

SHEEHAN TO TRY FOR RENOMINATION

He Announces Name Will Go Before Democratic Caucus on Senator.

MURPHY'S MAN DESIROUS

Cohalan, Tammany Hall Agent, Is Hopeful—Insurgents Declare No Caucus of Doubtful Character Will Be Entered by Them.

NEW YORK, March 26.—W. F. Sheehan will go before the Democratic caucus Monday night at Albany as a candidate for renomination for United States Senator.

So much he affirmed tonight in an open letter to the Democratic members of the Legislature and in private conversation he told his friends that he expected another majority endorsement.

The insurgents have let it be understood that they will not enter any caucus holding them, in which the chance is liable to be one of whom they cannot approve.

INSURGENTS ARE UNDECIDED

Roosevelt Says Plan of Entering Caucus Is Unsettled.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 26.—When asked tonight if the insurgents would go into the Democratic caucus tomorrow night to select United States Senatorial candidate, Senator Roosevelt said:

"We will not know definitely until this week tomorrow night. My impression is, however, that we will not go in."

This was said after the insurgent leader had spent an hour or more with Governor Dix. Friends of the insurgents said tonight that the insurgents had been informed that the plan of Charles F. Murphy and his friends to hold caucuses on Monday and Tuesday night without reaching a choice for Senator, but that on Wednesday night the plan is to cast the solid vote of the Tammany organization for D. P. Cohalan, one of Mr. Murphy's intimate advisers.

CARRIERS' PLAN INDORSED

Sunday-Closing Outcome May Depend on Action of Other Cities.

There has been little opposition to the movement inaugurated by Portland letter carriers to close the Postoffice all day Sunday. According to Charles Dunigan, president of the Portland branch of the National Association of Letter Carriers, all the large cities in the country are looking favorably upon the demands made by the carriers for a Sunday holiday, and it is his opinion that as soon as one of the large cities grants a full holiday, all the other cities will fall in line.

"The letter carriers all over the country feel that it is their right to have a 'Sunday'," said Mr. Dunigan. "It has been the practice so long for every Postoffice to keep open a part of the day on Sunday that it is their right to have a habit to call for their mail on that day whether it was necessary or not."

"Nearly all of the business men of Portland have signed the ground closing Sunday-closing. From this it will be seen that we have the solid commercial interests back of us. We also have the united support of the church people and members of the Postoffice."

"We will not be able to know just when we will be able to have the Sunday-closing plan go into the ground, but we will depend to some extent upon how the innovation is looked upon in other cities."

GO WOMEN CHASE TRIF

Invader in Seattle Y. W. C. A. Flees by Fire Escape.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 26.—(Special.)—Miss Virginia Hobbs and Miss Elizabeth Graham, of the Young Women's Christian Association, on going to their room tonight discovered that the chairs and some of their wearing apparel had been disarranged. Later they found some of their jewelry missing and started to give an alarm, whereupon a burglar sprang from the shadows of one corner of the room. The girls screamed.

Once or twice the invader turned quickly and commencing to flee, but by this time young women were gathered from many rooms. One of them grabbed a telephone and discovered that the wires were cut and none of the telephones was in commission.

The women gave chase, but the burglar dashed for a fire escape and made his way into the ground without interception. He was described to the police, but there is little hope of finding him. About 60 young women were in the building at the time.

POPULAR SALE PROPOSED

Way to Dispose of Bridge Bonds Is Suggested.

Members of the North East Side Improvement Association will at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the office of M. G. Mundy in the Wells-Fargo building to devise ways and means for selling by popular subscription $500,000 worth of the Broadway bridge bonds. Mr. Mundy said yesterday that no definite plan was under consideration, but that some arrangement must be entered into for disposing of the bonds.

