SWIGERT IS TO RESIGN

ALL OTHERS OF OLD PORT OF PORTLAND MAY FOLLOW.

President of Commission Will Quit When Accounts Are Paid--Wheelwright and Adams Away.

As soon as outstanding accounts have been paid and other subjects are disposed of, President C. W. Swigert, of the Port of Portland Commission, will issue a call for a special meeting of that body to consider steps to be taken in regard to the future personnel. Mr. Swigert said last evening that he would resign and that others may act similarly, but he did not feel at liberty to mention those considering the step.

Mr. Wheelwright and Mr. Adams are out of the city, and friends of both expect them to resign. Members of the board assert that the decision of the Supreme Court in holding that the old Port of Portland Commission act was not invalidated by the one passed at the last session of the Legislature, makes it possible for them to step down and out feeling that they were in the right when they refused to recognize the Commissioners appointed by Governor West. In the new personnel it is thought some of the men named for places on the commission as formed by the Governor will be included.

Archbishop Christie Presents Diplomas to Students of Three Departments.

GOVERNOR MEDALS ONE

West, in Addressing Class, Points to Success of Catholics by Minding Own Business — Portland Student Honored.

Fourteen students in the academic, scientific and commercial departments of Columbia University received their diplomas yesterday from Archbishop Christie. Governor West, who addressed the graduates, told of the importance of thorough equipment, honesty, sobriety and industry. He said the equipped man is always in demand and outstrips the unprepared man.

"In Oregon, where we are trying to take the affairs of the state out of politics," said the Governor, "we need skilled men and men of technical education. Our payroll in this state has been filled with incapable men. When we wanted an efficient man to head the forestry service at a salary of $4000 a year we could not find the man who could fill the place, and we had to take two men. And the same is true in our fish and game departments—we need equipped men.

"Go into politics, young men, not for the offices, but for the power for good which you may exert. Let the other man hold the offices. One of the secrets of the success of the Catholics is that they mind their own business, and the man who minds his own business always succeeds, for he has little competition."

At the conclusion of the address of the Governor, Archbishop Christie presented diplomas to the following:

Albert James Carmody, of Portland, and Hosmer Gambee, of Portland, in the academic department.

Frank Conrad Hummel, of Boise, Idaho; Charles Thomas Finegan, Boise, Idaho; Edward Patrick Finegan, Boise, Idaho; Arthur Theodore Niehouser, Portland; William Andrew Kellaher, Cork, Ireland; William James Cook, Portland; Harold Otto Hoffard, Vancouver, B. C.; Louis Phaeon Gambee, Portland, and Fred Le Fevre Baker, Vancouver, B. C., in the scientific department.

James Joseph Gavin, La Grande; Jerome Julius Foley, La Grande, and Timothy Leonard Murphy, Portland, in the commercial department.

The Daly gold medal, offered by Rev. William Daly for the student having the best record in English essay writing, was awarded to William Andrew Kellaher, of Cork, Ireland.

The Knights of Columbus gold medal, presented by the Portland Knights of Columbus for the student having the best record in history, was awarded to Hugh Vincent Lacey, of The Dalles, his standing being 98 8-10. The standing of Albert James Carmody was less than one point lower than that of the winner of the Knights of Columbus medal, and Governor West presented a gold medal to Mr. Carmody for his achievement.

The Christie gold medal, offered by Archbishop Christie for the student having the best record in one of the regular preparatory courses in the academic department, was also awarded to Albert Carmody, his standing being 97 1-2.

Charles Thomas Finegan, of Boise, Idaho, delivered the valedictory address. He received hearty applause and was commended by the varsity president and the archbishop. Idaho was represented by three graduates in the class.

President Joseph Gallagher delivered the farewell address to the class, bidding the graduates good-by and Godspeed in whatever they might undertake. Albert Carmody delivered the class poem. Music was furnished by the University quartet.

"Every citizen of Portland," said Archbishop Christie as the exercises closed, "ought to help the president in the erection of the new building, and these graduates should be the agents to fill the building with new students. If you will be true to the instructions you have received at Columbia University I have no fear of the future. No institution on this Coast has a better or more able faculty, and its reward is only found in the successful training of young men for citizenship."

Following the exercises a banquet was served to the guests.

President Gallagher will leave for Notre Dame, Ind., soon to remain for some time in behalf of the university. Some additions to the faculty will be made.

The contract for a new dormitory will be let at once. One-half of the building will be ready by September, and the structure will be completed by October.

Two-thirds of the world's oil production was contributed by the United States.
