

FIRE CHIEF RESTS WITH HERO DEAD

David Campbell Borne to Grave.

SORROWING THOUSANDS WEEP

Final Tribute Greatest Ever Paid Portland Citizen.

FLORAL PIECES IMMENSE

Elks' Temple and Streets on Cortage Route Crowded—Grief Pervades Whole City as Muffled Drums of Funeral Sound.

Grim-visaged firemen, who have fought without flinching in the face of a thousand deaths, strong-armed policemen, whose hearts have been hardened by constant contact with human woe; light-hearted Elks, whose mission is to dispense joy and good cheer to their fellow men, and 150,000 citizens, their heads bowed in grief, all were moved to silent tears at the funeral of David Campbell, hero fire chief, yesterday afternoon.

Thus, in an humble way, Portland paid its respectful tribute of love and honor to the man who laid down his life Monday in the performance of his duty.

Few Able to Hear Rites.

On account of the limited capacity of the Elks' lodge room, in which the services were held, only a small number of persons were able to hear the ritualistic rites conducted by the members of the local lodge of Elks.

For more than an hour before 1:30 o'clock, the time set for the services to begin, a procession of men, women and children passed through the lodge rooms to gaze upon the flower bedecked casket that held the disfigured body and to admire the great mass of floral tributes that filled one entire end of the spacious hall.

Early in the day florists' messengers started to bring flowers into the lodge room. They came from many and varied sources, including those who had had private as well as those who had had official relations with the chief. Many who had not known him personally, but who had learned to admire him through his record of kindness and bravery, also were contributors.

No greater honor ever was shown by the Portland Elks to one of their departed brothers. More than 700 members attended the services. Space in the rear of the hall was reserved by them. Grouped on the west side, near the altar, were 140 firemen, including about 30 who composed their band, all in charge of Michael Landenkron, Acting Chief. Over 100 exempt firemen, who have ceased to do active service, were given positions in the front seats. Mayor Simon and A. G. Rushlight, Mayor-elect, sat side by side near the exalted ruler's station.

Friends Support Bereaved Wife.

Close personal friends of Mrs. Campbell accompanied her through the sad ordeal. They included Mrs. A. G. Long and Mrs. John Iton. She was borne upon the arm of W. D. Allard, her brother-in-law. The funeral party was given seats near the casket, where they were partially hidden by the immense bank of flowers. Mrs. Campbell bore up well through the ceremony. She sobbed when the speakers paid particular reference to her own fortune and her share of glory in the triumphant death of her honored husband.

The services were conducted by K. K. Kubli, exalted ruler. T. B. McDevitt, chaplain of the lodge, pronounced the opening prayer. All the officers had part in the services. An impressive moment was when M. H. Spalding, the secretary, in response to instructions from the exalted ruler, called thrice the name of the departed brother. After each call there was a pause, throughout which painful silence prevailed.

"Absent," sadly answered Theodore Rowland, the exalted ruler. Words of praise for the martyred chief and a moral lesson for his brothers who remain were contained in the eulogy delivered by D. Solis Cohen, Chief Ever Faithful.

"He placed duty above and beyond life," he said, in speaking of Chief Campbell. "His life and death typify the greatest cardinal principle of our order—fidelity. He was always faithful."

He spoke of his great love for children and of the friendship for him. He appealed to the people of Portland to perpetuate the memory of David Campbell.

"He left his message of civic obligation and civic justice, justice to those

Constitutional Power of Senate Carefully Safeguarded—Administration Fails to Find Any Objectors.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—All formalities necessary to final conclusion of the general arbitration treaty between America and Great Britain could be completed within four hours, assuming that diplomatic negotiations were working smoothly, according to official declaration today.

The differences between the two countries now relate merely to phraseology and can be adjusted readily. The British Ambassador has full power to sign the treaty and the Administration so far has failed to find any signs of objection to the compact on the part of the Senate. It is said that, notwithstanding an impression to the contrary, the treaty (Concluded on Page 2.)

LAD RUNS 43 MILES TO SEE HIS FATHER

14-YEAR-OLD MAKES DISTANCE IN 13 1-2 HOURS.

Believing Parent to Be Dying, Royal Eubanks Races From Morton to Centralia, Then Faints.

CENTRALIA, Wash., June 29.—(Special.)—To reach the bedside of his father, whom he believed to be dying, 14-year-old Royal Eubanks raced on foot from Morton to Centralia, 43 miles, in 13 1/2 hours, yesterday. When the little fellow, utterly worn out by his terrific exertions, threw himself into his mother's arms, he fainted dead away after hearing the news that his father was safely on the road to recovery.