Mayor Simon is of the opinion that Portland people, especially those deeply interested in the bridge, should be organized into the bridge issue disposed of in this manner several months ago, but the results were disappointing. All efforts to dispose of any of the bonds since the sale of the first block of $250,000, have proved futile. The last bid was by Larson, Son & Co., of Chicago. They refused to accept the $400,000 bonds for which they bid because their attorneys held them to be illegal.

Aged German Seeks Sons.

VANCOUVER, Wash., March 26.—(Special.)—John Nagel, an aged German, wandered into the county courthouse last night and asked Sheriff Creswell to assist him in a search for his sons. John and William Nagel, whom he thinks are residents of this county, Nagel came from Kansas.

MAN WHOSE SELECTION AS UNITED STATES ENVOY TO CORONATION IS RESENTED BY BRITONS.

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND.

TAFT IS CRITICISED

Sending of Hays Hammond to Coronation Resented.

HE IS PROMISED SNUBS

British Socialist and Other Advanced Politicians Plan Hostile Demonstration Toward 'Jameson Raid Man.'

LONDON, March 26.—(Special.)—British Socialists and other advanced politicians are freely criticizing the selection of John Hays Hammond, the mining magnate, as the special envoy of the United States at the coronation.

They declare President Taft was a bold man to select one who was so prominent in the famous Jameson raid. And they plan to show their objection to the selection by hostile demonstrations against the American Envoy whenever he appears in London.

Free these extremists often talk much and then peter out before their threats materialize, but they have certainly been plottied and by whose tripartite hand is not known. Hammond is to show their dislike for Hays Hammond most effectively.

A leading Socialist put it this way: "With either a fine disregard of historic fitness or a sense of humor enriched with true democratic contempt for authority, President Taft has made himself the target of the fiercest and the most determined of the opposition to his nomination. It is the clearest evidence of his connivance with a conspiracy against a nation with which this country was on friendly terms. Hays Hammond ought to have been nominated for the court-martial of the Transvaal for speedy punishment according to the decree that was passed. But more merciful considerations swayed the advisers of President Kruger and his life was saved."

RUSHLIGHT IS INDORSED

POLITICAL CLUB OF WORKINGMEN TO AID CANDIDACY.

Labor Organization Also Induces Will F. Daly to Make Race for Councilman-at-Large.

A. G. Rushlight's candidacy in the Mayoralty contest yesterday was endorsed by the Workingman's Political Club, which organization also induced Will F. Daly, president of the Oregon State Federation of Labor, to reconsider his action of Saturday and become a candidate for Municipal Judge.

He will be supported for the nomination by the club which also gave its endorsement to Edward D. Williams, Republican candidate for Municipal Judge. This action was taken by the executive committee of the club at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at labor headquarters.

The members of the executive committee of the Workingman's Political Club endorsed the candidacy of Mr. Rushlight for Mayor, believing that he is the candidate who will best represent the laboring people of Portland and their interests as Mayor," said C. M. Eymerson, a member of the committee.

"It was through the efforts of this organization that Mr. Daly was impudently to become a candidate for the Council."

Indorsement by the Workingman's Political Club of the candidacy of Rushlight was not unexpected. The extent to which yesterday's endorsement commits the laboring people of Portland to Rushlight's support, however, is disputed. A great many of the laboring men of the city are affiliated with the Socialists and will support generally the candidates on the Socialist ticket which

DISASTER'S GLOOM HELD IN THE PALL

Aftermath of Fire Is Tragic. Many Charred Victims Identified Only by Trinkets.

GRIM INVESTIGATION IS ON

Prosecutions Promised for Those to Blame for Holocaust—Revised Count Shows 141 Dead, 10 Dying—Relief Is Started.

(Continued From First Page.)

have started a fire, but Chief Croker was unwilling to say tonight that in his opinion it originated this way.

Two hundred thousand, the police estimate, filed in a serpentine line, to the pier from the opening of the improvised morgue at 1 o'clock this morning until late tonight. At times the lines extended beyond Twenty-third Street, four blocks away, and tens of thousands of people impelled by morbid curiosity were turned away by the police.

