COREY RESIGNS AS CHIEF CLERK

He Declares His Intent to Run for Secretaryship at Next Election.

QUESTION PUT UP TO HIM

Benson's Former Right-Hand Man Asserts He Was Given Choice of Resigning or Withdrawing From Race.

SALEM, Or., May 1 .- (Special.)-H. H. Corey, chief clerk in the office of the Secretary of State, resigned after a conference with Secretary Ben W. Olcott, in which he was ordered to decline to b candidate for the office of Secretary, at the next election, as a consideration at the next election, as a consideration for holding his present position.

Such a result of conditions has been pending for some time. Chief Clerk Corey has received letters from every section of the state urging him to be a candidate. All of the thousands of friends of ex-Secretary Frank W. Benson have joined in urging this move, and the mail here has been full of solicitations daily. Corey received his appointment from Frank W. Benson.

Although a subordinate in the office, he rapidly worked up and, when Mr. Benson was compelled to leave for California because of ill-health, he left the entire management of affairs in the hands of Corey. During the trying campaign, when it was left to Corey to care for Mr. Benson's interests and handle the office as well, he was in full charge and carried through the campaign and office work successfully.

Just as Mr. Benson had made full arrangements to offer the chief clerk an advance in salary, word came from the south that the Secreary was dead. With the appointment of Mr. Olcott, Olcott and Governor West conferred as to the chief of the chief of the conferred as a second was a second with the conferred as the chief of the Governor West conferred as to the employes that should stay, and a pact was entered into relative to Olcott's re-election. It was determined that it would be good politics to allow Corey to stay provided that he would renounce his ambitions as a candidate for Secretary of State. This was not put up to him foreibly until last week, and he was told to take a few days to consider it. He Must Decide at Once.

Today Olcott told Corey that he must definitely announce his position, and Coley decided that he would rather take the position of one not bound down by a pledge, than to retain his place in the a pledge, than to retain his place in the Secretary's office.

It is evident that Corey was retained to sidetrack his chances for election. Governor West, with his knowledge of the "game," knows that Olcott's chances for re-election are none too good. He is aware of the fact that Corey would be one of the strongest contenders and plans were made to sidetrack Corey and place him in an irretrievable position by allowing him to hold his clerkship and place him forever out of the running as a plausible ever out of the running as a plausible Republican candidate for Secretary of

With this end in view the bait has been held out to offer him plenty of time, hoping that he would remain. Corey, regardless of this, has consented to give Olcott every chance in the world to make good. "Although resigning," he stated tonight," I appreciate that a new man in the office is severely handicapped. I have told Mr. Olcott that I will remain as long as he wishes me to without any pay whatsoever, until such work and will be able to secure a chief clerk who can handle all of the de-

Sunday School Offers Opportunity for Escape From Aid Society.

OREGON CITY, Or., May 1.—(Special).—Taking advantage of a visit to a Sunday school to escape from the Boys' & Girls' Ald Society and return home to his parents, George Boyer, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Boyer, came back from Portland at 8 eclock Sunday night, after a wear, and foot-sore tramp from Sellwood.

The lad has refused to go to school The Ind has refused to go to school and has been a trial to his parents, playing "hookey" at times. Last Saturday he was sent to the Boys' & Giris' Aid Society, Deputy Sheriff Miles delivering him to that institution. Sunday morning, George went to church with the other juvenile inmates, and, after the service was over, he was told to go back to the society home, and he made tracks.

The first man he met heard his hardluck story, about his living in Oregon City and being far from home, and from this individual the boy secured 5 cents, which took him as far as Sellwood. He walked the rest of the way to Oregon City. This morning his father took him to Judge Beatle, and, after a conference, the lad was allowed to go

OPENING OF SEASON AT OREGON CITY ENCOURAGING.

Fishermen Swarm to Grounds in Autos, Cars and on Foot and Land Big Ones.

OREGON CITY, Or., May 1 .- (Specal.)—The fishermen are coming off of the river with many good catches. Earlier in the day the luck seemed to be against them, but later changed. E. P. Elliott and W. F. Althoff brought in four fine fish, averaging 40 pounds each. I. Hoisman, of Portland, brought one 40-pounder in with him, and W. F. Backus, a sporting goods dealer of Portland, had two that weighed 45. One party from Salem brought in 18. Charley Meyer, of Portland, had four beauties. Many others are bringing in single catches and there are still about 150 people on the water.

Every oar arriving in Oregon City during the day has had a number of Waltons from Portland, who anticities and send send the control of these orders. pated good sport, but few of those on the river had much luck. Some of the fishermen came in their automobiles and took the same run of luck accorded and took ine same run of dok accorded by the God of Sports that their humbler comrades were compelled to accept. The boats presented an interesting appearance and the rocks were lined with a crowd of curious and interested spectators. There were no accidents to mar the day's sport, but many had nar-row and others amusing escapes in the white water close to the falls. The attraction of the water tumbling over the rocks seemed to be too much for many of the disciples of Walton, and they pulled in too close, only to be driven back by the current.

Several fine fish were caught, one several line fish were caugh, one man getting four fine salmon. His name could not be fearned. Others had varying luck. Most of those who arrived early in the morning were still on the river at a late hour in the evening. The few who came in, had little to report because of the poor luck they had been having. All the boats that were to be had were in requisition during the day, it being decidedly difficult to obtain any kind of service during the latter part of the afternoon.

STATE LABOR COMMISSIONER GIVES HIS POSITION.

Women Not to Be Employed More Than Eight Hours in Washington After June 9.

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 1 .- (Special.) -According to Charles F. Hubbard, State Labor Commissioner, a law is a law, and the new eight-hour law for women is going to be strictly enforced. And he holds that it applies to all women workers in mechanical or mercantile establishments, laundry, hotel and restaurant, whether they be employed in running machines that produce ma-terial for sale, or as bookkeepers or office girls, and he says it also includes

Mr. Hubbard has had hundreds of the copies of the new eight-hour law for women printed on stiff cardboard, and s sending them broadcast throughout the state, for the new law goes into effect June 8. There is no excuse, he declares, for employers of labor pleading ignorance and that, in his opinion, when the statute opens with the phrase "No female shall be employed more than eight hours during any day," it means just what it says. He announces that the language is so plain that there is no possibility for the law being misunderstood, and therefore he proposes to enforce it.

Captain Aloe said that the time has come for the depositors to do something about prosecutilon, or quit. If anything has been done that is wrong and it can be found out, the guilty ones should be prosecuted, he said. If ones should be prosecuted, he said. If they have not, the matter should be dropped, he added. He suggested that both civil and criminal suits be started.

Mrs. Carrie Mayer, a member of the depositors' committee, said she had asked Gilbert Daniels, cashier, why he had not informed her the bank was in a shaky condition, adding that it was her confidence in him that caused her to keep her money there. She said that if Daniels had resigned, she would have taken out all of the money she process.

that if Daniels had resigned, she would have taken out all of the money she had in the bank. She said, when asked today, that the bank had paid her 8 per cent on her savings deposits, but she did not even then grow suspicious. Mr. Tempes was called and he said he had come to the conclusion that an expert accountant was absolutely necessary, and suggested that the depositors contribute to a 'slush fund' to pay incidental expenses, and in case of an emergency. A committee composed of Captain Alfred Aloe, Charles W. Hall, and H. D. Steel was appointed to supervise the expenditure of the depositors, contribution fund, and to assist in the proposed investigation.
