CONGRESS PLANS

President, However, Likely to Win Reciprocity Without Amendment.

TARIFF OUTLOOK CHAOTIC

Senate, With Unlimited Possibilities for Debate, Controls Situation at Present - Insurgents Disagreed Over Wool,

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, June 28 .- Chaos is likely to continue in the Senate to the close of the special session, and not until the end will it be known how much legislation is to be passed and sent to the Prestdent for approval or veto. This is due to the split in the Republican party, to the utter lack of leadership on the Republican side, and to the shiftiness of the Democratic minority, which striving to turn every move to political advantage. No party and no faction has any definite programme, and alliances of today may be broken tomorrow and new alliances formed. Out of it all, however, President Taff is likely to get that which he most desires, the Canadian reciprocity bill without amendment, but he will not get this bill as early as it might have been submitted for his approval had not Senator Gore's resolution on the wool hill been carried by an overwhelming vote of the Senate. That resolution in-dected other topics into the Senate debate, and insures a much more pro-tracted and diversified discussion than would have been had otherwise.

Plan to Amend May Fail.

Many of the insurgent Republicans who voted with the Democrats to bring the wool bill into the Senate did so in the hope of tacking the wool bill onto the reciprocity bill as an amendment; others voted with the Democrats to bring in the wool bill, proposing at a later date to use the wool bill as the basis for a general revision of the tariff. Those who counted on fastening a rider to the reciprocity bill probably will be disappointed; what may develop michg the other line remains to be seen. The proposal to attach the wool bill to the reciprocity bill will fail, accord-ing to present prospects, because the Democrats of the Senate do not want want to endanger the reciprocity bill. They want to reduce the duty on wool, however, and are ready to join with the insurgents to fix up the House wool bill, either confining it to wool, or extending it to other commodities. That is to say, they are in favor of such a plan generally speaking—whether they and the insurgents can reach an agreement as to the specific amount of re-duction to be made on the various schedules is quite another matter. Even on the wool schedule there is a good deal of opportunity for disagreement, for some of the insurgents come from big wool states, and are not ready to conceds all the Democrats ask in the way of reduction on raw wool.

Veto Would Defeat Bill.

The difficulty about launching upon a general plan of revising the tariff, using the wool bill as the basis, is the meertainty as to the action that would be taken by the President should a bill be shaped up and be agreed to by both houses of Congress. The President has let the inference go forth that he will not approve a bill modifying Schedule K. because the tariff board has not yet reported. He wants to hold back wool legislation until the regular session. If he is not willing to sign a wool bill, it is doubtful if he would sign a general bill, for the tariff board has not considered anything beyond wool, as ret. Therefore, if the President should veto a wool bill, or a general tariff bill, the work of Congress would be wasted, for there are not votes enough in the Sen-ate to pase a tariff bill over the Presidential veto.

There is a doubt in the minds of many, however, whether the President would veto a general tariff bill, if it should make a reasonable readjustment of the rates of the Payne-Aldrich law—cotton, steel, sugar and other schedules along with wool. Those who hold this view believe it would not be good politics for the President to veto such a bill at this time, especially on account of the general unpopularity of the Payne-Aldrich law, and the general belief that its rates are too high. This opinion prevails largely among insurgent Senators, and with them the wish may be father to the thought. Nevertheless that is their opinion, and they expect to proceed on the theory that they are right and that the President dent will approve a reasonable bill if the Democrate and insurgents can come together on a bill that will receive the votes of a majority of the Senate.

Insurgents Will Use Whip.

After considering the situation, the Republican insurgents in the Senate feel that they occupy a position of advantage, and can win out if they play the right kind of politics. While they feel that they cannot attach general revision to the Canadian bill, because revision to the Canadian bill, because of Democratic opposition, they will make the attempt, submitting such a bill as an amendment and having it wated upon. If it is voted down, they will offer their bill as an amendment to the wool bill, and if their bill is reasonable, the Democrats will, as they declare, have to vote for it or go before the country accused of passing by a perfectly good opportunity to reduce the tariff. At the same time the insurprets have the necessary votes to the tariff. At the same time the insufgents have the necessary votes to defeat the Democratic wool bill, free fift bill, and other special bills that will come from the House later, and with this advantage, they hope to be able to whip the Democrats into line.
The situation in the Senate is one of unlimited possibilities, and the Senate undoubtedly will shape the tariff legislation of the session. If the Senlegislation of the second. If the bul-ate passes a general revision bill, it inquestionably will be accepted by the Hugae: if the Senate refuses to pass the House wool bill and free list bill. no such measures can go to the President. So that the Senate, for the present at least, controls the situation, and the President will not have his say until very late in the Fall.

ATTENDS SERVICE

Royal Procession to Thanksgiving Ceremonies Witnessed by Crowds.

LONDON, June 18 .- King George and Queen Mary, accompanied by the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, made still another progress through the capital today. WOMAN SAVED FROM RIVER Rescued and Rescuer Pulled Out of Willamette Last Night.

Barely escaping death in the Wil-lamette River at the foot of Twenty-fourth street when the bank on which fourth street when the bank on which she was sitting gave way. Mrm Anna Stevenson, aged 20, living at 480 Union avenue, was rescued late last night by Kenneth L. Webb, an attendant at St. Vincent's Hospital, who was passing by and heard her cries for help. When Webb was swimming to the bank with the woman he could not gain a foothold and slipped back and both rescuer and rescued would have been drowned but for the assistance of Bert Adams, who rescued the two.

Mrs. Stevenson was cared for at St. Vincent's Hospital and after two hours' Vincent's Hospital and after two hours' rest left the hospital apparently none the worse for her experience.

RATE DECISION DELAYED

Spokane Cases Not Likely to Be Decided Until September.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, June 23.—The decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Spokane rafe case and all allied cases affecting rates to and from inter-mountain and Pacific Coast points, which was to have been announced before the Commission adjourns for the Summer en Saturday, probably will be delayed until September. Commissioner Prouty, who is prepar-to the opinion in this case, has gone to Vermont, and information received today is that he will not return to Washington until Fall. Unless he forwards his opinion, which is not looked for by the Commission, there will be no announcement for three months.

Nine Indictments Returned by Federal Grand Jury in New York.

ILLEGAL POOLS CHARGED

Son-in-Law of J. Pierpont Morgan Is Among Defendants in Government's Atack Upon Alleged Restraint of Trade.

NEW YORK, June 29.-Nine indictments charging restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law were returned by a Federal grand jury here this afternoon against as many associations and a long list of individuals comprising the so-called "wire trust" affiliated with the steel

Prominent among the defendants are Herbert L. Satterlee, a son-in-law of J. Pierpont Mergan; William P. Palmer, president of the American Steel & Wire Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, and Frank J. Gould, of New York, presi-dent of the Old Dominion Iron & Nail works Company.

"What this suit charges," District Attorney Wise said, "is a trade agreement in restraint of trade."

The Government does not seek to establish a physical or financial merger of the properties or interests indicted, but a series of pools to maintain prices and apportion territory in elimination petition. Thus the suit appears as a further sign of the Government's determination to deal rigorously with restrictive trade agreements.

There is no indication that evidence gathered by the bureau of corpora-tions in its investigation of the steel corporation played any part in the in-dictments.

Only two of the subsidiary companies of the United States Steel Corporation are mentioned—namely, the American Steel & Wire Company and the Trenton Iron Company. The American Steel & Wire Company, however, is mentioned in the indictments against seven of the associations. In the indictments against the Telephone Cable Association and the Fine Magnet Wire Association it is not mentioned.

Prominent Men Named.