Nearly 100 coffins lay in a long row upon the pier, awaiting removal or identification of the charred bodies they contained. Forty human forms burning blackened and distorted that they cannot be recognized, lay covered by white canvas in plain pine coffins apart from those less horribly mangled.

Unless they are identified by the trinkets and jewelry found on their blackened limbs, they will fill a single grave of unknown dead.

A signet ring, found clinging to a shred of flesh on a little girl's finger, made identification possible where all other means would have failed. A man who had stood in the six hours wandering aimlessly among the bodies seeking his missing daughter, until with a groan he identified a heap of charred clothing as her garments. He collapsed and tried to kill himself, but the police prevented him and he continued the search for his wife, also missing.

A pale girl, bent long over a misshapen mass and then, with a final effort, she grasped a hand which protruded from beneath the canvas, and, with a shriek, she collapsed. Her blackened mass, she sobbed, had been her sweetheart, to whom she had become engaged the night before the disaster.

"When making a search for his identity she asked if the dead man had had a watch. They brought it to her, she opened it and gazed at her own portrait. Sicilian women became hysterical upon recognizing their kin in the pine coffins. A man whose face was marked by a scar of flame, found his brother among the dead. The two worked side by side pouring water upon the fire. A cutter identified his dead brother, who had been engaged in a ring and her purse. It contained her week's wages, $2.

The bodies of two sisters, horribly mangled, were recognized by their mother, who sobbed and left them to search for his aged mother, who, also, had perished. The fire had left him with a relative, who was engaged in a search for a man on the eighth floor, a blackened hand still clinched a pitiful purse in his grasp. They tried the fingers with a pair of pliers, and found a small sum of money, keys and a receipt made out to A. S. Cimmella. A young man found his sweetheart, buried and blackened, and felt across the coffin in a faint.

Sobbing women became so hysterical that an improvised hospital ward was fitted up on the pier. Hysteria ran riot and nurses were busy tending those who collapsed.

Dead Wagons Thick.

All day there rumbled a steady stream of dead wagons along the approach to the pier. In the way of those that had been claimed. The air went stale with an odor of burnt flesh, and for a time the pier was cleared of the dead. There were more than 1000 dead bodies in the piers of the dead. One woman had $800 in her stocking.

Hospital doors were stormed by the dead during the day and night. A cutter whose sister worked a few feet away from him in the doomed factory, inquired for her every half hour at St. James' Hospital. She died between his visits, and he became so violent the police had to restrain him. He and she had planned to welcome their kindred parents from Russia to the new world this week. The parents are on the sea now.

A woman and a girl who lay dying side by side, whispered to sympathetic nurses their stories of the disaster, rushing their words in a rapid stream, fearing death would check the recital. The girl died murmuring her gruesome tale; the woman lingered, became delirious and begged a nurse to kill her. She then sank back into troubled sleep which surgeons said would be her last.

Inquirers Touch Arms.

The Coroner and the grand jury touched shoulders with the District Attorney's Building Department agents, Fire Chief Croker, Fire Commissioner Waldo, and their helpers at the start of the investigation today. Said District Attorney Whitman:

"If what Fire Chief Croker tells me is correct, then some one is criminally liable and whoever it is, whether it be one or a dozen, shall be prosecuted. I never saw anything more horrible in my life."

"There are many buildings in this city in which, worse conditions prevail," declared Commissioner Waldo. "On the building there was only one outside fire escape with treads 18 inches wide and so constructed that persons could not enter the fire escape from windows would have to close the iron shutters before they could escape. There were two enclosed fireproof stairways, sufficiently wide for one person to descend at a time, and with winding steps at the turns. Entrances to the stairs were blocked by partitions from indications, signs and doors appear to have been locked at the time of the fire."

