Superintendent Rigler Remembered by Brooklyn School Folk.

City Superintendent Rigler was henored yesterday by the unveiling of his portrait in the assembly hall of the Brooklyn School by the Mothers'

& Teachers' Club of that portion of the city, in recognition of his services to the city as an educator and the ento the city as an educator and the encouragement the club has received from him. After a short musical programme, M. Walter C. Moore, president, spoke of the work done by Mr.
Rigler to make the public schools of Portland second to none in the United States. At this moment dainty little Ellane Strowbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Strowbridge, came forward and drew the curtain and exposed the familiar features of the City Superintendent of the Portland schools, and placed a bouquet of roses at the foot of the picture. The portrait was then accepted in behalf of Brocklyn School
and the people of the neighborhood, and it will be placed near that of exPresident Rossevelt on the walls of the President Roosevelt on the walls of Miss Dimick, principal, and teachers and members of the Mothers' & Teachand members of the alothers & reachers' Club. In the hall was a large collection of work done in the manual training department, and articles of sewing and drawing from all the grades. It was announced that the articles would be left in the assembly hall next Monday for the inspection of the mothers and fathers of the neigh-atory booklet. This was the last meeting of the club for the year before vacation.

AUTO FEUD IS SETTLED

WEMME-LANG CONTROVERSY IS TAKEN OUT OF COURT.

Case Dismissed When Matter Was Brought Before Justice Bell for Hearing.

When a new chapter in the history of the new-famous Wemme-Lang Yeud of the now-famous Wemme-Lang Yeud was due in Justice Bell's court yester-day afternoon, the Dove of Peace fluttered into the room and deposited an olive branch upon the Justice's desk. The dove is a personification of Deputy District Attorney Heanessy, who made appearance in the case brought by Lang against Wemme for using abusive language, and made a motion to diamiss, which was allowed by the court.

dismiss, which was allowed by the court.

Dislike of the publicity which has been an inevitable part of their court warfare, is said to be the influence which has caused the two citizens to settle their differences. The score stands, Wemme, 2: Lang. 0; for the real entate man succeeded in having the fines of $25 for speeding, assessed against the wholesaler.

Great reticence is shown by all the parties. Hennessy explained his action by saying that the attorney, who appeared for Lang, had notified him that his principal did not wish to press the cases. Attorneys for the factions would not discuss the matter yesterday. A friend of one of the parties said that both men realized that they had been hasly and regretted the nouriety they hasty and regretted that they had been hasty and regretted the noncriety they had drawn upon themselves. It is not likely that a suit for a large sum for damages, threatened by Wemme, will be filed.

The trouble which led to the series of suits, began last Sunday on the Mount Hood Road, when Wemme and Lang contested for the right of way.

Commercial Body by Florist.

One of the most beautiful floral displays which it has ever been the good fortune of the Portland Commercial Club to receive was that donated yesterday by John B. Pilkington, who contributed 5000 peonles to beautify the rooms. The exhibit of the pink and white flowers in the main dining-room, the smaller rooms and the reception-room made the club look like a veritable flower garden.

It was "ladies' night" at the club last night and the gift of the fragrant flowers was doubly appreciated, the club at the noon hour giving a rising vote of thanks to Mr. Pilkington for the magnificent display. One of the most beautiful floral dis-
