Argument Heard on Building Judge Orders Portland to Connect Courthouse Wing.

WRIT OF REVIEW ASKED

Labor Leaders Demand Thompson-Starrett Company Be Given Work-Case Heard on Demurrer to Petition.

Whether the county will be forced to award the contract for the west wing of the new Courthouse to the Thomp on-Starrett Company, the lowest bid ders for the work, or will be permitted to readvertise for the work, is to be decided today by Judge Kavanaugh before whom the matter was argued yesterday afternoon.

The case was argued on demurrer to tention in the demurrer that the peti tion did not allege the county had refused to award the contract was sustained, and the case was dropped from the court calendar. The case was filed by C. M. Rynerson, acting, it is understood, in the interest of labor unions, who later filed an amended petition. It terday.

Writ Called Illegal.

District Attorney Cameron, appearing or the county, called attention to a ection of the law to show that a writ of mandamus could not be issued against the County Court with regard to its conduct of county affairs, and declared that the only way to bring the matter to the Circuit Court would be to grant a writ of review, when a decision could a writ of review, when a decision could be rendered on the records in the case. When the County Court refused to accept the bids for the construction of the west wing of the Courthouse, the city had changed its plan of having the City Juli placed in the new building. Thus the architects, Whidden & Lewis, advised the County Court that it would be necessary to rearrange the specifications of the building and suggested that the bids be denied and that new bids on new specifications be solicited. Labor leaders at that time contended that the action of the architects, which were charged with being unfriendly to labor, was to injure a firm that was loyal to union labor. C. M. Rynerson, who brought the action against the County Court, has no financial interest in the contracting frm of Thempson-Starrett Company, but brought the acin the contracting firm of Thempson-Starrett Company, but brought the ac-as an interested citizen only. Cleeton Explains Position.

Judge Cleeton and County Commissioners Lightner and Hart have said that they would be satisfied to act in any manner that the higher court decides. They have explained that they acted in the matter wholly upon the advice of their architects.

The bids for the construction of the west wing of the new Courthouse, over which the controversy is being conducted, are as follows: Thempson-Starrett Company, $607,000; Lewis & Hicks, $621,000; United Engineering & Construction Company, $623,000; Sound Construction Company, $623,000; Sound Construction tion Company, $680,000, and Robert Wakefield & Company, $721,000.

It is alleged by the architects that the bid of the Thompson-Starrett Company is not regular in some details.

CITY LOSES FIRE ALARM CASE

With National's Wires.

Judge Coke, here from Marshfield to omplete court business begun when he was here last Summer, Issued an order yesterday requiring the city system to connect with four boxes of the National Automatic Fire Alarm Company. Deputy City Attorney Benbow emonstrated against the order, saying that the question of the company's right to affiliate with the city in its fire alarm work is now before the State Supreme Court, and that the court had no right to issue further orders until the case has been decided. The boxes, the company complained, had been detached from the city system. Mr. Benbow intimated that an effort would be made to bring some other action to protect the city until the Su-preme Court has handed down its de-rid of the Automatic Fire Alarm Com-pany, the concern brought suit. The automatic system had been permitted to use city wires for a time, and it was contended by the company that this agreement could not be broken by the city at will. The case was tried before a petition for an alternative writ of Judge Coke when he was on the local mandamus some time ago, but the conup the docket.

The city took the suit to the Su-preme Court in an endeavor to dispose of the Automatic Company's interference with its fire department work, and a decision is expected at an early date.

Court Is Convened Earlier.

Presiding Judge Gantenbein con vened the State Circuit Court at 3 o'clock instead of 9:30 Monday morning. He says he intends to continue this practice on the first day of each term hereafter. This enables him to hear the excuses of jurors and to preside over the drawing of the grand hear the excuses of jurors and to preside over the drawing of the grand jury, besides delivering his charge to this body before 9:30, the time for the opening of court in the other departments. As there are five departments and all the judges have heretofore been delayed for a half hour each on the opening day of the term, this plan will save just two and a half hours and permit that much more progress in clearing the docket of cases.

Threatened with being poisoned by his wife because he went to night school was one of the features of the divorce complaint filed by Alexander Haberman against Mary Haberman in Haberman against Mary Haberman in the Circuit Court yesterday. Haber-man's complaint was based on a charge of cruelty, but he was specific in few instances in which cruelty is alleged, He concluded his complaint by saying that his wife had deserted him Decem-ber 24, 1910. They were married in ber 24, 1910. They were married in Multnomah County, August 16, 1910.