The building itself, said Commissioner Waldo, seemed to comply with the law governing the erection of fireproof structures. The owner of the building, J. J. Aesch, of South Norwalk, Conn., apparently had observed the regulations of the building department, he said.

Pasco Tracts Go East.

PASCO, Wash., March 26.—(Special.)—The Pasco Reclamation Company is disposing of large tracts to Eastern buyers. Many of the purchasers will settle immediately to improve their

DISASTER'S GLOOM HELD IN THE PALL

Aftermath of Fire Is Tragic. Many Charred Victims Identified Only by Trinkets.

GRIM INVESTIGATION IS ON

Prosecutions Promised for Those to Blame for Holocaust—Revised Count Shows 141 Dead, 10 Dying—Relief Is Started.

(Continued From First Page.)

have started a fire, but Chief Croker was unwilling to say tonight that in his opinion it originated this way.

Two hundred thousand, the police estimate, filed in a serpentine line, to the pier from the opening of the improvised morgue at 1 o'clock this morning until late tonight. At times the lines extended beyond Twenty-third Street, four blocks away, and tens of thousands of people impelled by morbid curiosity were turned away by the police.

Nearly 100 coffins lay in a long row upon the pier, awaiting removal or identification of the charred bodies they contained. Forty human forms burning blackened and distorted that they cannot be recognized, lay covered by white canvas in plain pine coffins apart from those less horribly mangled.

Unless they are identified by the trinkets and jewelry found on their blackened limbs, they will fill a single grave of unknown dead.

A signet ring, found clinging to a shred of flesh on a little girl's finger, made identification possible where all other means would have failed. A man who had stood in the six hours wandering aimlessly among the bodies seeking his missing daughter, until with a groan he identified a heap of charred clothing as her garments. He collapsed and tried to kill himself, but the police prevented him and he continued the search for his wife, also missing.

A pale girl, bent long over a misshapen mass and then, with a final effort, she grasped a hand which protruded from beneath the canvas, and, with a shriek, she collapsed. Her blackened mass, she sobbed, had been her sweetheart, to whom she had become engaged the night before the disaster.

"When making a search for his identity she asked if the dead man had had a watch. They brought it to her, she opened it and gazed at her own portrait. Sicilian women became hysterical upon recognizing their kin in the pine coffins. A man whose face was marked by a scar of flame, found his brother among the dead. The two worked side by side pouring water upon the fire. A cutter identified his dead brother, who had been engaged in a ring and her purse. It contained her week's wages, $2.

The bodies of two sisters, horribly mangled, were recognized by their mother, who sobbed and left them to search for his aged mother, who, also, had perished. The fire had left him with a relative, who was engaged in a search for a man on the eighth floor, a blackened hand still clinched a pitiful purse in his grasp. They tried the fingers with a pair of pliers, and found a small sum of money, keys and a receipt made out to A. S. Cimmella. A young man found his sweetheart, buried and blackened, and felt across the coffin in a faint.

Sobbing women became so hysterical that an improvised hospital ward was fitted up on the pier. Hysteria ran riot and nurses were busy tending those who collapsed.

Dead Wagons Thick.

All day there rumbled a steady stream of dead wagons along the approach to the pier. In the way of those that had been claimed. The air went stale with an odor of burnt flesh, and for a time the pier was cleared of the dead. There were more than 1000 dead bodies in the piers of the dead. One woman had $800 in her stocking.

Hospital doors were stormed by the dead during the day and night. A cutter whose sister worked a few feet away from him in the doomed factory, inquired for her every half hour at St. James' Hospital. She died between his visits, and he became so violent the police had to restrain him. He and she had planned to welcome their kindred parents from Russia to the new world this week. The parents are on the sea now.

A woman and a girl who lay dying side by side, whispered to sympathetic nurses their stories of the disaster, rushing their words in a rapid stream, fearing death would check the recital. The girl died murmuring her gruesome tale; the woman lingered, became delirious and begged a nurse to kill her. She then sank back into troubled sleep which surgeons said would be her last.

