OVERFLOW FOR PENINSULA SYSTEM IS IDEA

Mayor, Councilman Ellis and Assistant City Engineer Say Method Is Not Expensive.

A sanitary sewer emptying into the Columbia River and an overflow empty-ing into Columbia Slough probably will be the solution of the difficult problem that has for many months confronted the city authorities. That this plan is entirely feasible and sanitary and rela-tively inexpensive, is the decision of Mayor Simon, Councilman Ellis and First tively inexpensive, is the decision of Mayor Simon, Councilman Ellis and First Assistant City Engineer Huriburt. Between them, they evolved the plan and will recommend it to the Council.

Over the sewer problem on the penin sula there has been much trouble. It is one of the most difficult municipal problems that the administration ever faced. The district is a large one and is being rapidly built up. Speedy action for proper drainage is imperative, and Councilman Ellis, in whose ward the territory lies, began proceedings looking to a solution of the trouble. He encountered strong opposition because of a statement altributed to him that he intended to recommend the draining of the district into the Columbia Slough. The residents were up in arms over the situation and on several occasions they stormed the Council chambers and protested, until one day Mr. Ellis told them he had not said he favored emptying the sewer into the slough.

Mr. Ellis a week ago secured adoption edough.

Mr. Ellis a week ago secured adoption, by the Council of a resolution instruct-ing the City Engineer to proceed with an investigation, looking toward a solution of the problem and to report his find-ings. That investigation is now in prog-

The great protest against draining the district into Columbia Slough, however, caused Mayor Simon to seek another means of disposing of the sewage and the plan to build a sanitary sewer into the Columbia River was proposed. It probably will be about 21 inches in diameter and 2000 feet long; its cost will be about 250,000. The overflow sewer will not be expensive, either, and will empty into the slough. It is said by the Mayor that this plan is the best that can be arranged and that it will be submitted district into Columbia Slough, however, arranged and that it will be submitted to the City Council soon, ELMAN'S VIOLIN.

The Famous Young Violinist Plays Here Wednesday, April 26.

The priceless Stradivarius violin that The priceless Stradivarius violin that Mischa Elman uses in his concert work formerly belonged to the great Joachim. Strangely enough this violin, most sensitive and wonderful of all instruments ever invented by man. responded to the touch of other violinists by giving out "wolf tones," in other words ugly, unmusical sounds that reflected a mystifying lack of harmony between player and instrument. The violin apparently refused to acknowledge anyone else but Joachim as master. Finally Elman tried his turn with it, and immediately the violin respendier. Finally Elman tried his turn with it, and immediately the violin respended with the same enchanting, heartmoving tones that Joachim had always brouht from it. Evidently the sensitive old Strad was ready at last to acknowledge a new master. And Elman today is the only man living who can produce the same golden tones that Joachim was wont to bring forth from it, tones that wrenched the heart strings of all those who heard them.

Federal Liquor License Regarded as Presumptive.

FOUR WOMEN ARRESTED

City Authorities Will Contend Government Authority Is Obtained for Violation of Municipal Ordinances.

To test the question whether the possession of a Federal liquor license is sufficient evidence of liquor-selling. Chief of Police Cox caused the arrest yesterday morning of five women, holders of Federal licenses, on charges of selling liquor without a city license. He has the support of the City Attorney, and if necessary the cases will be carried to the upper courts.

Those arrested were Marguerite Butrich, Third and Taylor streets; Nora J. Wade, 207 Third street; May Sanborn, 2474 Third street; Irene Craig, 2014

The street and street, Irene Craig. 201½. Third street: Anna Borglund, 190½. Third street. Their names were taken at random from the list of United States Government Ilcenses. The arrests were made by Sergeant Riley and Patrolman Burke.

Patrolman Burke.

The action of the police chief is an indirect outgrowth of charges made last Summer by Marie Brehm, a temperance worker, that more than 400 "blind pigs" were being run in Portland. Her figures were based on the record of licenses issued by the Collector of Internal Revenue, excluding licensed selectors and drugstons. Miss. lector of internal Revenue, excluding licensed saloons and drugstores. Miss Brehm's assertion caused a sensation and was met with denial by police of-ficials. A squabble developed and when the accuser was called upon to produce her facts it was found that her list included many clubs, steamers, dining cars and similar dispensaries. There still remained, however, a large residum of places unaccounted for, and Chief Cox excused his inaction against them by pointing to the fact that sus-picion was one thing and legal evidence another.

The police have now determined to bring the issue to a test, holding that there can be no other reason for ob-taining a Federal license but to sell liquor and that this should be sufficient liquor and that this should be sufficient proof that liquor is being sold. Pending settlement of the point of law, no other like arrests will be made.

The action of the Chief of Police is based upon section 6 of the new model liquor ordinance, which was inserted persuant to his request, and provides that the possession of the Federal license shall constitute a house a place where liquors are sold. It is probable that the defendants will attack the constitutionality of this provision, as constitutionality of this provision, as not being within the chartered power of

USE OF DETECTIVE FREES

Judge McGinn Scorns Sleuthing, Orders Two Acquitted.

Evidence collected by private detectives, who are paid for that purpose, is held in such contempt by Judge McGinn that he directed a jury in his court yesterday afternoon in the case of the state against R. Simpson and Theresa O'Connel for a statutory crime, to bring a verdict of not guilty.

The court ordered dismissal of the case because of the attitude of the law concerning the employment of private

Judge McGinn read the following extract from the case of Blake against Blake in Illinois, to show that employment of detectives is not in keeping with the intent of law:

"It is said in Browning in the laws of

"It is said in Browning in the laws of marriage and divorce, citing from Sir Cresswell: 'The employment of a private detective, for the purpose of getting up evidence, though in some few ways they may afford useful assistance, is, as a rule, very objectionable. They are most dangerous agents and the court looks upon their evidence with much suspicion. When a man sets up as a hired discoverer of supposed delinquencies, when the amount of his pay decends upon the extent of his employlinquencies, when the amount of his pay depends upon the extent of his employment, and the extent of his employment depends upon the discoveries he is able to make, then the man becomes a most dangerous instrument."

It developed in the trial that Louis Hartman, who maintains a private developed to the followed Simpson.

tective agency, had followed Simpson and Miss O'Connel for several weeks, under salary of Mrs. Simpson. He had hidden in various places to watch the man and woman. The evidence pre-pared by Hartman was presented to the grand jury, and an indictment was re-turned December 13, 1919.

LIBRARY SITE IS SOUGHT Montavilla Has Strong Hope Branch Will Be Built.

Montavilla residents expect to be able to buy a site for a branch library and offer it to the City Library Association offer it to the City Library Association on the condition that a suitable building is erected in the suburb. It was decided at the meeting of the Montavilla Board of Trade Monday night to undertake to raise money to buy the site, and a committee was appointed to start the movement. H. B. Dickinson reported that the members of the City Association had given encouragement, and he said he considered it almost certain that if the people of Montavilla would provide a site the building would be built.

H. B. Dickinson, J. W. Conway and H. B. Dickinson, J. W. Conway and William DeVeny were appointed to confer with the Montavilla Rose Association about taking part in the Rose Festival. A committee on fire protection was also appointed. The meeting adopted a resolution approving the municipal paving plant measure which is to be voted on in June, and also thanking the Board of Education for buying four lots adjoining the Montavilla schoolhouse. Purchase of the additional lots will provide a playground. lots will provide a playground.
