HARD TIMES WILL BE JAPAN'S TEST

Country Facing Crisis That May Retard Progress for Perod of Years.

TAXES ARE NOW OPRESSIVE

Industrial Development at Flood and Will Continue Unless People Lose Stability in Pace of Certain Hard Times.

TOKIO, June Bi(Special.) - Wide, indeed, has been the growth of industrial activity in this kingdom, and wider still will be that growth if the plans of the elder statesmen and govrament officials are carried out. Japan means to be great, and will spare ne expense in money, men, or comfort to attain her aim.

While she feels that the United States has not always played the part of the friend to her achemes for growing, she looks to this country as the only one that will lend countenance to her plans. still feels that she was defrauded of her rightful share of the gains from her war with Russia by the treaty of Portsmouth; that the attitude of the Western States of the Union in refus-ing her citizens school rights was unjust, and that the three-power loan was just, and that the three-power loan was in the nature of an effort on the part of the Washington Government to weaken her hold on Manchuria. But for all this, except in some quarters, the general feeling is that the United States is not only Japan's best customer, but the nation's best friend and recognible ally.

American Investments Large.

So it is with something in the nature of gine that the elder statesmen have called the attention of the American correspondent here to the record made by Japan during the past year, and have laughed at reports that this country is now busily engaged in preparing for war with Americans. They point to the amount of American capenterprise, and to the prospect that the sum will be largely increased within

In the slowing that the railroads of the country in 1916 made gross receipts of more than $6,000,000 yes, and their net profits were more than 12,000,000 yes, they find ample proof that the reintions of the two countries will not be severed. In addition, they declare that the money for broadening the scope of the railroad system of the sland kingdom will, to some extent, at least, come from the banks of the United States. The plans for this broadening are nation-wide in their scope, and will require several years to carry out to their fullness. The com-mittee which is in charge of the plane has prepared an estimate of the cost, which it puts at about 295,467,368 yea, and includes estimates of about 41,-600,000 yen for repairs and broadening, 213,000,000 yen for new broad-gauge lines, and 20,000,000 for changing nar-row-gauge roads to broad gauge.

People's Attitude Changing.

Prince Katsura, the Prime Minister, asserts that the rapid increase in the rountry's business demands an entire readjustment of the railroads and steamship lines of the nation, and that with that readjustment will undoubtedly come a readjustment of the attitude of the people toward the West. Inasmuch as commerce between two countries always binds those countries countries always hinds those countries closer together than any other thing, the increased trade with the United States in electrical supplies has a bearing on the general question of the relations of the two countries. Within the last three months American manufacturers of electrical supplies have heaten their European rivals for several large orders. German firms who were making the fight for the contracts cut prices in an effort to break the hold the Americans apparently had,

This and the steady increase in the purchases of American cotton and cot-ton goods and American fuel oil all go to buttress international friendship; but there is another side to the situation here that is attracting more or less attention from observers, and, whether ustly or not, is causing some alarm to Americans living in Japan.

Financial Crists Coming.

With all her prosperity, Japan faces a serious financial climax within a very few years. The new tariff, which will go into effect July 1, will increase the already high cost of living in the islands enormously, say 33 per cent, possibly more. The wage of the average laborer to fittle more than 12 cents day; and even the most skilled laborer does not receive more than I yen ($1) a day. The increase of the cost of living incident to the new tariff will test, as no war could, the patriottem of the Japanese for his country and

This is already recognized by the leaders, and plans are being laid by the aid of mass meetings and the government papers to stimulate the patri-ctism of the people, that it may serve to carry the nation over the dark days that are to come. It is no reflection on these people to may that the masses seem to be lacking in moral fiber. That comes only after generations of trainand its lack may mean that under the coming the nation will would mean that certainly. It remains to be seen whether the devotion to Emperor and country which has always been one of the chief characteristics of the Nipponese will serve to pull the nation through the crisis of hard times,

Japan Has Grievances.

On all sides, coupled with the phrases expressing joy at the growth of the country's commerce and advance in civilization, one hears expressions of alarm at the results of this increase tariff duties. Nor do many of the highest in the land hesitate to essert that it will mean the death of Japan's ambitions. Count Okuma, elder states-man and former Prime Minister of the man and former Prime Minister of the empire, is among the foremost to realize that the folly of this plan to raise the tariff is stupendous. He declares that the "people will not tolerate this imposition," with the heavy taxes now prevalling and the low wage average, the margin left for living is small-frightfully small—so, small it is doubtful whether any nation could endure an enlarged levy.

Count Okuma asserts that "with the prospect of the increase in the cost of tion for new and heavier armament the cutlook for our nation is gloomy, and I almost dread looking ahead to the coming years.

BOY SEARCHES RECORDS IN PORTLAND FOR TRACES OF HIS MOTHER.

William Norris Noble

Searching Portland for traces of his lost mother, William Nor-ris Noble, who was left at an orphan asylum in Chicago during the World's Fair in 1893 by his parents, whom he believes to have been separated, spent yes-terday at the City Hall and after several hours' search unearthed a record that told him for the first time the day and year of his

The document read that he was born March 6, 1868, his father being William Henry Noble, a barber, but the residence was not given. At the Courthouse he en-deavored to find a marriage certificate, but was unsuccessful. In searching the records of the Oddfellows, however, he met a man who found that his father had worked at 89 North Third street, in a barbor shop, and had lived in Fulton Park.

On going to where the barber shop had been, he found a clothing store, but going across the street to a saloon, ran into a bar-ber who said to him before he could make known his errand, "Why, you are young Noble. I "Why, you are young Noble, would know your face anywhere I knew your father well." stranger could tell him nothing, however, of the whereabouts of either his mother or father, and neither could an old Portland barber, who used to work with his neither could an old Portland barper, who used to work with the father, help him out.

Noble is anxious to find his mother, as she is the chief object of his search. He feels certain she has relatives around Portland, and is endeavoring to find his mother's maiden name in order to locate either his mother or her people. Tonight, unless he is successful, he will be forced to go to Los Angeles in order to save his ticket. "If I could only get a good clew," said Noble, "the ticket would be torn up and I would stay, for I want to find my mother."

hope that Yambili County will do the same; also to help the good roads movement and add to the convenience of travel, which is growing every year between the two countles, especially by homessekers, who become disgusted with Yambili's toil road and locate in other countles.

The Tillamook Commercial Club enters its protest at the action of the Yambili County Court in allowing a tell road to be established at Dolph, in Yambili County, as being unjust and unfair to this progressive county in the good roads movement; unfair to actomobilists and the traveling public to tax them for traveling over a short irretch of road; unfair to adopt such a perniclous system of robbing the traveling public; and unfair and unprogressive to resort to such antiquated methods of readbuilding; therefore, the Tillamook Commercial Club most respectfully sake the McMinaville Commercial County Court, and have the court make Yambili's toil road at Polph a free public highway, which is a long-felt want; and also requests that the McMinaville Commercial Club hoost for a good graveled nutomobile highway through Yambili and Tillamook Countles.