Inquirers Touch Arms.

The Coroner and the grand jury touched shoulders with the District Attorney's Building Department agents, Fire Chief Croker, Fire Commissioner Waldo, and their helpers at the start of the investigation today. Said District Attorney Whitman:

"If what Fire Chief Croker tells me is correct, then some one is criminally liable and whoever it is, whether it be one or a dozen, shall be prosecuted. I never saw anything more horrible in my life."

"There are many buildings in this city in which, worse conditions prevail," declared Commissioner Waldo. "On the building there was only one outside fire escape with treads 18 inches wide and so constructed that persons could not enter the fire escape from windows would have to close the iron shutters before they could escape. There were two enclosed fireproof stairways, sufficiently wide for one person to descend at a time, and with winding steps at the turns. Entrances to the stairs were blocked by partitions from indications, signs and doors appear to have been locked at the time of the fire."

The building itself, said Commissioner Waldo, seemed to comply with the law governing the erection of fireproof structures. The owner of the building, J. J. Aesch, of South Norwalk, Conn., apparently had observed the regulations of the building department, he said.

Pasco Tracts Go East.

PASCO, Wash., March 26.—(Special.)—The Pasco Reclamation Company is disposing of large tracts to Eastern buyers. Many of the purchasers will settle immediately to improve their

OREGON CASE IS DELAYED

Supreme Court to Hear Initiative and Referendum Test in Fall.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Pushed to the rear by the advancement and rehearing of many Federal cases, including the regularly scheduled case against the Standard Oil and the tobacco corporations, the Oregon case, involving the constitutionality of laws adopted by the initiative and referendum method, may not be passed upon by the Federal Supreme Court until next year.

Only one month remains of this term for argument of cases, and more than 75 cases must be considered before the Oregon case will be reached. Should it not be argued this term, it will be considered early next Fall. The case was brought to the Supreme Court by the Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph Company, an Oregon corporation, which claimed the object of a law adopted recently by the initiative and referendum method, under which all telephone and telegraph in Oregon are to pay a license tax of 2 per cent per annum on gross receipts is unconstitutional.

In addition to the alleged violation of the Oregon constitution, it is charged that any law adopted by the initiative and referendum method is in violation of that clause in the Federal Constitution which guarantees a republican form of government to each of the states.

The Supreme Court of Oregon defended the initiative and referendum amendment of its constitution in 1902, as not violative of the Federal Constitution. That tribunal said that under the initiative and referendum method of Legislation, the representative feature of the old system of government still remained, the effect being only to retain in the mass of electors a larger share of legislative power than heretofore.

WOMAN AWARDED MEDAL

Latacre Literary Prize at Notre Dame Goes to Agnes Repplier.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., March 26.—(Special.)—The University of Notre Dame annually awards by the University of Notre Dame to a lay member of the Catholic Church in the United States who has performed conspicuous work in literature, art, science or philanthropy, has been awarded this year to Miss Agnes Repplier, of Philadelphia.

Miss Repplier was chosen by a board of trustees for the highest honor the university confers because of her literary work. She began to write stories, poems and sketches at an early age, but first came into prominence, however, through her essays, the best of which appeared at intervals in the Atlantic Monthly.

Accompanying the medal is an address painted on vellum by a celebrated artist. It was first conferred in 1883 on the historian John Gilmary Shea, and in succeeding years many of the most prominent Catholics of the country have received the honor, which has twice since been bestowed on women. It was awarded to William J. O'Connell, publisher, and Dr. John E. Murphy, surgeon.

JUST A SCHEME TO GET MONEY

On June 1st, 1910, we received a letter from George W. Baxter, of Canistota, N. Y. His son, 12 years old, has chronic Bright's Disease. He says: "The doctor is antagonistic and tells me there is no cure for Bright's, and that it is simply a scheme to sell medicine. I am almost crazy over his condition."

