Washington State Militia Fight Settled After Long Struggle.

LONG WAR WAS PROMISED

Colonel Lamping and Colonel Case Given Positions Without Any Real Work—Both Satisfied With Final Pickings.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 2.—(Special)—The feud of many years standing between Colonel George B. Lamping, ex-Adjutant-General of the state, and Colonel Otto A. Case, ex-Commander of the Second Infantry, but later in charge of the Paymaster's Department, was summarily settled today by order of Governor M. E. Hay and Adjutant-General Fred Lewis, by the abolition of commissary and paymaster departments of the National Guard, headed by the respective rivals, and the honorable discharge of the National Guard of both officers.

"They may apply to be placed upon the list of retired officers of the National Guard of Washington," is the laconic closing of the Adjutant-General's official order received by both officers.

For the first time in many years, ex-Colonel Case felt perfectly free today to make sundry and sulphurous remarks directed at his former co-laborers in the militia, without the necessity of looking around to see if there were any strangers present.

There will be no fight made on the discharge of Colonel Lamping has expressed his intention of resigning a number of times in recent weeks, and Colonel Case will not raise his voice in official protest. It has been a long, hard fight, and in its time has split and sundered the National Guard into factions that made progress and efficiency impossible. It is certain, from expressions made today by one of the parties affected, that the order of the Governor and Adjutant-General will be made an issue in the next state campaign.

He concluded by looking for an excellent crop for the coming season.

OREGON'S SURVEY PLANS ARRANGED

Geological Department of Government Co-operates With State.

GAUGE POSTS INCREASED

Demands for Observation of Flow and Contents of Waters in Various Parts of Commonwealth Are Great.

SALEM, Or., May 2.—(Special)—The terms of co-operation in the making of topographic maps, and stream gauging work in Oregon for 1911, has been definitely agreed upon in a conference between the State Engineer and the Director of the United States Geological Survey. The Government will expend dollar for dollar with the state in these surveys, which are of permanent nature and will tend greatly to promote the development and the better use of the state's resources. State Engineer Lewis returned from Washington, D. C. last night.

Five-hundred square miles south and east of Portland will be surveyed this year on a field scale of one and one-fourth inches to the mile, showing 25 foot contour intervals. This work will add to the present field scale of one inch to the mile, and include Oregon City. Approximately 600 square miles of the floor of the Willamette Valley in the vicinity of Astoria already has been mapped on a scale of two inches to the mile, showing five-foot contour intervals. Four hundred square miles adjoining this area to the north will be surveyed similarly and mapped this season. It will include the towns of Corvallis and Albany.

New Gauging Stations Projected.

In Baker County 80 square miles will be mapped on a scale of two miles to the inch, showing 100 foot contours. This area will include the fertile valley of part of the Willamette, and Lower Powder River. In addition, triangulation control will be extended over unurveyed tracts so as to furnish a proper base for work in subsequent years.

In addition to the 108 stream-gauging stations now being established and maintained with the funds available, 50 great is the demand for this work that numerous private organizations interested in particular districts are co-operating by voluntary contributions.

Without a record of stream flow extending over a series of years, capital investment in water power is impossible. A special investigation and report will be made upon the water power possibilities of the Deschutes River basin. This work will be extended as rapidly as funds are available, so that definite information will be available to the public. Such investigations will be of great value to the state in harmonizing conflicting interests in water power, irrigation and water power development. It will furnish also a proper basis for legislation upon this very important subject.

Information Not at Hand.

Oregon is the only state in the Union where no information is available as to the chemical or mineral contents of the waters of its streams. This information, collected at different points throughout a full year is of permanent value, as the waters will be general continuance of the same composition from year to year. The desirability of its watershed remains the same. Without this information, thousands of dollars will be wasted in steam boilers, and the development of scale, and of particular value in selecting proper domestic water supplies. Lack of such information will greatly handicap the construction of filter plants, as in most cases it is impossible to decide upon the type of filter to be installed without definite information as to color, turbidity and alkalinity of the water at different stages throughout the year. Tentative plans relative to such a study on 25 of the typical streams of the state have been considered. Definite announcement as to this work cannot be made by Mr. Lewis until after he has a conference with Dr. Calvin S. White, of the State Board of Health.