The lad is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Eubanks, of Centralia, and a grandson of ex-Mayor Wood. With his fathering up the North Fork of the Tilton River, early in the week. As his father was standing on two logs, with his legs wide apart, one of the logs swung out and he was thrown backward violently across the other.

The impact of his fall knocked him unconscious, and the two little lads, at the imminent risk of falling in the water themselves, rushed out on the log and caught him just as he was slipping into the river. They managed to hold him there until their frantic shouts brought help. The injured man, still insensible, was carried to Morton and from there hurried to Centralia.

There was room for only one of the boys in the buggy, and it fell to Bonnie, as the elder, to accompany his father on the trip home. Undeterred by the fact that he would have to make part of the lonely journey in the dark, Royal followed on foot as fast as his legs could carry him. Speed and strength were lent to his wiry little limbs by the prospect that his father might be dead before he arrived.

When he reached home, he had just strength enough left to cry, "Gee, what I'm glad papa is going to live!" before he fainted.

TWO WHO DRAW GUNS AND DEMAND FOOD MAY BE ROBBERS SOUGHT

SPRINGFIELD, Or., June 29.—(Special.)—Two of the Douglas County train robbers are believed to have been in Springfield this morning. Two men whose description tallies somewhat to that given for the robbers entered the kitchen of the Springfield Hotel this morning shortly after the arrival of the northbound train, a little before 5 o'clock and at the point of a gun ordered the Chinese cook to give them all the cold meat and bread he had. They left at once with a large quantity of provisions. No one saw the men but the Chinaman, who was badly scared. He did not give any alarm.

If the men were the train robbers, however, they would have had to come here on the train which they robbed.

GLENDAL, Or., June 29.—(Special.)—Bloodhounds today took the scent of Oregon express robbers from pieces of mail found along the track, and trailed them to Cow Creek siding, where the scent was lost.

The posse of officers and citizens returned to Glendale tonight, bringing the bloodhounds with them, the dogs having lost the scent entirely at Cow Creek siding. The opinion seems to be that the outlaws boarded through train No. 21 at Cow Creek and came south on it, dropping off before the train stopped here and evading the officers who searched the train at this place.

The dogs will be used here tomorrow morning in an effort to pick up the scent here to determine if the robbers came here on a freight train. The search in the mountains has been abandoned, investigators being convinced that the robbers did not escape in that direction. All tramps arriving on trains here are being searched and questioned by Government officials.

It is now thought that the outlaws boarded at train at this siding, as both an eastbound and a westbound freight train passed there shortly after the robbery and both stopped at Cow Creek. Many tramps boarded both trains there. The Cow Creek Canyon outlaws are believed to be the same men who held up the Shasta Limited at Yoncalla June 16.

Mountains and canyons surrounding the scene of last night's hold-up are full of men searching for further trail of the outlaws.

Several Posses on Trail.

A special train left Roseburg last midnight carrying a force of deputies heavily armed. Another posse left Glendale about the same time, headed by the County Constable.

W. H. Redfield, a pioneer settler of Cow Creek Canyon, who has spent his life in the mountains and knows every foot of country between Cow Creek and the Coast, left with another posse armed with rifles. Bloodhounds in charge of a Postoffice Inspector from Portland arrived on the scene this morning and will attempt to pick up the trail of the criminals.

Heavy rain falling today made the work of the dogs extremely difficult. The country surrounding the scene of the hold-up is heavily timbered and rough, making the search a laborious task.

The crew of the freight train which was standing on the siding at Cow Creek, a short distance from the scene and who were witnesses of the robbery, say the robbers were careful in handling the mail and rifling the mail car, to leave nothing that could be used as a scent for bloodhounds.

Tramps Are Searched.

A gang of tramps found on the freight train were taken off the train here and searched, but nothing was found on any to connect them with the crime and they were released.

About seven miles from the scene of the robbery the country is open prairie and a good trail leads from that section to the head of Coquille River and thence to Coos Bay. It is thought the highwaymen may be headed in that direction.

While the robbers were attempting to gain entrance to the express car one of them was heard to say: "It's too bad we didn't bring the dynamite."

That the robbers did not get away with a larger amount of loot than they did is probably accounted for by their coming upon the freight train at Cow (Concluded on Page 8.)