Another letter was received from the albumen, ranked from 25 to 33 1/2 per cent, tests being made every Saturday.

We replied in substance that, notwithstanding the fact that in Christendom, recoveries were being constantly reported, and that where the eyes were involved, that while this is an ugly symptom, yet we would look for favorable results.

The father put the boy on Fulten's Renal Compound, our consulting physician sending a tonic to aid in this compound. As to the results obtained the father wrote on February 20th, 1911 (eight months later), from which we extract: "Theodore has taken this compound since last June. In February the doctor made a test and could not find the slightest trace of albumen. The specific gravity was 1022."

It will be noted that there was a large quantity of albumen, and that it has entirely disappeared. In fact, the father writes, "The doctor now thinks it useless to give him the Renal Compound further as there is no albumen."

Wonder what that physician thinks now as to the ability of Fulten's Renal Compound to control chronic Kidney Disease, thought to be incurable the world over.

They Grow Hair

Certain Ingredients, if Properly Combined, Stimulate Human Hair Growth.

Research is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered. Betanaphthol is a most powerful, yet absolutely safe germicide and antiseptic, which prevents development of germ matter, and creates a clean, healthy condition.

Pilocarpine, although not a coloring matter or dye, is an ingredient which is tabular for its power to restore natural color to human hair.

Borax, because of its well-defined softening and cleansing properties, is most useful in the treatment of scalp and hair diseases. Glycerine acts as a stimulant to the hair bulbs, and has a soothing, healing and nourishing influence. Alcohol is indispensable in medicine because of its antiseptic, stimulating and preservation qualities.

COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA DOUBLE-DISC RECORDS

The new series of Columbia Grand Opera Records comprise selections by the most talented artists of the operatic stage. The recordings are faultless examples of the perfection attained in mechanical sound registering.

The work of the greatest artists can be something more than a dream or a memory to you now. Columbia Grand Opera Records enable you to hear and enjoy them for all time—at your leisure, in your own home.

Write and we will send the full descriptive Catalogue or better still, call, and we will gladly play some selections for you on the Grafonola.

Records by the following artists are included in the new Columbia Grand Opera Catalogue: Cavelleri, Constantino, Blanchart, Mardones, Boninsegna, Bronskaja, Freeman, Bispham and Campanari.

SOLD BY YOUR DEALER OR Columbia Phonograph Company 371 Washington Street.

GOLD DUST will sterilize your kitchen things and make them wholesome and sanitary GOLD DUST does more than clean—it sterilizes and leaves your kitchen things sanitarly safe. The ordinary soap-washed utensil is not fit to eat from, because soap does not cleanse as thoroughly as it should—does not kill germs of decay which are bound to lurk in oft-used utensils.

Besides its cleansing virtues, GOLD DUST has the merit of doing work quickly, and saving your strength. It will do most of the cleaning without your assistance, and do it, too, in a quicker and more thorough manner than will soap or other cleansers.

GOLD DUST makes pot and pan spick and span.

Do not use Soap, Naphtha, Borax, Soda, Ammonia or Kerosene with Gold Dust. Gold Dust has all desirable cleaning qualities in a perfectly harmless and lasting form.

Made by THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY Makers of FAIRY SOAP, the oval cake

go east through California

There is just one best way east and that is Santa Fe All The Way

San Francisco to Chicago. Our roadbed admits of fast time. Our equipment is built by Pullman. Our meal service is managed by Fred Harvey. Our employes are courteous.

Earth's scenic wonder, the Grand Canyon, is on your way, and you have the privilege of stopping over.

Scenes of Ancient Indian Pueblos, en route. And it's one management all the way—via Santa Fe—San Francisco to Chicago.

Our booklets tell what you want to know. We are always Ticked to Talk Tickets.

H. E. Vernon, Gen. Agt. Santa Fe, 252 Alder St. Phone Main 1274.

