There was the usual grouching at the umpire, but today this assumed more pronounced proportions and in the fifth finning, when Miller was allowed eafe on a close decision, took on a decidedly unique complexion.

Victoria's Chief of Police, who happens to be an enthusiast, forgot his dignity in his excitement and walked on the field to inform the umpire that he knew more about the game than the umpire knew. Then the astoniahed crowd were treated to the novel spectacle of seeing the head of the polic department perceptorily ordered from the grounds.

Eastley pitched good ball for the madstars, allowing but eight scattered hits. The Islanders got two of their runs in the second, when, after Kellar and Million had singled. De Vogt came through with one of his handy two-baggeors and scored the runners. Their other tally came through an error by Williams. He missed a throw from Mensor and the leather went into the blenchers, De Vegt making the circuit. In the first, fifth and eighth the Roadsters got men around the bases. From the word "play ball" they began to hit Starkell. Score

HENLEY HOLDS TEAM SAFE

Though San Francisco Is Allowed but Five Hits, They Were Enough to Spoil Portland's Chances to Nab Contest.

Something was wrong with the dope esterday for those Beavers of ours slipped up against the Scals once more and lost a 2 to 1 argument to the visiting team. It was a day for the fair sex, and that it was a day for in tair san action may have been the jinks, for McCredle trotted out Tommy Seaton, his supposedly "best bet" against the San Francisco club, and Tommy pitched fine ball for he allowed but five hits. How-ever, five hits, good for two runs, is as good as a dozen when they win the game, and the handful of bingles, the Seals collected, proved sufficiently timely enough to ring the bell twice, whereas Portland could collect but one

"Slivers" Henley occupied the slab for the visitors and succeeded in holding the Beavers safe when the occasion required. He also received excel-ient support, and was likewise favored by Artie Krueger, depriving himself of a two-base hit by falling down at first base and thereby getting but one sack instead of a couple, in which latter event he might have tled the score, as an out and a long fly were recorded in Portland Lands in Second Portland registered the first run in the second inning, though it was a fluky score. Rapps was out when Sheenan singled and Peckinpaugh did likewise. Murray bounded one to Ten-nant who tossed to first believing Henley would take the throw, but "Slivers" was not there and Shechan scored, while Peck brought up at third and Murray at second before the ball was retrieved. With this glorious chance to cinch the game, Seaton popped a fly to Berry and Chadbourne chased the chance with a grounder to Tennant. Portland had several other chances to score runs but Henley proved the better man each time.

The Seals tied up the score in the fourth. McArdle went out, but Weaver was hit by a pitched ball. Tennant singled to right, sending Wenver to be scored on singled to right, sending Wenver to third, from whence he scored on Melchlor's long fly to Knueger. The winning run was likewise scored after the first man went out. This came in the sixth. Henley was out when Shaw hit along the third base line for two sacks. "Honus" McArdid then got Seaton in the hole and landed on his "cripple" for a drive to left.

Krueger raced in to hold Shaw at third, but failed to corral the ball, and Shaw scored, while McArdie brought up at third. Weaver and Tennant were disposed of, but the damage had been done and Portland could not overcome the one run lead.
