Russian Symphony Orchestra, With Modest Altschuler, Here Thursday.

Today at Sherman, Clay & Company, the seat sale for the two Symphony Orchestra concerts opens at 10 o'clock the concerts taking place Thursday afternoon at 3:15 and Thursday night at 8.15, at the Armory, under the direc-tion of Lois Steers-Wynn Coman. The San Francisco Chronicle of May 4 says: "It is no wonder that the Russians are famous musicians—they love their country. Some great, disinterested pascountry. Some great, disinterested passion seems to be necessary to give wings to genius—a passion like that which inspired Tschaikowsky to write his topal enic "1812" commemoration. which inspired Tschaikowsky to write his tonal epic '1812,' commemorating Napoleon's retreat from Mosnow. It was played by the Altschuler orchestra at Scottish Rite Hall last night as only Russians could have played it. When it was over the amdience refused to go home, and the conductor, instead of taking all the applause to himself, compelled his 50 instrumentalists to stand up and bow their acknowledgments."

Death of Prominent Worker in Organization Brings Expression of Grief From Fellows.

Members of the Portland newspaper raternity and friends gathered at the Portland Press Club yesterday afteroon to pay tribute to the memory of the late Jack (J. W.) Barrett, until a few months ago night police reporter for The Oregonian. Rev. Father Black, of St. Francis' Church, S. B. Vincent, president of the Portland Press Club and P. C. Lavey spoke of the character of Mr. Barrett, showing his religious zeal, his enthusiasm for his work and he interest he had taken in the organ-ization of the Press Club.

President Vincent said "Jack Barrett was a straight forward, clean man. He was strong in his re-ligious faith and lived his life accordingly. He was kind and courteous to his fellow newspapermen, and to all those who came in contact with him. He was firm and outspoken in his opinions when occasion demanded, and his fudgment in many matters was relied upon by the officers and members of his organization,

General Anderson Opposes Proposed Peace Pact.

PRESIDENT IS COMMENDED

Resolution Adopted at Unitarian Church Gathering Favors Taft's Plan to Join Britain in Movement.

General Thomas M. Anderson declared in a speech at the Unitarian Church last night that the proposed treaty between the United States and England was visonary, while Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, of Temple Beth Israel, and Dr. J. R. Wil-son, of Portland Academy, spoke in favor of the treaty. General Anderson said

"I have no particular objection to the reaty with England, except that I think that it is a vain thing and opens the door to an impracticable method of deal-ing with situations involving the two nations. Arbitration is a visionary doc-trine, a Utopian dream. Applicable to ourselves. I do not believe, with the reserved rights of the states, the central government can always accomplish its purpose by arbitration. I do not believe we could, for instance, arbitrate the Monros doctrine."

Rabbi Commends Taft.

Rabbt Wise said a Republic like America ought not to look with sym-pathy upon such a system as war. He

"No action of any leader in the world today has received the attention that the so-called arbitration treaty which President Taft has suggested has called forth. Strangely enough, it follows closely in intent and policy the pact drawn up by Grover Cleveland in 1887, and signed January II of that year, only to be rejected by the Senate. The world has been stirred not only to comment, but to action by this candid endeavor to put into practice the theories today has received the attention that the deavor to put into practice the theories of our altruistic age. The Bible predicts peace as the rule of the Messianic age. and those who are interested in human uplift believe the welfare of humanity will be best served by removing the hor-rors of war and the preparation of war. The Englishman has no profit from Egypt or South Africa equal to the loss of brave men and the sorrow of loving women. The sorrow of war, as well as its burdens, falls upon the lowly; its giory and gains are the spolls of the

Dr. Wilson said, in part: "Two great nations, in recognition of their common blood and kindred institutions and interests, binding themselves by solemn treaty to submit all selves by solemn treaty to submit all their differences to arbitration and to abide by the results, present an impressive spectacle and mark a long step in advance. It is the hope of the advocates of this treaty and of all who are laboring for the ends of peace, that when educated and put in force it shall when adopted and put in force it shall go far toward establishing as a stable institution the peace of the world." Rev. Delmar H. Trimble Speaks From Precept on Situation in Portland Underworld.

That there had been lack of the enprogramment of law in this city, as evitenced by the recent exposures in po tic affairs, was the contention of Rev. Delmar H. Trimble in an address last night at Centenary Methodist Church, East Ninth and East Pine streets, on "Who is Responsible for Law Enforce-

Without making a direct charge, the speaker asked the question if somebody had not been paid for the non-enforcement of law in Portland. In discussing law enforcement Rev. Mr. Trimble said: law enforcement Rev. Mr. Trimble said:

"The Governor is the chief executive of the state, sworn to execute the law and may command the State Militia, summon every able-bodied ma., in the state. The Sheriff is the chief executive of the county and may appoint deputies to assist him, and the Mayor is the chief executive of the city. He appoints the police force and controls and commands them. The entire executive body of the Government is linked together from the Chief of Police to the President, or from Cox to lice to the President, or from Cox to Taft. The proceedure in Portland at present would seem to indicate a lack of co-operation between the police and the District Attorney, hence much of our lawlessness. "The entire power of the Govern-ment is back of the executive officer for law enforcement.

"No executive has a right to sit as a judge of the wisdom of a law, or to a judge of the wisdom of a law, or to exercise his discretion as to whether he will enforce, or to claim inability because of opposition to the law. Every officer from the Chief of Police to the President solemnly swears to enforce our laws and our system puts the powers of the country in their hands to do so. "Utop'a will come when every citi-ren who loves his country obeys its laws, when all good citizens bond together in every community to see that all law is enforced, either through the proper officers or, if not, in spite of

Police Captain Required to Subdue Her When She Declares She Is Going to Bite Someone.

She Is Cannibal

The "demon negress" of the City Jail went bad yesterday morning, and Matron Simmons was compelled to call Captain Baty upstairs to assist in subduing her. The captain put restraining straps on the woman's arms, and fastened her to the grating of a cell, but, with superhuman strength, she broke the locks which hold the straps in place. She was at last forced into a cell, where she will be kept solitary until her paroxysm has passed.

"I'm a cannibal," said the prisoner, "and I'm just going to bite a piece out of some one." Then she started systematically to curse the police force, beginning with Chief Cox, and going down through the list of captains and sergeants. The patrolmen, whom she did not know by name, she designated by number, and ran through the list from one to 300, although assured that there were not that many officers on the force. Each one received a distinct malediction.
