with using the mails to defraud, was begun in the United States Court today,

United States Attorney Todd, outlining the Government's case, said he would prove that Hillman laid out the townsites of Boston Harbor and Birmingham, advertised that the land was suitable for factories and chicken ranches, advertised for workmen to be employed in the proworkmen to be employed for workmen to be employed in the pro-spective towns, and that after persons of small means had made first payments on land, Hillman, using the name of F. A. Anderson and the Western Con-densed Milk & Canning Company, sent decoy letters to the purchasers, urging them to continue their payments and to buy more land.

Todd alleged that Hillman advertised factories, railroads and trolley lines at Birmingham that never existed, and that he rented a postoffice box under the name of C. H. Spencer. Birmingham is in Sno-homish County, eight miles from a rail-road, and Boston Harbor is in Thurston ounty, far from any regular railroad or steamship line. Witnesses for the Government testi-fied that although several frame busi-ness and residence buildings had been erected at Birmingham and Boston Harbor, most of them were unoccupied. John Miller, a real estate expert, said that the land at Boston Harbor was of little value as agricultural land and that only part of that included in the Birmingham proposition was valuable. He said that the land could not be considered from any other standpoint than that of agricultural, as the two townsites were without transportation or industry to give it value as such.

BULLETIN No. 24-D

By PATRICK CALHOUN

President United Railroads of San Francisco San Francisco, Cat.

There are two methods by which corporate interest can be pro-tected. One is by their officers and officials apparently abstaining from politics, apparently devoting themselves entirely to business, claiming politics, apparently devoting themselves entirely to business, claiming to be business men, and not politicians, and making secret deals with those politicians who will give them protection. This has been in some degree the method of the past, and this has been unquestionably a cause of political corruption. The corporation without a just public opinion upon which to rely has found itself without any defender except the corrupt politician, whether under the name of reform or machine, who has demanded his price for his protection.

The other method is for the corporate manager to defy boldly the politician, high or low, who undertakes to drive him from a participation in public affairs; to refuse to be blackmailed, to refuse to buy political protection through campaign contributions, to put his trust in the plain people of the country and, willingly, boldly and fearlessly political protection through campaign contributions, to put his trust in the plain people of the country and, willingly, boidly and fearlessly lay his case or his needs before them.

I advocate absolutely clean political methods—bold, fearless, courageous methods—and the establishment in every community by the men who manage corporations of a reputation for fearless political courage, until they secure a leadership in civic affairs, recognized to be disinterested and for the public good.

I advocate a campaign of education, the widest publicity of the affairs of public service corporations, freedom from entangling political alliances, the sternest integrity in the administration of both the private and public side of corporate management and the passage of such laws as are necessary to establish nonpartisan tribunals of a judicial rather than a political character, with power to grant franchises and regulate public service corporations.

One of the causes of political distruct of the corporation today is that corporate managers have sometimes professed to be out of poli-

One of the causes of political distrust of the corporation today is that corporate managers have sometimes professed to be out of politics, while they have had secret deals with the demagogue, who has been proclaiming his desire to keep the railroad out of politics.

I have in mind the picture of a scene that gecurred in the office of the Governor of one of our states. He was in discussion, friendly and cordial, with the general counsel of a railroad. While this discussion was going on some of his farmer constituents appeared at the door of the executive office. The back of the railroad counsel was to the door, the Governor faced it. He saw his constituents, immediately raised his voice and said, without pertinency to what was then transpiring. "I tell you, sir, I will not allow myself to be dictated to and controlled by the hireling of any corporation," and launched into a tirade against railroads. His constituents paid their visit and left, when the Governor application is the structure of the structure that applogized for the abrupt change in his manner by the statement that it would never do for him to be found in friendly conversation by his country constituents with a corporation lawyer.

These facts are calculated to make cynics of railroad managers.

and distrustful and suspicious veters. I am an opponent of corruption, a contemner of hypocrisy and an advocate of the widest publicity. Why should we leave the field of publicity to the muckraker and the demagogue? The people in the end are the arbiters of our destinies; the great bulk of them are honest, upright, sincere, truthful; they hate a liar, and if the demagogue lies and gets off with his lies, it is because he is not exposed, and the public is not convinced of his malevolence and untruthfulness—they too frequently attribute his mis-statements to mere impulsiveness. But the railroad man, whose cor-statements to mere impulsiveness. But the railroad man, whose corporation will continue to operate after his day is past, cannot afford to lie; he must be truthful, plain spoken and upright. He has not only his own moral character and personal future to regard, but also the trusts which are imposed upon him, both in behalf of the stockholders and of the public, whose servant he is.

There is no doubt that a campaign of lies has been inaugurated and is being carried on by our opponents. Why should not the railroad interests of the country inaugurate a campaign of truth and go before the people, confident that the campaign of truth will win out over the campaign of lies? They may meet with temporary defeat here and there. What of it? Defeat should only be an inspiration for more vigorous action if a man is armed with conscious integrity. The time is orous action if a man is armed with conscious integrity. The time is orous action if a man is armed with conscious integrity. The time is ripe for this character of movement.

We represent one of the most honorable of occupations, one that requires a high order of executive ability and a high order of technical information. The men who manage the railroads are patriotic, upright and honest. They have the capacity to express themselves, and the means at hand of laying their views before their fellow citizens.