WOODMEN WILL CELEBRATE

Plans Being Made for Cabin-Raising at State Fairgrounds.

Woodmen of the World are expected from Albany, Woodburn, Silverton, Turner, McMinnville, Dallas, Stayton and other towns in the Valley. A special train is expected from Eugene.

At 8 o'clock Sunday morning the cabin-raising will be started and the cabin will be constructed in a single day. A flag-raising will be a feature and a big dinner will be served at noon. Immediately after the cabin-raising, Governor West and Secretary of State Olcott will be given the obligation of the order.

The cabin will be dedicated on Monday, September 12, the second day of the State Fair, which will be Woodmen of the World's 50th anniversary.

DOYLE THROWS GUN AWAY

Creator of Sherlock Holmes No Longer Kills Wild Things.

LONDON, April 15.—(Special)—E. Thompson Seton, the famous American naturalist, has been reminding British hunters that no longer is the question "how to kill an animal" the only matter of interest in regard to an animal as in earlier days.

This change of attitude towards animals, he said, was brought about by Charles Darwin, who taught the fundamental lesson, that we are akin to Thompson Seton told the members of the Vagabond Club who were feting him that that was an epoch-making thought.

A surprising confirmation of this statement came from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who confessed that it was the scream of a wounded hare which first made him throw away his gun. In paying the compliment to Thompson Seton's book, "Wild Animals of the World," he said:

SHEEPMEN ARE OUT

Government Wins Victory in Idaho Land Case.

FLOCKMASTER IS FINED

Edward Newman Pays Fine of $275 for Ranging Forest Reserve and Additional Fine for His Employees.

POCATELLO, Idaho, May 2.—(Special)—The Federal Government scored a signal victory over the sheepmen of Idaho today when, by agreement, the case of the United States against Edward Newman, a prominent flockmaster in the end of the state, and his herders, Ham Steffert and William Wallace, was settled in the United States Circuit Court here by the payment by the principal defendant, of $500 for illegal grazing of Federal forest reserves. Last June Newman placed four bands of sheep on the Pocatello National Forest, in defiance of the authority of the forest officials and proceeded to range there for the Summer. The herders were arrested and the flocks removed.

In the settlement effected today Newman was assessed $175 for the feed consumed and $100 punitive damage under yesterday's decision of the United States Supreme Court upholding the constitutionality of the forest service regulations. Each of the three defendants were fined an additional $25.

The case is one which has attracted wide attention and aroused deep interest among stockmen of Southern Idaho and its compromise settlement, pending by the Department of Justice at Washington in the manner mentioned, will undoubtedly mark the end of intentional grazing in forest reserves of Idaho.

REPORTS ARE FAVORABLE

SUPERINTENDENT VISITS CENTRAL OREGON SCHOOLS.

Remarkable Increase in School Attendance and Activity Shown Everywhere.

SALEM, Or., May 2.—(Special)—Returning from a trip through Central Oregon, Superintendent Alderman reports an activity in school affairs there which is surprising to him. He declares that the school facilities are keeping pace with the active development of that section and reports an exceptional increase in school attendance.

At Prineville, where the Crook County High School is located, the attendance has gone up 50 per cent in the last year.

"This is an exceptionally fine high school," stated Superintendent Alderman, "and the County Board has been moved so as to adjoin the handsome school building and is being used as a portion of the school. A teachers training department, a class in agriculture, a commercial course are a few of the departments in high school work which are proving to be practical.

"The students in Central Oregon, I find, are willing to undertake anything and are live and enterprising. They are decidedly loyal to their institutions and are aiding materially in developing them, as well as their section of the state.

"At Redmond the school children are planning a spelling match with the future. At the laymen's meeting, while I was there, one of the business men made a remark that the children could not spell, and the pupils immediately extended a challenge and intend to 'show them'.

"It was at Prineville, Redmond, Madras and LaGrange and find that the work of the schools is remarkable.

"Redmond has three times as many pupils as last year and it is necessary for the town to hold a secondary school above stores, so rapid has been the increase. The Oregon Trunk has proved to be a godsend to the schools as well as to the country."

SALEM, Or., May 2.—(Special)—In response to a request from W. E.
